

depends on what takes place today in the other house. Should there be any possibility of the session terminating, and of Royal Assent taking place tomorrow evening, it is of course the duty of the Senate to stand by to meet the emergency. We shall know, I think, by 11 o'clock tomorrow what the prospects are. If it is then apparent that the session will continue into next week, I shall suggest that we adjourn until some time Monday.

In the meantime, I think it would be wise to adjourn until 11 o'clock tomorrow morning, and I so move.

The Senate adjourned until tomorrow at 11 a.m.
