A dispatch received last night from McAdam states that Semple, the Fredericton man who is supposed to have been lost in the blizzard of Saturday, has not as yet been found, although the discovery of the bodies of three of the four horses he drove establishes beyond doubt the fact of a serious mishap having occurred. Semple attempted, it is understood, to cross the Saint Droix river near Vanceboro during the height of the blizzard.

Excavations Reveal Site of City That Succumbed to Hosts of Joshua.

BERLIN, Feb. 2—The Deutsche Orient Gesellschaft publishes interesting details of excavations which it has details of excavations which it has carried out on the supposed site of the ancient Jericho, a collection of mounds in the vicinity of the village of Ericha, near the Dead Sea. After a preliminary investigation an expedition was dispatched last year consisting of Professor Sellin, Herr Langenegger, a government architect, and Professor Watzinger, an archeologist, of Rostock.

The excavations, which were conducted from January 2 till April 8, gave most interesting results. The site investigated was a pleateau 400 yards long by 180 broad, containing seven mounds. After a week's digging the exterior wall of the vanished city was encountered at a depth of eight feet below the surface. The excavators were astonished at the technical excellence of the construction.

TRURO, N. S., Feb. 2.-The McLellan cup will be taken to Halifax to-morrow morning. From the beginning the metropolitan players made ends of all kinds, no score being made on one of the Truro rinks for the first five ands. The players seemed to enjoy themselves thoroughly, however, and their playing was watched by a much larger concourse of people than the Chatham-Truro game here last Thursday. There was constant attention throughout the game, Truro sympathizers feeling that the old habit of the Truro players to pull up at the finish would give them the victory, but in this instance no such luck followed, although Cox's rink, which for twelve ends stood in an indifferent position, made sufficient gains to give them one point over their opponents. At one time Halifax was nineteen points ahead but finished 51 to 39.

Westville is next on the list of challengers for this perpetual competition. At the close cheers were given for both visitors and losers and a pleasant hour and a half was spent at he Truro players to pull up at the fin-

The game was rough, and the few spectators present were disgusted with the play. Both teams roughed it, but in casualties Sackville suffered most. In the second half, just before the end of the game, Norman Few cett, playing rover for Sackville, was cross-checked by Spence, Moncton's point, and knocked out for fifteen or twenty minutes.
