

Hon. Mr. Martin: After the flowers I sent you, I thought I could change your mind on almost anything. The next time the honourable senator goes to hospital, I shall go and see him but I shall not bring him any flowers.

On motion of Hon. Mr. Flynn, debate adjourned.

BUSINESS OF THE SENATE

Leave having been given to revert to motions:

Hon. Mr. Martin: Honourable senators, it has not been easy, as the Leader of the Opposition knows, to arrange our program for the remaining days of the session. But in spite of the progress—or lack of progress, depending on one's point of view—in the other place, it would seem that the wisest course for us to follow in the period between now and Wednesday next would be to allow certain committees to meet, as they have proposed to meet, to-morrow and on Monday. Because of the interval, when we come back on Wednesday next we will have a fairly heavy load for the remaining portion of the week. However, I understand that the committees that will meet to-morrow and in the interval will finish their work if we give them that opportunity. I am sure it is not necessary to remind members of these committees that they will be meeting during the interval because there is important work to be done.

Therefore, with that in mind, I move that we adjourn now until Wednesday next, June 25, at 2 o'clock.

Motion agreed to.

The Senate adjourned until Wednesday, June 25, 1969, at 2 p.m.
