Long Distance a Saving Not an Expense

"What is this charge for $21.60 for Long Distance telephoning in your expense account?" said the Sales Manager of the Blank Manufacturing Company to one of their wide-awake salesmen, "Pretty steep, isn't it?"

"Depends on how you look at it. I thought you might raise some question, so I figured out how much actual saving for the firm that Long Distance telephoning represented:—4 days salary, $40.83, Railroad fares $18.70, Hotel $15.00, a total of $74.53. Deducting the $21.60 you have an actual cash saving to the firm of $52.93—to say nothing of the extra sales I made in

More and more sales and accounting officials are beginning to realize that instead of being an extra expense, Long Distance actually saves money and valuable time when intelligently used.

You intend buying a truck. You have a varying quantity and weight to move from one place to another in each working day.

Can you transport the necessary quantity daily in one-ton loads? If so, you should buy a Ford One-Ton Truck rather than a heavier truck

Because:

- The first cost of a heavier truck is at least three times that of a Ford One-Ton Truck.
- A heavier truck demands the employment of a more expert and consequently a higher paid driver.
- The operating cost of a Ford One-Ton Truck is only a fraction of that of the heavier truck. (4) Service - which is so essential in the
