diamonds. In short, there was in that bannineteen, and render him oblivious of the realities of a world of dirt and drulger. And that banquet-hall extended, as it were, from Newfoundland to the Detroit river, almost continuous and parallel with the long fine of the procession, and in-it, and paramount to all other excellencies and enjoyments, was the Dance—the whoeling, whirlings giddy, life-giving, soul-absorbing bance! His Royal Highness—the future Mearch—the greatest sovereign of the world to be, the man of mankind, danced here, danced everywhere. At every halting-place, from Newfoundland to the Detroit river, there was the spacious Banquet-hall, liming roand with garlands and fragrant with an atmosphere of roses, the "wolphasous swell," the rustling of satin, silk, and velvet—the brilliant sparkling of gold pearls and dismonds, and the wheeling, whirling; giddy, life-giving, soul absorbing Dance!—And the young Monarch danced with old ladies and young ladies,—danced through the exciting quadrille, the fixing polica, and the exciting q of religion or morals—we will not say that it is even exceedingsly silly for grown up persons, or persons of intelligence and ordinary discretion. It is a fortice annuament of the Show and everything become were it ten fold more boyich than it really is But though not sinful or immoral—though fashionable on ordinary occasions, does it not look rather small to be the highest namement of the society, as though not sinful or immoral—though fashionable on ordinary occasions, does it not look rather small to be the highest namement that a great; cellightened prince?—We are very prone to be severe on many extravagant and, in our view, ridiculous customs and eare monies of nations less enlightened than our selves. But supposing an intelligent people in the Moon, for we presume they are not to be found on earth, an intelligent people totally ignorant—of dancing—suppose them fully acquainted with the intellectual and educational status of the people of Canada, and with their experience and knowledge of the Arts and Sciences, with their railroads, locum titles, and telegraphs. Suppose them also to understand the still greater forces which distinguish us in the name of moral and religious power. In the next place, let then nderstand the Prince's visit, thoroughly—its sature and object, to see the country and the people. The future King, a young man, coming a distance of three thousand miles, over ocean and land for the purpose of seeing vast possessions which were yet to be his own—vast possessions and a great people which he had never seen before and in all probability would never seen before and in all probability would never seen before and in all probability would never the seen before and in all probability would never seen before and in all probability would never the seen before and in all probability would never the seen before and in all probability would never the seen before and in all probability would never the seen before and in the seen that the een before and in all probability, would never ce again. Having been informed of all ese things, let the men of the Moon be vitnesses. of the whole dancing procession, rom Newfoundland to the Detroit river, and what would be their opinions of the entertain-ment? They would assuredly conclude that ment? They would assuredly conclude that dancing is the chief of earthly enjoyments—a kind of sucred homage which the people pay to their sovereigns, and that the visit of the prince was for the purpose of ascertaining the progress of his Canadian subjects in this peculiar cerem my of homage, and to drill them into the perfection of it. The Moonites would, no doubt, have some difficulty in discovering any reasonable connection between the dancing certman and the intellectual, scientific, and philosophical pursuits of the Earth men, and would, probably, connect it with their religious ceremonies as the easiest way of accounting for it.

These strictures are, by no means, intended to relect on his Royal Highness or on the spirit in which he was welcomed in the counting the progress of his Canadian subjects in this permits was for the purpose of ascertaining the progress of his Canadian subjects in this permits was for the purpose of ascertaining the progress of his Canadian subjects in this permits was for the purpose of ascertaining the progress of his Canadian subjects in this permits was for the purpose of ascertaining the progress of his Canadian subjects in this permits was for the purpose of ascertaining the progress of his Canadian subjects in this permits was for the purpose of ascertaining the progress of his Canadian subjects in this permits was for the purpose of ascertaining the progress of his Canadian subjects in this permits was for the purpose of ascertaining the progress of his Canadian subjects in this permits was for the purpose of ascertaining the progress of his Canadian subjects in this permits was for the purpose of ascertaining the progress of his Canadian subjects in this permits was for the purpose of ascertaining the progress of his Canadian subjects in this permits was for the purpose of ascertaining the progress of his Canadian subjects in this permits was for the progress of his Canadian subjects in this permits was for the progress of his Canadian subjects in this permits was for th

Was it the Diliverer hurrying through the dominions of placery on his missions of Mercy, as derea of a song, halting to been the fetters and to set the captives freely smild the greated allabross of joy and rejoicings from the labration and their kindend? Or was it singly the mirriage festival or the pooplas her to the still more popular heireas—the mas who, as the friend and favortice of the people, and on his own estate, is halled with the barty cathering of the earth—a young lad sinctent, well break, well demasts, a speakly latest empire of the earth—a young lad sinctent, well break, well demasts, a speakly latest empire of the earth—a young lad sinctent, well break, well demasts, a speakly latest empire of the earth—a young lad sinctent, well break, well demasts, a speakly latest empire of the earth—a young lad sinctent, well break, well demasts, a speakly latest empire of the earth—a young lad sinctent, well break, well break, and are seen to be sufficient to a throne—the throne of the sightient empire of the earth—a young lad sinctent, well break, well break, and are seen to be sufficient to a throne—the throne of the sightient of the sum of the country of the country—great through and the country—great through the quadrille, the waster of the pools, and the pools, was a proper representation of the same are seen to be sufficient to the sum of the pools, and the pools, and the pollar, was a proper representation of the same are seen to the sum of the pools, and the pollar, was proper representations they are all the pollar than the pollar through the pol githter—in reckless extravagapse, and in noisy loyalty, in so much that a strasger might have concluded that our country is see great workshop of toys, and spangles, and ornamental painting and gilding!—And sen shere was the banquet/hall, hung round with garlands and fragrant with an atmospher of roses; shining and blushing, with everysting that can shine and blush, even up to the Issh of beauty on lovely woman's cheek. There was music with its most "voluntuous swel," and the rustling of satin, silk, and velvet, and the brilliant sparkling of gold, pearls, and fonce of own of the same age we have ever equal to any of the same age we have ever equal to any of the same age we have ever seen in my of the same age we have ever seen in my of the same age we have ever seen in the same age we have ever seen in the support through the same age we have ever the support through the same age we have ever seen ding of gold, pearls, and of bone. We did not learn who were the owners of the various kinds of Stock, but their diamonds. In short, there was in that an quethall, everything that could dazzle, and bewilder, and intoxicate a young ma of niseteen, and render him oblivious of the realities of a world of dirt and drudger.—And that banquethall extended, as it were from Nawtonulland, to the Descriptives.

Now, we are not of those who object to was excellent and the ladies' work was very dancing as singled or immoral. If men and women choose to hop, and skip, and shuffle, most encouraging proofs of industry and common women choose to hop, and ship, and shuffle, and jump in company, for their own mutual amusement, we can see no harm in it, more than if they clapped their hands, or sucked their thumbs in each other's faces; and we see no reason why the dancing worship of the honest Shaker should not be as acceptable as any other external act of worship. We do not, therefore, object to dancing on the score of religion or morals—we will not say that it is even exceedingly silly for grown up permanagement of the Show and everything be-
