LEAD IN "THE FOOL"

Channing Pollock's great melodrama, "The Fool," opened last night at the Palace for two days.

It is well nigh a perfect production. The casnera has given much more clibow room for the fine story to stretch itself out full length. Every player seems to have caught the spirit of the production and theme. Of Edmund Lowe, handsome Fox star, who plays the title role of the minister-hero, this is particularly true. He makes the role a living one—carries it beyond illusion of the stage or screen. Among others in the cast are: Brenda Bond, as Clare; Raymond Bloomer, as the Pole, Umanski, and Anne Dale as the little cripled Mary Margaret, anound whom much of the climactic drama centres. Mary Thurman, as the Margalet and the polace of the praise.

It stands out boldly and frankly against the system of pre-sent day society that permits of capi-tal punishment. It goes a step further by arraignment of the system of jurisprudence that permits the execution of victims convicted by circumstantial each other.

In quality of entertainment, "Capital Punishment" reaches a high standard. In the matter of education, it serves its purpose. There have been prison pictures produced before, but none with such a wealth of detail, such a careful adherence to realism.

Lavishly produced and sympathetically directed, the picture is certain to attract a great deal of attention. Especially will this be true when the fact is realized that it is good, wholesome entertainment, despite the seriousness of its theme.
