EASE OFF YOUR OLD HEART TODAY

See "The Turn in the Road" at The Imperial - It is a Spring Tonic

"The Turn in the Road" at the Imperial today and the remainder of the week, is the sort of screen drama that makes you forget you are watching a picture and that is just what so many picture fans fail to do. The story is simply told and tremendously human, and it will make you cry. When a picture does that, it has the whole-hearted support of the audience and the women are the ones to advertise by word of mouth. And, after all there is hardly a man who doesn't like to see a picture now and then to satisfy himself that his dear ducts haven't run dry.

FIVE FAMILIES BURNED OUT

Child Gives Alarm in Brussels Street Fire in Early Morning

A two and a half story house owned by Charles Bruger at 282 Brussels street was practically destroyed by fire this morning at about five o'clock. The origin of the fire is unknown, but it is presumed it started from a pan of hot ashes in the rear of the building, as that house was badly damaged. Thomas Earle, one of the tenants, saw the fire on the roof and gave the alarm. There were five families in the house, including J. Jeffries, who was the proprietor of a grocery store on the ground floor; Thomas Earle, Joseph Doucet on the second floor; Charles Conway and Mr. Chapman on the top floor. The fire department responded quickly, but despite their efforts the building was badly gutted. The tenants in the house had no insurance except Mr. Jeffries, who has a small amount on the stock in his store; the household goods were totally destroyed.

Seven-year-old Leo Conway, whose home was on the top floor, was first to give the alarm. His bedroom was in the rear of the house almost directly over the shed in which it is thought the blaze originated. The child made an alarm for his mother, though he was merely calling out in a dream. However, in a few moments he dashed into his mother's room with the warning that the house was on fire. Mrs. Conway had barely time to wrap herself in a fur coat, pick up her little daughter and escape through the opening flames to the street, two flights below.

The unfortunate families in the house lost practically everything, including clothing. The building itself is a wreck, having its roof burned off and all the walls impaired. It will have to be almost completely rebuilt. Charles Bruger has it insured for a small amount. The early hour of the blaze—a time when all the occupants of the house were asleep—made the life risk a serious one during a recent western fire to make great headway before being seen. The burned-out families are living temporarily with friends and relatives. They say it is difficult to rent new quarters.

ALARM FROM BOX 58

An alarm from box 58 was rung at noon today for a slight fire in a garage on banks in the city by today's Montreal train.

Geo. W. Parker of Gooderich street, whose illness with pneumonia gave his household and friends much concern of late weeks, is improving slowly at the hospital. His son, Ralph, will return from the war on the Olympic.

Dr. Geo. A. Bagdady is in Upper Canada street. Captain Thomas A. Ross and Mrs. Ross are residing at the LaTour Apartments, having returned from Fredericton. Captain Ross is in the district pay office.

WORK AT SYDNEY STOPPED

Sydney, N. S., May 15—Construction work on the $50,000 plate mill was discontinued this morning on instructions from the Dominion Iron & Steel Company. It had been expected that part of the 250,000 tons of plate which had been contracted for by the government would be turned out next fall.

THE CANTINE INQUIRY

This morning's session was taken up with addresses of counsel. Yesterday afternoon, Brigadier-General Macleod, recalled and submitted in evidence a report on canteen conditions at Sussex made by Colonel Deacon. The defence was that the canteen was conducted at the stand for the rest of the session. He explained that of necessity he had left the management of the canteen to a member of his staff, who was a very busy man with other matters. As soon as he was told there was a report he expressed his willingness to make it good and he did so. He repudiated the idea that he ever intended or had been guilty of the slightest dishonesty in the matter. He felt that he was responsible for the special fund and had so acted. When he found that he would pay every cent of any shortage, that was why it was kept in his name—because he was the responsible head. The special fund was intended to pay expenses in connection with the battalion for which there was no government allowance. Witness had paid out of his own pocket large sums of money from the time he raised the 25th right through to the time of this inquiry, for expenses in connection with the battalion. The inquiry is to go on today.

THE LATE DR. CHANDLER. (Moncton Times.)

A host of friends in Moncton and elsewhere in the province will sincerely mourn the passing of Dr. Edward Botsford Chandler, which occurred last evening at his home in Botsford street. The late Dr. Chandler was born in St. Andrews about seventy-one years ago, being a son of the late Hon. James W. Chandler and Julia Hatheway. His father represented the county in the New Brunswick parliament for a number of years previous to Confederation, and had the distinction of being the first judge of the Westmorland and Albert county court. Dr. Chandler graduated from the New York College of Physicians and Surgeons in 1871 and practised first in Shelburne, where he remained for about two years. He then returned to Baie Verte, at that time a flourishing centre in the eastern end of the county. There he spent about eight years, and some of his most interesting reminiscences in later years were of that period. In 1879 he came to Moncton and has resided here ever since with the exception of about a year spent in Bridgeport, Conn. In Moncton Dr. Chandler was recognized as a skillful physician and surgeon. He was successful to a marked degree in the practice of his profession and his fame as a diagnostician extended over a considerable part of this province and Nova Scotia, where his services were largely sought in a consulting capacity. Seemingly brusque in manner at times, he loved his profession and was a true and candid friend. In late years his eyesight failed him and he was obliged to wear glasses, which caused him mental and bodily distress. His eyes were successfully operated upon in Montreal some four years ago, but his health had been shattered and a death was due to heart failure with other complications.

Dr. Chandler is survived by his wife, who was successful to a marked degree in the practice of his profession and his fame as a diagnostician extended over a considerable part of this province and Nova Scotia, where his services were largely sought in a consulting capacity. Seemingly brusque in manner at times, he loved his profession and was a true and candid friend. In late years his eyesight failed him and he was obliged to wear glasses, which caused him mental and bodily distress. His eyes were successfully operated upon in Montreal some four years ago, but his health had been shattered and a death was due to heart failure with other complications.

Dr. Chandler is survived by his wife, his daughter, the late Robert Forsythe, barrister of Hamilton, Ont.; also by his son, Edward B., a medical student in his second year at McGill; James W. Chandler, C. E., a brother, for some years provincial engineer in Newfoundland, now resident in Moncton; is the sole surviving member of the family. The late Robert Parker Chandler, prominent in the business life of New York, was a brother, and Miss Julia, a sister, died recently in St. John; also his mother, who lived to a very advanced age.

The late doctor was an Anglican in religion, a Conservative in politics and until his health failed took a lively interest in affairs.
