Poetry.

Only a Picture.

Only a picture—and is that all?
Only a picture upon the wall:
The smile so beaming, the cheek so bright,
The eye so dancing with sunny light,
I almost fancy my baby boy
Is springing to me in his pride and joy!
But, 'tis only a picture upon the wall,
A silent picture and that is all!

Only a lock of silken hair
Lying alone in its casket there!
Where is the head that in sportive glee
Was wont to toss it so careless and free?
The baby head that upon my breast
So lovingly nestled each night to rest?
Only a lock of its silken hair
Is lying alone in its casket there!

Only a shoe that is soiled and torn!
But where is the foot that that shoe has worn?
The darling foot, so dimpled and small,
That made music so merry in chamber and hall?
O, to catch of that little step one sound,
How wildly now would my pulses bound!
But there's only a shoe that is soiled and torn—
The foot comes no more that that shoe has worn.

Only these relics, and nothing more?
Can naught to our arms the lost restore?
Must we hopelessly yearn, as the years go by,
For the bounding step and the beaming eye;
And of all that beauty and life and grace,
So fondly cherished, retain no trace
Save these silent relics? O nevermore
Will the grave to our arms the lost restore!

O woe for love, when from all its store
It points to these tokens and nothing more!
When the vacant hall and the silent stair
But echo the groans of its wild despair;
And from all the voices in earth and sky,
Comes back no word to its wailing cry,
Save the mournful echo—"O nevermore
Will the grave to thy arms the lost restore!"

O joy for love, when it yearns no more
For that which the grave cannot restore!
When it upward stretches its drooping wings,
And in darkness and sorrow still sweetly sings
Of the brightness and bliss of that better home
Where the lost are found, and no partings come;
O joy for love, when its priceless store
There safe is garnered for evermore!

Miscellaneous.

Japan.

Discovery of Japan, the introduction of Roman Catholicism and its subsequent extirpation.

The Japanese islands were first discovered by the Portuguese in 1542. Seven years after, the Jesuits, headed by the renowned Francis Xavier, entered the country, and if their reports can be trusted, made most astonishing progress in propagating their religion. They continued their labors with little to interrupt for forty years, during which period they claim to have made nearly 2,000,000 of converts. Not content with these great achievements, they set to work, as has been the case in every country, where they have got a foothold, to revolutionize the government, and this led to a series of persecutions, which ended in the entire extirpation of popery from the country. The first persecution took place in 1587, when however not more than twenty or thirty persons were put to death. Three years after, another persecution broke out, in which more than 20,000 were put to death. After a lull of forty years, a third persecution broke out, in which 37,000 persons perished. At this time the government resolved not only to obliterate every trace of Christianity from the land, but to cut off all intercourse between themselves and the rest of the civilized world. Their grievances, whether real or fancied, must have been very great. The decree which isolated Japan from the rest of the civilized world is couched in the following sweeping language: "No Japanese ship or boat whatever, nor any native of Japan, shall presume to go out of the country. Whoso acts contrary to this, shall die, and the ships, with the crew and goods aboard, shall be sequestered until further orders. All Japanese who return from abroad shall be put to death. Whoever discovers a Christian priest shall have a reward of from 4 to 500 Schnets (from $1500 to $1900) and for every Christian in proportion. All persons who propagate the doctrine of the Christians, (the worship of the fathers,) or bear this scandalous name, shall be imprisoned in the Ombra, or common jail of the town. The whole race of the Portuguese, with their mothers, nurses, or whoever belongs to them, shall be banished to Macao. Whoever presumes to bring a letter from abroad, or to return after he has been banished, shall die, with all his family. Also whoever presumes to intercede for him shall be put to death. No nobleman, nor any soldier, shall be permitted to purchase anything from a foreigner."

But sweeping as this decree was, and terrible as had been the persecutions which preceded it, the Jesuits were not disposed to give up the field. A short time after, a missionary company of seventy persons was fitted out at Macao to resume the work. All of these were put to death immediately on their arrival, except twelve of the most obscure members of it, who were spared to take back the defiant and blasphemous message from the emperor, "that should the king of Portugal, nay, the very God of the Christians, presume to enter his dominions, he would serve them in the same manner."

It is well known that this persecution and subsequent isolation originated in political, and not religious motives. It is probable that if the Jesuits had confined themselves exclusively to propagating their religion they would have been saved, all this persecution, and the empire of Japan would probably never have been shut up against the rest of the world. But the Jesuits, in this instance were unfortunately but too true to their own principles, and they re-enacted here what they have done in every other country where they have obtained a footing. They aimed to lay the empire of Japan at the feet of Rome, but effected the destruction of all they had previously achieved; and thus paid roundly for their temerity.

Religion and Superstition of the Japanese

There are a variety of religions in Japan. The earliest, and perhaps the most extensive, is the worship of the "Sun Goddess." She can be invoked only through the medium of inferior deities or deified men, of whom there are an almost unlimited number. The religion of Budha was introduced soon after the Christian era, and prevails, to a very great extent. Among these and other classes of religionists, there are as many as thirty-five different sects, all of whom are recognized by government, and sustained by the common consent of the people, showing that the Japanese are a tolerant people, notwithstanding the expulsion of the Roman Catholics in the seventeenth century. This tolerant spirit would exercised towards the Romish party so long as they confined themselves to their appropriate work. One of the rulers, when importuned to arrest the progress of popery, inquired how many religions there were in Japan. Thirty-five, was the reply. "Well," said he, "where thirty-five sects can be tolerated, we can easily bear with thirty-six; leave these strangers in peace."

The day of gospel light seems to be dawning upon Japan, as may be inferred from the "Recent Events" noted in the same journal.

The Christian public are acquainted with the recent events, that have taken place in Japan. The treaty made by Commodore Perry in 1852, and renewed and enlarged in its privileges during the past year by the skilful efforts of consul Harris, brings the country once more into intercourse with the Christian world, and prepares the way for the propagation of the pure gospel, where only a gross counterfeit has been known. It is not known how their minds will be affected by a distinct proposition to re-establish the Christian faith among them. It may be repulsive at first, but they will not be long in discerning the difference between Protestantism and Romanism, and the people of God have every encouragement to hope for great results. The quiet, harmless character of the people, their inquisitive turn of mind, and love of knowledge, and the almost universal habit of reading and writing among them, are all favorable circumstances for the spread of Christianity there. But that marked providence which has unlocked the country, the lively interest manifested by all branches of the Christian church in connection with it, and especially the readiness with which Christian men and women are offering themselves to carry the gospel to that far-off land, are the higher sources of encouragement, and the evident forerunners of that great blessing which God is preparing for the Japanese. We earnestly commend the mission about to be established there by the Board to the prayerful remembrance of all God's people.—Missionary Record of the O. S. Presbyterian Church, U. S.

Conscription in France.

We take the following interesting account of the conscription in France, from the English United Service Magazine. It is known that it is in this way that the vast army of France is kept replenished:

This military lottery occurs every year. The annual contingent of troops levied thereby, varies according to the necessity of the state, being at war-times very high, and in peaceable times comparatively low; at all times, however, it amounts to at least 20,000 men, that being the number who annually receive their dismission, their term of service having expired. A census of all the departments is taken every year; and the number of men required is divided in equal proportions among all the provinces of the empire. The names of all the young men between the ages of twenty and thirty, both years inclusive, are then described on the conscription lists of their respective localities, and every attempt to evade conscription is punished by an imprisonment of from one month to one year, while any one aiding or abetting a fugitive from the dreaded ballot, is liable to the same penalty.

The scene which takes place at the drawing is one of most picturesque animation. Groups of the finest youths of a wide neighbourhood, with generally their fathers and mothers, relatives and friends, are assembled in the spacious hall of the town-house. The mayors, prefects, and sub-prefects, are there to receive them, with usually several officers, quartered in the district. On every face there is an expression of hope and fear, anxiety and excitement; and, as each advances toward the fatal urn and draws the paper deciding his future destiny, all the spectators as well as the parties immediately concerned, feel the most lively interest. Those who draw a higher number than the number of recruits required, are exempt, while those who draw a lower number are condemned to serve their country as militaires for the space of seven years. Some are exempted. These exceptions include all below the height of five feet five inches; all criminals; all who are the subject of any physical incapacity; the eldest of orphans; the only son, or eldest son, or grandson of a widow, or of a father of seventy years of age; certain classes of students in the public schools, including all those who have carried off the great prizes of the institute, or of the university. None, however, are exempt from the ballot; all must appear and draw their lots; and this over, such as have objections to urge send them into the council of revision, which is appointed for the purpose. Were it not for this close examination, many would evade the common national responsibility, and some would intrude themselves into the service whom the service would otherwise reject. As it is, the instances are numerous of persons who mutilate themselves by chopping off a finger, or who raise sores on their bodies by piercing their flesh, and drawing strings through the wound, that they may be reported by the medical inspectors infirm and unfit for military life.

Extension of the English Language.

As we believe that there is no language used on earth that contains so many books in every department of science, literature and religion, and no language used by so many religious, benevolent, free and earnest men—earnest in everything pertaining to the best welfare of the race, so we are gratified to muse upon the extent to which this language is now used, and upon the continual spread of it among the nations. Besides being the good old mother tongue of the British Isles and of the United States, it is used all over the immense and widely extended colonies of the British Crown in North America. It is the language of the larger portion of the West India Islands. It is spoken in all the centres of commercial activity in every part of South America. It is the sole language of the infant nations of Australia, New Zealand and Van Diemen's Land. And, by the activities of American and English commerce and missionary enterprises, it seems destined to spread among the countless Pacific Isles. It prevails along the coasts of Eastern and Western Africa, and is moving upwards from the Cape of Good Hope into the most central regions of that continent. "All along the Egyptian highway to Asia it is a familiar sound."—The most active and influential of the native population of India, from Cape Comorin to the Himalaya mountains, are zealously engaged in acquiring it. It is one of the every-day-used dialects in five of the most populous and commercial ports of China. And recent treaties, and the already opening commerce of England and America, is making it familiar to the ears of the dwellers in the populous islands of Japan. All these facts indicate the continual progress of the English language among the nations; and it certainly seems destined to be spoken and used by a larger number of the human family than any other language. And as these two things are true, first, that this language contains more religious literature than any other language; and second, this kind of literature is sure to go wherever the language goes, therefore we look with great satisfaction on the wider and wider spread of our mother tongue among the nations, in view of the moral and religious advantages sure to arise from it.—Am Traveller.

Mountain Cities of South America.

It is a remarkable fact that nearly all the cities in the western part of South America are situated far up from the sea-coast, on the table-lands, as, for instance, Bogota, nine thousand feet above the level of the sea, and Potosi, the highest city in the world, thirteen thousand feet. In this respect they present a striking contrast to the great cities of the United States, which are, without exception, situated on the sea-coast, or on some other large body of water. The selection of such elevated sites may be accounted for by the following facts:

1. The climate is much more temperate and healthy on the table-lands. An ascent of a few thousand feet in these tropical regions presents as marked a modification of the temperature as a journey of many degrees toward the poles. In this manner a temperate climate is secured for the British soldiers in Hindostan, by removing them, when debilitated by the heat on the sea-coast, to the plateau of Deccan, which has nearly the same climate as their native country.

2. The founders of the South American cities had no need of commerce, since all the productions of the earth which they required grew in the country around them, and they could procure from their own mines the gold and silver which form the great stimulus to commerce.

3. It was convenient to have their cities among the mountains, that they might be near the mines.

4. The cities founded by the Spaniards would be placed on the plateaus, in imitation of their native cities in old Spain.—Rhode Island Schoolmaster.

EARLY RISING.—There is a capital anecdote of the reign of Louis XVI. of France, according to which some court ladies got it into their heads, from some book they had been reading, that it must be a glorious thing to see the sun rise. But as that took place in the hours in which they were uniformly in bed, what was to be done? After much consideration, it being of course impossible for them to think of rising so early, they resolved to have a party to sit up all night and ride out just before day to the top of a neighboring hill, to witness the strange phenomenon. This was duly performed, and then all went to bed, astonished at the degree to which they had ruralized themselves.

PATIENTS IN LUNATIC ASYLUMS.—There are now in England upward of 21,000 persons confined as lunatic patients in the public and private asylums and hospitals, exclusive of about 7,000 pauper patients in work-houses, all of whom are under the protection and supervision—so called—of the Commissioners in Lunacy. Two Government bills have been brought in upon the care and treatment of these unfortunates—a subject on which the public mind has recently received a most painful impression in consequence of recent disclosures of the practices pursued in private asylums.

MANUFACTURERS OF
MELODEONS,
ORGAN-MELODEONS,
AND
PEDAL BASS HARMONIUMS.
THE first premium over all other competitors at the Fair of the Massachusetts Charitable Mechanics' Association, of the National Fair, Washington, D. C., also at the Ohio State Fair held at Columbus, O., was awarded to the Manufacturers
By means of a new method of Voicing, known only to themselves, they have succeeded in removing the harsh and buzzing sound which formerly characterized the instrument, and rendering the tones full, clear, and organ like. The action is prompt and reliable, enabling the performer to execute the most rapid music without blurring the tones. The swell is arranged to give great expression.
The Pedal Bass Harmoniums
are designed particularly for Churches, Lodges, Halls, &c. It is arranged with two manuals or banks of keys, the lowest set running an octave higher than the other, and may be used separately, and thus get in one case two distinct instruments; or by the use of the coupler, two banks may be played at the same time by the use of the front set only. This connection with the Pedal Bass will produce the effect of a large organ, and sufficiently heavy to fill a house that seats from 1,000 to 1,500 persons.
The Organ Melodeon
is designed for parlour and private use. The construction is similar to the Church Instruments, being arranged with two banks of keys, and when used together, by means of the coupler, is capable of as great power as the church instrument, when used without the Pedals.
☞ Also, every variety of Melodeons for Parlour use. ☜
Purchasers may rely upon instruments from our manufactory being made in the most complete and thorough manner. Having removed to the spacious buildings 511 Washington Street, where we have every facility for manufacturing purposes, and employ none but the most experienced workmen. In short, we will promise our customers an instrument equal if not superior to any manufacturer, and guarantee entire and perfect satisfaction.

Brown's Bronchial Troches.
COPYRIGHT SECURED.
Entered according to the act of Congress, in the year 1857, by John I. Brown & Son, Chemists, Boston, in the Clerk's Office of the District Court of the Dist. of Mass.
☞ COUGHS.—The great and sudden changes of our climate, are fruitful sources of Pulmonary and Bronchial affections. Experience having proved that simple remedies often act speedily and certainly when taken in the early stage of disease, recourse should at once be had to "Brown's Bronchial Troches," or Lozenges, let the Cough or Irritation of the Throat be ever so slight, as by this precaution a more serious attack may be effectually warded off.
Brown's Bronchial Troches,
Cures Cough, Cold, Hoarseness and Influenza. Cures any Irritation or Soreness of the Throat. Relieves the Hacking Cough in Consumption. Relieves Bronchitis, Asthma and Catarrh. Clears and gives strength to the voice of Singers Indispensable to Public Speakers.
Brown's Bronchial Troches.
[From Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, who has used the Troches five years.] "I have never changed my mind respecting them from the first, except to think yet better of that which I began in thinking well of." "In all my lecturing ours, I put 'Troches' into my carpet bag as regularly as I do lectures or linen. I do not hesitate to say that in so far as I have had an opportunity of comparison, your Troches are pre-eminently the best, and the first, of the great Lozenge School."
Brown's Bronchial Troches.
[From Rev. E. H. Chapin, D. D, New York.] "I consider your Lozenges an excellent article for their purposes, and recommend their use to Public Speakers."
Brown's Bronchial Troches.
[From Mr. C. H. Gardner, Principal of the Rutger's Female Institute, New York.] "I have been afflicted with Bronchitis during the past winter, and found no relief until I found your Troches."

Langley's Antibilious
Aperient Pills.
THE great popularity acquired by these Pills during the Twelve years they have been offered for sale in this Province is a convincing proof of their value, as no undue means of increasing their sale have been resorted to, by puffing advertisements—no certificates published respecting them.
These Pills are confidently recommended for Bilious Complaints or morbid action of the Liver, Dyspepsia, Costiveness, Headache, want of Appetite, Giddiness, and the numerous symptoms indicative of derangement of the digestive organs. Also as a general Family Aperient. They contain no Calomel nor any mineral preparation; are effectual, yet so gentle in their operation, that they may be taken at any time, with perfect safety, by persons of both sexes; nor do they, as do many Pills, necessitate the constant use of Purgative medicine, the ingredients of which they are composed effectually obviating the common difficulty.
