
HOME

sheltered, waiting for him, a life grown out of a great love, his life and her life mingled and made manifest in flesh.

Healing lay somewhere in that great expanse of land, perhaps, or in the clasp of tiny unknown fingers.

The old captain, passing for'ard, noticed that he was smiling as he lay back in his chair.

THE END