He, there-fore, listened to Hawkins' offer; which was, that they should transfer their right in the lesses and their improvements to the Rev. J. Rolf, on con-tities that he should pay the back reat; and the three brother should be at liberty to purchase from Roaf 250 acress of the simproduct portion of the lot for the price per acre at which. Mr. Roaf, should buy the whole 1,100 acres from the Cal-ther. The lesses returned house and informed his brothers of the proposition that had been made to him. They were much disantiafied with k, but knew not how to help themselves. It was not occasioned some surprise. People complain of knew not how to help themselves. It was not long after this that Hawkins made a special pil-grimage to the Lainnd, and threatened the parties with immediate ejectment, unless they complied with the terms he had proposed, or paid ap the back rent at once, which he knew they could back rent at once, which he inter intervation the second back rent at once, which he knew they could not do. Six weeks have elapsed since the great fire Hawkins had proposed that all was not Mark Lane took place, and during the whole of Mark Lane took place, and during the whole of that time between 39 and 40 men have been emright, or what was the cause, I do not anow, but for some reason or other, Roaf did not get the deed of the land till about three weeks ago. About that time, the lessees, having been advised on the subject, threatened Mr. Roaf with a suit in Chancery. He, therefore; offered them; a cumbersome articles. Although we have been on the very verge of a European war, it is to be hoped that, for the prethroughout the entire transaction.! A pretty fair offer for a certificate of character, and that not a general one. On the part of the lessees, $2,400 was demanded for the certificate of character, and even at that price they refused to allow Roat to dictate it. $2,000 was eventually offered and accepted. Comment on the affair is unnecessary. It is only sufficient to bear in mind the close con-nection between the agent and the principal—Roat and Hawkins→and that the latter pretended to have the authority of the College for carrying out this piece of extortion. The Hessians received the troops quietly, but tore down everywhere the Commissary's proclama-tions, As soon as the news of the entry of these troops reached General Groeben, the Prussian troops were ordered to march into the electorate, and, in fact, the 18th Regiment of Infantry, with a Squadron of Hussars and a battery of Artillery, have entered the Town of Cassel. It is evident that whetever artangements may have been made at Warsaw, the previous orders issued at Frankfort have not been countermanded. We are told that Prussia has so far been compelled to recede from her position as to admit the validity of the decrees of Frankfort; but I do not accept for truth all the contradictory reports given of the humiliating terms imposed on Prussia. The Emperor Nicho-las has, of course, sided with Austria, and Prussia cat only retrieve her position by putting herself is the right. Out of the conferences at Warsaw have sprung a more marked disposition on the part of Prussia not to cortmit herself further in the Schleswig-Holstein quarrel. Accordingly a truce has been suggreated to the Stadtholderate; but I doubt exceedingly whether, if that body agrees to the terms laid down. Deamark will accede to them.
