CLARK CASE WILL BE AGAIN POSTPONED

FREDERICTON, N. B., Nov. 15.—The Crown case reserved in re Clark, convicted in the St. John Circuit Court, came before the Supreme Court this morning on the conclusion of the business before it. The Attorney General on behalf of the Crown stated that the stenographer's notes had not been received.

After the last sitting of the court he had endeavored to communicate with Mr. Devine the stenographer and learned that he had gone to New York and that he was in ill-health. He wired Mr. Devine that the case was set down for argument November 16th, and that it was absolutely necessary that the full proceedings should be ready for the court on that date. Mr. Devine replied by wire that it would be impossible for him to have them ready by that time.

The Attorney General then wired again that he could not forward all the evidence by that date if he would forward the judge's charge and one or two of the witnesses' evidence, the counsel in the case might be able to make argument. He had received a letter from Mr. Devine dated Nov. 11th, written after he had sent both telegrams.

In this letter which Dr. Pugsley read to the court Mr. Devine says "Had I not been ill, you would have had the Clarke case finished and forwarded before this. Am now recovering and if an adjournment could be made for a fortnight would be pretty sure to have the case ready."

In equity this morning Judge Barker dismissed the application made by the Cumberland Telephone Co. for an injunction against the Central Co. entering into the proposed merger. Judge Barker decided that all the rights held by the Cumberland with the Central Co. will be preserved under the merger, but he did not support the contention that these same rights applied over the N. B. Co.'s lines.

DEATH OF AN INFANT MAY LEAD TO AN INVESTIGATION BY THE CORONER

Samuel Albert, a French boarding house proprietor, with his home at No. 13 Johnston street, had a tale of misery to unfold in the police court this morning.

He was armed with a written statement which he permitted to the court, as his English is very poor. The letter conveyed the fact that about a month ago a man and a woman came to the Johnston street house and took board and three dollars a week and the woman $2.50. The woman has given birth to a child and Albert requests the court to pay $100 for disgracing his house.

The magistrate sent the Frenchman away, telling him to see a lawyer or Albert has beside the letter slips of paper with names on them, and told the Star a story which, if true, may result in an investigation. He says that a man giving his name as Riley called at his house about a month ago with a woman and engaged board. He lived with the woman as her husband until last Friday night, when the woman gave birth to a child. Albert says that when the child was born Riley told him he was not the father of it, and he left the sick woman alone in the house, did not pay for her care, deserted her, and has not called at the house since.

Albert says that he sent for a doctor and care for the woman, but he does not know who the doctor is.

The unfortunate woman was deserted by Riley on the night of the birth, and was left to suffer alone. The infant lingered between life and death until yesterday when it died.

The Albert house is a hard looking place today. The unfortunate mother is ill and without money and a burden on the poor Frenchman, the week old dead infant is lying in the house without any attempt being made to bury it, for the cost of a funeral seems to be the drawback. Albert stated this morning that the child should be buried tomorrow, but so far no undertaker has been engaged.

The whole expense in the unfortunate affair appears to be left on Albert, who a month ago took the couple in, who he says that it was not until the birth of the child that he learned that Riley and the girl were not married.

The girl is a North Shore French-Canadian and is named Petrie. Once before she was confined in the St. John's hospital, where she was taken to the case.

Coroner D. E. Berryman says that he had not been notified of the child's death, but that under the circumstances the matter should be looked into. The proprietor of the boarding house does not seem anxious to look after the corpse and the unfortunate sick woman, but he wants to make Riley pay.

There is every possibility of the police taking hold of the affair and making an investigation.
