

SOIL BLOODED ON RESULT FROM ACTION OF THE CZAR

Parliament is Dissolved and Revolution is Imminent.

Time Fixed for Convocation of Newly Elected Assembly is March 5, 1907 — Terror Already Reigns in St. Petersburg

ST. PETERSBURG, July 21.—Russia's first experiment in parliamentary government came to an end tonight with the promulgation of two imperial ukases, the first dissolving the present parliament and providing for the convocation of its successor on March 5, 1907, and the second proclaiming the capital of Russia to be in a state of extraordinary security, which is only infinitesimally different from full martial law.

The texts of the ukases, both of which are addressed in the usual form to the ruling senate are as follows: "According to paragraph 106 of the fundamental law which orders the imperial parliament dissolved and fix the time for the convocation of the newly elected parliament for March 5, 1907."

"Regarding the time for the new elections to the imperial parliament we will later issue special indications."

The text of the second ukase follows: "In consideration of a report of the council of ministers presented to us regarding the necessity in the future for the preservation of order and public safety in the city or province of St. Petersburg, we consider it necessary to declare in the above city and province, instead of the state of reinforced security which now prevails there, a state of extraordinary security."

The prefect of the city and the governor of the province are instructed with the rights appertaining. "The ruling senate will not fail to take proper measure to place this into effect."

With these pithy but momentous orders which were promulgated at 3 o'clock this morning, Emperor Nicholas backed to where she sits ago, in the full grip of autocracy and irresponsible government, wiping out for six months at least the whole structure of parliament erected at such cost. There is but little time for the convocation of the new assembly will still further postpone this time, unless the new parliament promises to be more amenable than the present.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 22.—With the imperial ukase dissolving parliament, which was promulgated early this morning, the curtain rose upon possibly the last act in the great drama of the Russian revolution. The people and the government now stand face to face, and upon the loyalty of the army depends the immediate issue.

Even should the government, however, succeed in getting on the lid the victory probably will only be temporary and simply confine the stem of the final explosion. No one doubts the severity of the storm which will arise in the country in response to the emperor's dispersal of the men whom he welcomed two months ago in the winter palace as the "best men in Russia."

The work of gathering in revolutionary agitators began immediately after the ukase placing St. Petersburg in "a state of extraordinary security" was promulgated, and hundreds of arrests were made before daylight.

The powers conferred upon M. Von Der Launitz, prefect of police, and M. Zinovief, governor of the province, make them little short of petty dictators. Searches and arrests can be made without process of law, newspapers forced to suspend publication and persons deposed by administrative order without trial. Public and private meetings are forbidden. Those

MEMBERS OF RUSSIA'S OUTLAW PARLIAMENT TO SOLELY CONCLUDE

Will Adopt a Manifesto That People be Summoned to Stand by the Dispersed Members as a Body.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 22.—An imperial ukase relieves M. Gorenkyin of the premiership and appoints M. Stolypin his minister. He also retains his present post of minister of the interior. M. Stuchinsky, minister of agriculture, has resigned. The number of parliament members who are gathered here at the Hotel Belvedere, awaiting the arrival of Count Herden, M. Stakovich and other prominent members of the right before opening the session at which will be adopted a manifesto that the people be summoned and that they stand by the dispersed assembly members of all shades of opinion, especially the constitutional democrats, group of toll and socialists.

The meeting will be called to order a regular session of parliament. The dining room of the hotel where the members are assembled is in great contrast to the imposing surroundings of the Tauride palace. It is crowded to suffocation with excited and perspiring deputies, who are gathered according to party affiliation and informally caucusing and debating tactics and discussing the text of their appeal, for which a general drafting commission is now being chosen. There is a strong possibility that all parties will come to an agreement on the appeal, as the members are not disposed to insist on an over-violent manifesto demanding the immediate summoning of a constituent assembly by revolutionary means, to which the constitutional democrats object.

The constitutional democrats appear to be discontented over the dissolution of parliament, but the members of the group of toll and the socialists are in an exceedingly bad mood. The corridors of the hotel are crowded with correspondents and sympathizers arrested may, if it is desired, be tried by military courts and summarily executed. Although the news of the dissolution of parliament spread like wildfire among the members of the various political organizations, the masses here generally are hardly awake to the momentous event. The news traveled fast in the country, and the general expectation in that the parliamentary system is being dispersed at the final blow to their hopes, will rise en masse.

The proprietors have been preparing for months for just such a provocation to declare open war. It is impossible to see the dissolution of parliament with which the constitutional democrats learned the news. Although it had bruted for the past three days, the ukase was received by them in blank amazement. Even Saturday night's caucus did not believe the government would dare to take the threatened step and seriously discussed the attitude to be taken towards Minister of the Interior Stolypin when he appears in parliament tomorrow to answer interpellations.

The government undoubtedly calculated on catching the opposition off its guard, but if it expected to strike terror to the hearts of the members of parliament, it has failed miserably. Some time ago, when dissolution seemed imminent the various groups of the opposition virtually agreed to follow the example of their French compatriots of the same general and most, it drove out of Tauride palace, wherever and whenever circumstances dictated until a constitution was firmly established. After a hurried secret conference this morning it was decided on a course of the most determined and even by train. Whether word was given them to meet at Viborg or Heisingfors is unknown, but it seems probable that Finland, in future Russian history, will become synonymous with "the tennis court" of the Russian revolution. Even Count Heyden, the leader, and other members of the right are understood to have departed. It is quite improbable, however, that parliament as a body will attempt to formally set up its authority against that of the government.

The constitutional democrats and intellectuals generally recognize that they have no weapon to fight the government bayonets. The initiative, therefore, will naturally fall to the proletariat. This the social democrats and the group of toll in parliament all along have recognized, and the most elaborate preparations have made to repeat the tactics of last fall and paralyze the country with a general strike. But the plans at this time have been perfected with much more deliberation and involve not only the paralysis of cities, telegraphs, railroads and all means of communication throughout the empire, but a complete strike of peasants in the country as well. They confidently believe the loyalty of the troops has been so shaken that the military supports of the government will give way and that when put to the test the army will be divided against itself.

A council of workmen's deputies already has been elected at Moscow and ers with the members of parliament, among these latter are a number of the members of the council of the empire. ST. PETERSBURG, July 22.—An imperial manifesto issued tonight which is regarded both as a threat and an appeal to the emperor's millions of Mujiks to join in suppression of the revolution under promise of land, summing the "faithful sons of holy Russia." Many liberals consider this a direct incitement of the Black Hundreds. In spite of the excitement the day passed in comparative quiet in the capital, and street rioting only began with the advent of darkness; but the collisions generally were on a small scale.

At Sadovia crowds with stones had the gentlemen and the police on the run when a squadron of Cossacks came to the rescue and charged and dispersed them with their whips. The trouble arose out of a raid on a tea house by Russian patriots, that is, Black Hundreds, before their arrival the Cossacks, who fired three volleys in the air. A regular battle with stones ensued. Three officers and a number of policemen were wounded and scores badly beaten by the Cossacks, but no one was killed.

With a similar council here in conjunction with the group of toll of parliament a rising of the people will be engineered. The leaders at a recent meeting at Moscow issued instructions to branch organizations throughout the empire warning them against premature divided action and specifically instructing them when the signal was given, to extend the strike gradually and carefully, avoiding collisions at the beginning. M. Chernoff, who aspired Friday from the office of the Cispala when a raid was made upon a sitting of the central committee of the social revolutionary party, which was being held there, is regarded as one of their most skillful leaders.

A STRONGER PREMIER. While M. Stolypin, who succeeds M. Gorenkyin, as premier, undoubtedly is a much stronger man than his predecessor, he probably will be unequal to the task of piloting the country through the revolutionary upheaval which is just ahead and the general belief is that a dictatorship must come soon.

Perhaps the most remarkable feature of the events connected with the dissolution of parliament is that the government carefully avoided notifying the representatives of the foreign powers of what was coming. No word of official warning was received even by the representatives of Russia's ally, France.
