

THE Methodist Magazine

WITH its entrance upon its twenty-second year and forty-third volume, this MAGAZINE makes a special appeal for extended patronage. It is printed in double columns from new type, and will be profusely illustrated with superior engravings. Its programme is the strongest we have ever announced. It will be given in connection with the Guardian or Wesleyan at $1.75, the two for $2.75. Its marked improvements make it worth double its cost, and should greatly increase its circulation.

The articles of stirring patriotism, of biblical illustration, of character study, of the heroism and romance of missions; its illustrated story of Irish Methodism, full of Irish humor, Irish brogue, Irish pathos and Irish piety; its many other serial and short stories will make it more than ever an "ideal family magazine." If the circulation be increased, as we hope, by 500, a substantial increase of size will be made, with greater variety and range of topics. Will YOU be one to help this enlargement? Kindly send your orders early, and, if possible, send also the subscription of some neighbor or friend.
