FIRE AT WINGHAM

was noticed issuing from the and bakeshop of W. E. about three o'clock on morning by some of the were going home from Mr's dance which was held in Memorial Hall and the aptly set to work to give and fight the flames.

well was aroused from and in his rush for out of the flames which were in his bedroom over the and his foot went through the floor and he landed head-to the flames. Fortunately able to pull himself up and the stairs but not before he some very severe burns head, body and hands. He reached the door his night on fire. The fire would have made a clean sweep been noticed when it was. Rathwell probably owes his promptness of the boys dance. The fire alarm was used. Many of the town he threw off his coat in a hurry, suggested further trouble. While was going on, the Walkerton an struck and tumbled the first man over on the slippery walk, and on attempting to arise administered a few kicks that so knocked the right out of him, that on his companion coming to his aid, he was bent on getting away than in saying to finish the bout. Seeing his pal preparing to retreat, assault number two made a few wild swings at the ex-warrior, and grabbing up his overcoat, joined his companion in flight over the bridge. Denny was too rejoiced at saving his wad to think of giving chase attempting to have them apprehended, he let them make their getaway at will, while he struck off in the opposite direction for home.

his right hand, as a result of the encounter, was badly bruised and skinned, and is still in a painfully swollen state. Although Denny reported the matter next day to the authorities, no clue to the would-be bandits has yet been found.—Herald & Times.

DIES AFTER ACCIDENT

While skating on a pond near Hepworth Saturday afternoon, George Drinkwater, one of the early residents of Warton, sustained a fall which ruptured a blood vessel and caused his death early Sunday morning.

After the fall he was able, with the assistance of a cane, to proceed to the home of Mr. W. Ferguson, nearby, and after a short rest he ate a light supper and said he was feeling fine. He then played for a short time with the children, and when he began to feel dizzy early in the evening, he retired for the night saying that he did not desire medical attention as he was sure he would be better in the morning.

A few minutes later Mr. Ferguson heard him moaning, and finding him somewhat delirious, he immediately summoned Dr. F. Campbell but nothing could be done to save his life and he expired early Sunday morning. Funeral service was held in Hepworth Monday, followed by interment in Bayview cemetery, Warton. He was sixty-two years of age.

The late Mr. Drinkwater lived in Warton for over forty years and at one time conducted a tailoring business here. Of late years he has been cooking for construction gangs on the Grand Trunk railway in the summer months. Being of a very jovial disposition he made many friends who deeply regretted to hear of his death.—Warton Echo.

WERE POOR SPORTS

The course of true love never runs smooth. This is the candid opinion of a young man near Lucknow who called on his lady—a popular young maiden of Lothian—one night last week. Upon his arrival he found three other of the young ladies' admirers ahead of him. The affair soon developed into a "who could stick it out the longest" game, and, being a persistent, gritty young man coupled with a decided preference shown by the young lady, on in the wee sma' hours of the morning he had the field to himself. The parting must come sooner or later, and when the roosters began to crow, it reminded him that he was still on earth and several miles from home. When he went to hitch up the horse, he found the buggy with the hind wheels on in front and the wheels on behind, high and dry on top of a wagon. All the world loves a lover, but it is no use for the vindictive lovers, who, when they are beaten fair and square, to give vent to their spleen in such unmanly manner, for the world also loves a game loser whether in love or politics.—Ashfield News in Lucknow Sentinel.

A NEW CREED

"I believe that honest stuff can be passed out to honest men by honest methods."

"I believe in working, not weeping; in boosting, not knocking; and in pleasure of serving others."

"I believe that man gets what he goes after, that one deed done today is worth two deeds to-morrow, and that no man is down and out until he has lost faith in himself. I believe there is something doing, there, for every man ready to

SHAREHOLDERS LIABILITIES

Are you a shareholder in any kind of joint-stock or co-operative company? If so, do you know just what your liability is? One of our farm journals recently called the attention of its readers to some of our readers would do well to bear in mind. If a man buys a thousand dollars worth of stock in a joint-stock company he is responsible for that whole amount. He may pay a hundred dollars and then decide that the stock is not worth anything and notify the company that he will pay no more; and the company may confiscate his hundred dollars and sell his stock to another but the original owner while not owning one dollar's worth of stock will still be responsible for the full amount which remains unpaid upon that stock. Moreover, the directors of the co-operative or joint-stock companies have no power to relieve any shareholder of his stock liability. Of course if everything goes well the stock may pay for itself in a few years in dividends, but it is well to remember that if things do not go well a shareholder cannot get rid of his liability merely by writing a letter or declaring that he will not pay. Even if the concern goes bankrupt he must still pay up his stock. This is the law, and it is made to protect the general public, and it is well that every man who buys stock in any concern should realize that he is responsible for the full, paid-up value of that stock, and in the case of a bank he is responsible for twice the amount of the stock he holds. And it is well also to remember that in most of such companies, the policy of the company is absolutely controlled by a very few men, and the ordinary stockholder has no power to vary that policy one iota. We are not advising our readers not to invest in such companies, but they should know exactly what such investment means.

THE HARD TIMES

Many farmers throughout Ontario find it difficult to gather up money enough to pay the high taxes, which this year amounts to about one dollar per acre of their farms. No wonder there is complaining. The contrast between things now and things as they were a couple of years ago is enough to make one sick. A man who called to pay a small account the other day said that he hoped we had seen the worst of the depression. Maybe we have; but these business depressions are periodic and years from the break to a time when recovery was observable. We must just stick it out and make the best of life as we go along. Nobody in particular is to blame. The once fairly smooth-running business machinery of the world is somewhat out of joint. People have lost confidence in the future and all are hesitating. By and by confidence will be recovered. Dealers will look with assurance to the future, and the machinery will speed up again. In the meantime, the farmer, and the other fellow too, will do well to remember that he has enjoyed a few years of unusual prosperity; that they have more comforts and less debts than they ever had before. Check over the situation and see if this is not so. Be careful, but don't be downhearted.

THE AD ON THE FENCE

I love my country's rocks and rills and feign would move from off her hills the billboard ads for liver pills. I love to gaze on some old barn that stands by wood or rock or tarn. I love its curves and graceful lines, its weathered boards from oak and pines, I love its silo, cribs and mows its Plymouth Rocks and brindle cows my farm-born heart with pleasure swells when I inhale its rich, ripe smells. But Oh I hate to see its back, exposed to road or railway track, in glaring paint give doubtful hope on some one's double-action soap, or urge relief from human ills by chewing sixteen-horsepower pills. Around you curve the engine scoots and way-worn travellers press their snouts against the dusty window panes, while tired eyes and weary brains drink in the peace of hills and plains. Forgetting cares and lack of cash, they gaze on fields of succotash. Green growing groves where dryads roost and babbling brooks their spirits boost. To keep these haunts for nymphs adn Pan, the billboard billboard let us ban.—Bob Adams.

It is rumored that the Farmers will protest the election of James Malcolm as member for North Bruce, on the usual grounds. They say that evidence is being accumulated which puts it up to the organization to take action if it is to carry out its mission to reform politics. It is alleged that whiskey as well as money was freely used. Whether or not a protest is entered by the farmers will not be known for some days.
