THE IRISH LAND WAR.

& TORY JOURNAL ON THE SITUATION-IT IS A QUESTION OF SEPARATION-LIFE AND DEATH STRUGGLE BETWEEN THE GOVERNMENT AND THE PEOPLE.

DUBLIN, Oct. 22.—The Express, a Conservative organ, says :- "If the government suffer themselves to be defeated Ireland is lost to the English Crown. The struggle now precipitated involves the whole of the various issues which the politics of this country have been bringing up of late years and more than those issues. If the government be defeated it government of England is in its life and death conflict, involving as one of its possible results the declaration of an independent Ireland, with fleets and armies established at the very door of England." This is perfectly true. If no rents are paid a million men could not evict the nation and keep them out of their houses without levelling every peasant's house to the ground. Even this would not benefit the landlords, for they would get no rents, and when Irish landlords are driven out the English connection ends. Therefore the question which is on every man's lips is, will the "no rent" manifesto ke obeyed? A square answer to that is, in many counties it will be. Rents will be refused and holdings of the best feed, a free supply of pure water defended to the bitter end. The communistic doctrines disseminated during the past two years have fascinated the people. They will not easily give them up. Rents will be paid at first secretly, then with more boldness. But in parts where the feeling is strongest no one can predict the final issue. This is not armed rebellion. The physical force party was never less prepared for action, the British garrison never stronger. The force which the government has to deal with is imperceptible as animacula, impalpable as air. The head is cut off, but the body continues to wriggle. Chopped into small pieces, each part would remain animate. That is, l'arnell and the leaders in jail, each League branch will be fighting for itself. Public meeting and public utterance being crushed secret meeting and secret utterance follow. If the government puts down the land war means must be used the severity of which Mr.Gladstone never contemplated. The people are beginning to say that the time has come when England cannot ignore the five millions of Irish in America, however much it may be her desire or America's interest to disregard them. The sinews of war supplied thence are doubtless the mainstay of the movement, and the landlords' organ confesses to-day that the government cannot yet stop. The events of the past week have made the blood of thousands of moderate Irish leap in their veins. It drags sympathy from even many who confess that Mr. Parnell should never n allowed to go as far as he went But in England there has gone up from the Conservatives and Liberals one great cry of clamoring approval. It is confidently predicted by political observers that revulsion of feeling will follow, and Mr. Gtadstone and the party he represents will go down with the rise of sympathy for the Irish prisoners."

SUGGESTIONS OF AND FOR THE SEA

It is difficult to tell just what kind of weather November will bring. We are likely to have hard frosts, some snow storms, and a foretaste of the coming winter. The fine, mellow weather of October often lingers, and a long Indian Summer may allow the doing of a large amount of out-door work. All in all, this is a month when much may be expected in fair weather and foul, and therefore it is all the more necessary that every good day be taken advantage of, and every bad one be provided against. Should any of the work that properly belongs to last month, be still unfinished, such as sowing winter grain, husking corn, etc., it should be pushed to completion at once. The wheat that is sown in early November does well, though late sowing has nothing in itself to recommend it. Rye may be sown so late that there is only time, before the freezing weather sets in, for the plant to get a fair start. Cornhusking can be done in the barn at any time, but it is more pleasant and profitable to do this work in the field during warm weather. Much grain is thrashed in this month, partly because the thrashers were not earlier available, and the work now is not so pressing. Some farmers suffer from not speaking for the thrashers early in the season. Those with large grain farms may have their own machine, and thus be independent of those who go from farm to farm. Farmers with only a small amount of grain, may do their own thrashing, by hand, and thus make good use of stormy days. The bid. importance of planning for work for days when the help must be in-doors, should be do (ex-div), 195; 45 regular, 1983; 25 do more fully appreciated. There are many things about a farm that may then be done

The harvesting of the roots is largely done this month. The beets and mangels are protected from the light, early frosts by their broad leaves, but so soon as the leaves drop down, growth ceases, and the roots should be dug. Much labor can be saved in removing the roots from the soil by the use of a subsoil property of the roots from the roots plow, running it close to one side of the row thus loosening the roots, when they can be pulled unbroken and with ease. Horse labor should be used upon the farm wherever it is available. The pitting of the roots was treated last month. There is danger in making the heaps too large. Trenches four feet size, and there is no heating if thorough ven-

become worthless, and when thinly spread they become dried and valueless. A moderately thick layer of them spread in some shady place is the best for keeping them fresh and palatable. This is a time when the weeds-if left to grow-will have gone to seed, and such should be gathered and burned -not thrown on the manure or compost hesp. All young weeds, sod and refuse from the root field, etc., may go into and add value to the compost heap. If there is a muck bed at hand, a quantity of muck may be taken out and placed in a dry place to undergo the "weathering" necessary to fit it for a fertilizer to the soil, or better still, as an absorbent of liquid manure in the stable and feeding shed. If muck is used in the farm economy, there should be a muck heap, that is, a supply that has been subjected for a season to the action of the elements, before it is used. Should the season continue to be dry, draining of swamp lands will be in order. It is a serious error to dig the ditches so narrow as is done in many cases. A wide ditch, with very sloping edges, is the only kind that will last for any length of time. It is far better to do thoroughly what isidone, and leave the work to be taken up the next

It is nearly time to consider the winter feeding of farm stock, at leas this is the month to make all the plans and get everything in order for the cold season that will soon be at hand. The question of winter feeding in all its bearings is an important one. There is a constant outgo of fodder, is not home rule which will be the result, but and the problem is to so govern the expension. Therefore diture that the best returns may be obtained. diture that the best returns may be obtained. we do not go too far when we say that the Not only must the animals be "kept," but they must be kept well, that the opening of the new year of pasturage may not find them run down, or, as it is termed, "spring poor." Aside from bringing the stock through in a healthy and vigorous condition, there is the manure to be considered. This should be a good dividend upon the winter's outlay, and therefore it should have a place in the plans for winter feeding. It cannot be too strongly urged that the best manure is made under cover. The same system which gives the best protection and care to the animals will insure the most satisfactory returns in the manure from them. Feeding for manure is more and more to be a leading factor in the winter keeping of farm animals. A plenty and warm quarters, are three essentials in

A foolhardy disregard of that warning symptom is unfortunately very common, and that is the main reason why consumption figures so conspicuously among the causes of premature death. A timely use, inwardly and outwardly, of Thomas' Eclectric Oil, a benign, pure and undeteriorating anti-spasmodic, soothing and healing agent, indorsed and recommended by the faculty, is a sure, prompt and inexpensive way of arresting a cough or cold. Besides being a pulmonic of acknowledged excellence, it is a matchless anodyne for rheumatic or neuralgic pain; cures bleeding or blind piles, sores and hurts of all kinds, and remedies kidney troubles and lameness or weakness of the back. Some of the most experienced and best known stock-raisers and owners of "crack" trotting horses recommend it for diseases and injuries of horses and cattle.
