Mr. A. E. McPhillips delivered a very interesting lecture to the Law Students' Association last evening, dealing with tive Club, whose comfortable premises the formation and growth of the British were formally opened on Wednesday Legal Ethics. At the close of the lecture Mr. McPhillips suggested the advisability of the students having public debates and mock courts, which he considered would prove very beneficial to them.

A VERY interesting meeting, under the auspices of the literary department of the Epworth League of the Centennial Methodist church, was held last evening in the parlors of the church. A debate took place on the subject of the interference of the United States in the dispute between Great Britain and Venezuela. The leaders in the discussion were Mr. Walter Morris, on the negative side, and Mr. Fred Davey, who argued for the affirmative. After a very interesting disthe United States was not justified in interfering in the matter.
