

MAUD'S GUEST.

BY FRANCES E. WALLACE.
"It would just upset everything!"
"What would? You look as if you were feeling the fate of nations."

"Oh, it's a crazy notion of Maud's," answered Rob, who was perched on the railing, tapping his foot with his tennis racket.
"Why, you see, Tom," Maud explained, "I went down to the village to call on Miss Munroe, that old acquaintance of mother's, who has come to board at the hotel."

with pillows, and carefully driven home by Maud, while Rob followed on foot.
Then what a delight it was to find her! In a large, airy room, fragrant with Mayflowers! After Sue had given her a cup of hot broth, and after darning the room, had left her alone, Maud could be seen dropping into the sleep she so much needed.

"I don't want her for the fun of it," answered Maud. "Everybody says I am lazy, and I don't enjoy the prospect of carrying trays and waiting on an invalid. What do you say, Agnes?"
"Was just thinking," the eldest sister replied slowly, "that I have heard mother say there would be so many crooked lives if more were laid out by the Golden Rule."

SOPHIA'S NEW NAME.

R. H. CHASE.
"Thers' fire on the mountain!
Run boys, run boys,
Fire on the mountain!
Run boys, run boys!"

"Sophie," called a voice around the corner, putting a most forcible accent on the last syllable, and a dark curly head just showed a little.
"Who's that?" asked Maud, and a second or two later the head had been a moment before gone notice that the missile had been true to its mark.

QUESTIONING.

BY MRS. S. E. LOWELL.
When the street's gorgeous splendor
Fades away or veils and hills,
And the twilight calm and tender
With sweet peace our spirit thrills.

"I don't know how I have tried since that day Miss Butler talked to us so sweetly about the new commandment and the new name, and now I have done worse than ever."
"Mother used to call me her little Peace," said Sophia, "and I love the name, but I do not desire it. There is no peace in me. There isn't a day that I don't get mad, and do some awful thing or say something that would bite my tongue out for, and I would much sooner go to Parson Fairweather than to father, and Aunt Mary don't understand girls. Sometimes I think she was never young but was born good, and as old as she is now, and Rob would only laugh and tease worse. No, I must be good without help from anybody, if I ever can be good at all."

Pains in the Joints

Caused by Inflammatory Swelling
A Perfect Cure by Hood's Sarsaparilla.
"it affords me much pleasure to recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla. My son was afflicted with great pain in the joints, accompanied with swelling so bad that he could not get up stairs to bed without crawling on hands and knees. I was very anxious about him, and having read Hood's Pills at once got well, and promptly and effectually, on the liver and bowels. etc."
