SEVENTY-THREE PUZZLE

SEVENTY-THREE PUZZLE.

The child prodigy is explaining to Fido how he may learn his letters and to count at the same time. His blocks are arranged so that numbers may be spelled out in the same manner as seventy-three; that is by proceeding from block to block in a continuous line.

The Kid says there are a great many numbers that cannot be found in his pile of blocks, so do not be discouraged if you have to skip quite a few in counting from one upward.

ANSWER TO THE CAT AND DOG PUZZLE—In the cat and dog puzzle, she goes there and back, a distance of 262 feet, in 54 jumps, but as the dog goes five feet in a bound he has to take 17 leaps each way, which is the same as having to lose 8 feet. Dividing the cat's 54 jumps by 8 and multiplying by 5, shows that the dog would be beaten by 1 foot 3 inches.

THE LOST MILLIONAIRE

BY L. CAMPBELL DAVIDSON.

CHAPTER XIX.

Amazement.

"The last place she was at there was a baby that was going to have millions afterward. She came away from there because he died, and I guess the lady gave her a good big pension." She stopped short and her lip dropped. She cast a glance around the room that seemed to have horror in it. "Why, perhaps, we'll have to give all this up now," she cried. "We were poor enough till she came home to live with us! This house was hers and all the furniture, and what we lived on! Oh, I do hope the lady she lived with will let us have some of it still!"

"Did you know anything about the place your aunt lived at last?" Suter asked in bewilderment. Certainly it could not be from Mrs. Suter that the late nurse held her pension!

The girl shook her head slowly. "No, I never heard her and she talk. Ma knows, I guess. Oh," she broke off suddenly, "what I wanted to speak to you about—she just came back to me, I've a message from aunt to you."

"I'm afraid I excited her yesterday," murmured Suter. The woman's death had filled him with strange feelings.

"No, I don't think it was all that—her heart was weak and it was another bad attack. But she could speak just before her breath went, and she spoke about you. She said to me, 'Tell the gentleman that was here that I lied to him, and I don't want to die with a lie—who knows what'd happen to me? It was all a make-up about being tied and drugged. I wanted to throw him off the scent. Perhaps I harmed the baby. I saw the number on the motor car and the letters. They were Z 103. And I let the baby go and said nothing. I was well paid to hold my tongue.' Then she just gave a noise like this, and she was gone. It was awful sudden."

The girl began to cry again, but Suter did not heed her. He had started to his feet with stifled word. So she was an accomplice! She had aided and abetted! That was why she dared not face his cousin's widow! She had had a hand in the carrying off, and it was to help the scheme she had sent the nursemaid out of sight and hearing while the villainous thing was done!

How he left the villa he never afterward knew. He had a confused memory of a farewell to the girl and some words of sympathy, but it was all a confusion. Presently he found himself walking hard back to Bedford, hurrying as if he were pursued. In his mind was a blur of wonder, of rage, of hope. He had the name and number of the motor. That was at least something.

Morning brought Mrs. Melville's letter. He smiled faintly as he looked at the thick envelope with the crest and the address outside. His cousin's wife had had to come to her with a crestless envelope when she was Mrs. Suter. The Suters did not possess armorial bearings! He tore it open. A subtle scent of some rich, fragrant perfume he could not give a name to floated in his nostrils. That was so like Grace Suter! Always heavy scents and rich clothes and luxurious surroundings! His own Violet was fresh and breezy as a healthy down! The address, "Colforton Court, Yorkshire," was stamped in high relief in two colors. It all looked a trifle vulgar and overdone to Maxwell. But he only took in the vague impression of it in his haste to read what she said.

"Dear Maxwell,—I beg of you not to move any further in the matter of the poor dead baby. You are altogether mistaken if you think he is still alive. These continued rakings up of a terrible subject are horribly painful to me, and I beg you to drop them at once. It is more harrowing to me than I can express to have these suggestions made that he lives. It is more folly to suppose it. I have buried that grief and tried to forget it. Do not rake it into light. I have reason to know that should have been informed of it if he were alive. I need say nothing more on a topic that I never want further mentioned. If you care to come down here for a couple of days' shooting later on, my husband has a capital moor and we shall be glad to see you. Your affectionate cousin, Grace Melville."

The letter dropped to the table. Maxwell sat staring at the white page where the bold, firm writing sprawled. Never in his knowledge of her had Grace Suter been so gracious to him. He did not know whether he were more amazed at that in her letter or in the other part. To forbid him to continue the search for her lost baby when he had told her how certain it was he was not drowned! To tell him she wanted that episode in her mother's life covered over and forgotten. It was monstrous, atrocious! It could not be believed! Was she a woman so inhuman that she could forget the child she bore—the flesh of her own flesh? Did she want to bury the memory of the baby that owed its being to her—that had known no other help or comfort in the world than hers? It was horrible—horrible!

Give the Children Plenty of Fruit

IT HELPS TO KEEP THEM WELL.

In a growing, active child the cells of which the body is composed are being worn out—and replaced—very rapidly. This dead tissue must be gotten rid of somehow, and the danger is that the eliminative organs—the Bowels, Kidneys and Skin—may not do their work well enough. Then the blood becomes poisoned and the child does not thrive.

Nothing has such an invigorating effect on these organs as ripe fruit juices. Apple juice increases the action of the kidneys; other fruit juices stimulate the liver to secrete more bile, and bile produces easy and regular movements of the bowels; others stir up the glands of the skin to throw off more waste matter.

The difficulty is that to get these effects a great deal of fruit must be eaten, and the excess of pulp and woody matter may upset the digestion. The better way is to give the children "Fruit-a-tives," which are tablets made of concentrated fruit juices with valuable tonics added.

"Fruit-a-tives" have the combined effect of the different fruit juices, helping all the eliminative organs to work properly, curing Constipation, toning up the system, and keeping the children plump and rosy. Twenty-five cents for a trial box. Fifty cents for regular size—six boxes for $2.50. Fruit-a-tives, Limited, Ottawa.

AN APPRECIATED PASTOR

Presentation Party Surprises Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Nixon.

An interesting affair occurred on Friday evening, the 8th inst., at Hyde Park, when a large number of church members and adherents met at the manse and surprised their pastor, Rev. Dr. Nixon, by invading his home, unloading a lot of baskets filled with good things, and preparing at once for an enjoyable time.

The situation, however, was soon relieved, when Mr. Thomas Ramsay, one of the party, requested the pastor to come forward. The minister responded, whereupon a kindly worded address was read by Mr. Ramsay, and most substantial fur and beaver-cloth coats were presented to him by Mr. Richard Smith. The address voiced the donors' good wishes for the pastor and Mrs. Nixon, and asked him to accept these coats as a slight tangible token of the love of those who claimed him as their pastor. The address was signed on behalf of the friends by Richard H. Smith, Thomas Ramsay, Harry Hall and Robert Small. Dr. Nixon made a suitable reply, thanking his people for the substantial gift of the love of those who claimed him as their pastor. The address was signed on behalf of the friends by Richard H. Smith, Thomas Ramsay, Harry Hall and Robert Small. Dr. Nixon made a suitable reply, thanking his people for the substantial gift of the love of those who claimed him as their pastor.

At the Christmas season Mrs. Nixon was presented with a well-filled purse by the Hyde Park people as an appreciation of her services as organist of the church. The substantial gift from a devoted people gives evidence of the mutual esteem and confidence existing between them.

Manse refreshments were served, when the gathering broke up, all feeling that the new year would bring them even greater blessings than the past.

OLIVER PREDICTS

Toronto's Mayor Sees Half-Million Population in Decade.

Toronto, Jan. 12.—Starting off with the prediction of a half-million population for Toronto in the next decade, Mayor Oliver struck an optimistic note in his address to the council at the inaugural meeting yesterday. His worship's message was a clear outline of the work done and to be done, and showed among other things a total income of $16,822,160; an increase in bank clearings in five years, $358,154,176; an increase in postoffice receipts in five years, $561,211, the total receipts last year being $1,472,711.

His worship suggests a conference with the street railway management, re extensions, urges an early construction of the water front viaduct, recommends the passage of the license reduction bylaw, censures the extravagance of the cost of education, and recommends that legislation be applied for limiting the expenditure of the board to 5½ mills on the dollar; recommends that the question of water engineers for an exhaustive report, and the establishment of a central criminal court for the county and city.

HAWKING MACHINES

CATARRH SUFFERERS ARE NOTHING BUT HAWKING, SPITTING AND BLOWING MACHINES, SAYS AN AUTHORITY.

Is it possible that in these days when cleanliness and sanitary reform is being preached in the churches, schools and at public gatherings, that thousands of people will continue to suffer from catarrh when there is an absolutely certain remedy always on hand.

Hyomel (pronounced High-ome) is a pleasant, medicated and antiseptic air. Breathe it in and it will cure catarrh. It will stop foul breath, watery eyes, and crusts in the nose.

Mrs. H. W. Wilson, of Johnson street, Wallaceburg, Ont., says: "Yes, we are great friends to Hyomel for the reason that Mr. Wilson has had catarrh for several years and tried several remedies and doctors, but nothing has relieved the trouble like Hyomel. His trouble is from pains across the eyes and a burning or huskiness in his throat. Sometimes much difficulty in breathing, the glands in his eyes and nose swollen and the disease made him literally sick all over. He cannot say enough in praise of Hyomel, and there is nothing that can give better relief to catarrh than this remedy, which we heartily recommend."

A complete Hyomel outfit, consisting of a strong, hard rubber pocket inhaler and a bottle of Hyomel, costs only $1.00, and extra bottles, if afterwards needed, cost only 50 cents each. W. T. Strong sells it and guarantees it to do exactly as advertised. Hyomel also cures asthma, bronchitis, coughs, colds and infants' croup.

Security

Whatever amount of money one puts in an investment—whether it is $10,000 or $100—the first consideration is the security of the investment. If added to the security there is a profitable dividend, the investment becomes an ideal one—exactly the kind that the saving people of Ontario most desire.
