

CLOSER TOUCH WITH WEST INDIES URGED

Trinidad Visitor Sees Fine Opportunity in Mutual Co-operation.

W. E. Grant, of Trinidad, British West Indies, a graduate of the University of Toronto School of Business Administration and Commerce, sees a wonderful opportunity for the development of trade between Canada and the West Indies. What is needed more than anything else was for the people of the two countries to get closer together and to learn to know each other better, he declared.

Personal representation of firms in Canada doing business in the West Indies he suggested as one of the means of accomplishing this. The people did not seem to understand each other well enough, he thought, and as a result, did not know prevailing conditions in the other's country, with the only natural result, misunderstanding.

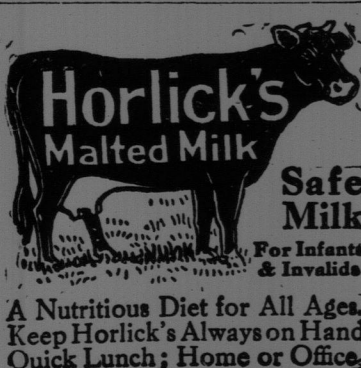

There was misunderstanding of another nature, however. Until Canada and Great Britain adjusted their business relations there was little chance of the West Indies and Canada knowing just where they were. Business relations depended largely on what the relations between Canada and Great Britain were, and as no one seemed to understand just what they were there was little chance of knowing what to do in the case of the West Indies.

Mr. Grant did not see why the parallel services of the Royal Mail line and the Canadian Government Merchant Marine should survive much longer. The Government owned the one and subsidized the other. One was competing against the other for the trade and this condition of things would not last for long, he believed.

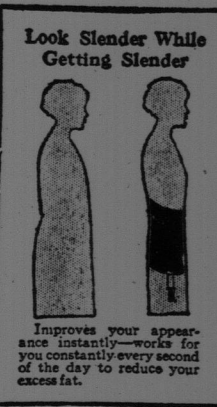

The difficulty was that the Government boats were not equipped with refrigerating plants, nor had they any accommodation for passenger service. It would be necessary to have a new fleet of boats altogether which would combine freight, refrigeration and passenger facilities.

At the present time Mr. Grant did not think that business conditions warranted an increase in the steamship service. But he could see why an improvement would result in more trade. This latter referred particularly to the fruit trade with Jamaica. Although the United Fruit Company controlled the greatest part of the fruit trade, yet he could not see why Canada, having a fleet of ships equipped for fruit-carrying business, could not cut in on and increase the direct importation of fruit into this country.

The situation summed up, said Mr. Grant, was that Canada depended on the West Indies and the West Indies depended on Canada. There was no hope so far as he could see of political union but he could see the advantage of commercial union.

WILL SAVE PEOPLE A LOT OF TROUBLE

C. N. R. Puts Immigration Officials on Halifax-Yarmouth Trains.

F. W. Robertson, district passenger agent of the C. N. R. with headquarters in Moncton, arrived in the city last night from Yarmouth, where he had been in connection with the placing of immigrant inspectors on the trains between Yarmouth and Halifax to assist in getting those going to the United States straightened away before they reached the boat. The new regulations put into effect some little time ago by the United States, Mr. Robertson said, were making it rather hard for travelers in many cases.

The regulations set forth that the person must secure a consular visa, birth certificate, picture and other things. Sometimes it is necessary for him to return to his home town to get them. This entailed a lot of extra expense to the travelers. The D. A. R. has a man on the trains and the C. N. R. are now doing likewise.

The placing of a man on train No. 18, into St. John, to collect head taxes was being seriously considered but nothing definite had been done as yet. If the man was on the train there would be no delay at the wharf and passengers would be enabled to proceed immediately to the boat. The arrival of the train here at 10 minutes to 7 o'clock gave the travelers very little time in which to secure head tax and held the boat back unnecessarily.

Thinks Advertising Did It.

Mr. Robertson thought that the tourist travel, both by rail and boat, as well as by automobile, had this year been much greater than last. Some 620 persons were landed at Yarmouth yesterday. Digby, he said, was full of tourists. The influx he was convinced was the result of advertising.

DEATHS

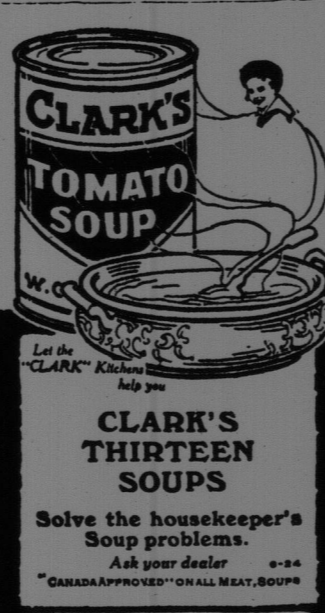

Mrs. Harriet H. Lindsay.
After a two months' illness Mrs. Harriet H. Lindsay, widow of John J. Lindsay, died at the home of her son, H. L. Lindsay, 386 Union street, yesterday. She leaves one son and one daughter to mourn. H. L. Lindsay, her only son, is an employee of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Her daughter, Miss Harriet M., who was a nurse in a hospital in Providence, R. I., during her mother's illness had been caring for her here. Mrs. Lindsay's husband, a lifelong resident of this city, died 14 years ago. The funeral, which will be private, will be held tomorrow afternoon.

BELIEVES ONTARIO WILL REMAIN DRY

F. M. Baker, alderman of the city of Toronto, a former chairman of Ward 8, the largest in that city, said in an interview last night that it was his personal opinion and he felt that it was the opinion of every thinking man that prohibition would be sustained in Ontario when the day, October 23, arrived for the vote.
A tremendous amount of good had been accomplished in the province during the years of prohibition, he said. No longer was there to be seen any intemperance in the streets. The working man was saving, and the merchants were benefiting by this thrift. That the men were saving had been verified by bank managers, in whose concerns many small savings accounts had been opened.
As far as business in Toronto was concerned, Mr. Baker thought that this fall would see a return to old conditions. Stocks were low in Toronto. The merchants were buying in many cases from hand to mouth. All the old stock which had accumulated had been gotten clear of. Business, he thought, was returning to that stage when business was business, namely, when a man had to sell an article, not simply have to offer it and have it taken. He had to get right down to hard facts and put the sale across.
Conditions had been bad in Toronto due to the great deal of unemployment which had lasted for a longer period than ever before. This was being bettered slowly.

PREPARE TO INVOKE LAW.

Of the three hotel proprietors who had not taken out licenses for their establishments and against whom the Sub-district Board of Health was to take legal action, one only has complied with the requirements and secured a license. This hotel is in the county. There remain one hotel in the city and one hotel in the county which have not yet had licenses issued and the Sub-district Board of Health is preparing to proceed against them.

SENT UP FOR TRIAL.

The preliminary hearing in the case in which Charles Green is charged with stealing suits of clothing and overcoats from the store of John L. Collins, 189 Union street, was concluded in the police court yesterday afternoon. After Sergeant Detective Power gave evidence about making the arrest the accused was committed to trial at the next session of the County Court.
