

UNION GOING INTO RETAIL BUSINESS

Ladies' Garment Workers to Have Their Own Factories and Stores—Say They Will Sell Cheaper.

New York, July 19.—(The Associated Press)—Frustrating in the women's garment industry will be fought with union owned shops, factories and stores by the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union.

This became known here today when officials of the union announced that it has a committee at work laying the foundation for the first group of union owned factories, which are expected to be in operation by next Spring.

The union proposes to sell its output to consumers through their own stores.

The first group of six factories will be established in New York, together with a number of union stores, union officials said. Others will be located in Chicago and Philadelphia.

Ample funds for the factories have been provided by the International Union, Mr. Schlessinger said, and later, as more money is needed "union shop and factory assessments" will be levied to finance the project until it is put on a paying basis.

"We expect to be turning out medium and high priced garments for the Spring trade," A. Baroff, secretary of the union said. "The three factories will probably employ about 1,000 workers to be selected by the union."

They will pay higher wages than are paid by employers in the garment industry and a seven-hour work day will be in effect, he added.

The workers now work an eight hour day with a half holiday on Saturday.

The local unions of the Ladies' Garment Workers, according to Mr. Baroff, are also taking steps on their own initiative to defeat the high cost of living by establishing co-operative restaurants and stores.

A number of stores have been started in New York and a restaurant is being operated in Philadelphia, he said.

ITALIAN ROYAL FAMILY GROWING UP

Taking Their Part in Activities Among the Younger People of Italy.

Rome, July 19.—(The Associated Press)—The children of the Italian royal family are rapidly growing up and begin to form the centre of young people belonging to the aristocratic families of the nation, who are full of enthusiastic patriotism and desire to put the world to rights after the sad years of the war.

The eldest, Princess Yolanda, is about 19, and has inherited much of the splendid dark beauty of her mother, Queen Elena. Princess Laila, who is only 17, is a gentle girl with great charm of manner, who resembles rather the Princesses of the House of Savoy.

They have all been brought up most wisely, living in their open air life in the castle belonging to the royal family in their native Piedmont, or in the beautiful hunting lodge of Castel Porziano about 20 miles from Rome, on the shores of the Mediterranean, where, especially in the summer, they held in stores of health and happy memories for their future life.

Prince Humbert, the heir apparent, has shot up into a fine looking boy of nearly 16, who is devoted to every kind of sport, in the intervals of the somewhat severe mental training, which he is undergoing to fit him for his future position.

Princess Yolanda, who considers herself now quite a grown up young lady, delights to accompany her father for motor expeditions in the mountains and lately went with him to spend some hours of serious study of the latest excavations at Ostia, the port of Rome in ancient imperial days, which, perhaps, even better than Pompeii, gives an idea of how people lived in a seaside provincial town 1,700 years ago.

Among the latest discoveries has been that of houses of two or three stories, evidently let out in separate apartments, just like the houses in Rome today, while others seem to have been lodging houses where a single owner let two or three rooms to several families, so that life must have been very much like what it is now.

Our City is now being placed on record for or against modern hotel accommodation.

If St. John Says "No" the great corporations who have made this hotel possible will withdraw their support

CITIZENS One of the most difficult problems confronting cities today is the provision for the greatly increased hotel traffic, which has developed since the introduction of motor vehicles. The first step in such relief is obviously that of providing the necessary hotel accommodation.

CITIZENS The taxpayers of a city are the shareholders in that city. As such they should be vitally interested in its prosperity. Unless the city pays them dividends in the shape of rising real estate values and increased trade, they are losing money on their investment.

A hotel of this size will of course necessitate the employment of a very large staff of St. John men and women—an other steady industry.

The $375,000 solicited of the investing public of St. John will be thrice repaid in construction wages, materials and equipment before the hotel is ready for operation.

THIS IMPORTANT MATTER NOW RESTS WITH THE CITIZENS OF ST. JOHN!

The Olympic Games Open On August 14

At Least Forty Thousand Spectators Expected in Beautiful New Stadium—Three Thousand Athletes Have Been Entered as Contestants in Games.

Antwerp, Belgium, July 19.—The Olympic games which are to open on Aug. 14th this year, will be played in the beautiful new stadium at Holo, which is now Antwerp, and is in every way suited to be compared with its smoky, sooty namesake across the Atlantic.

Three thousand athletes have been entered as contestants in the games, and at least 40,000 spectators are expected. Every room in every hotel in Antwerp has been engaged in advance for the month of August and September.

The exhibition of Congo Colonial Products is now being held in the main city park. Near the stadium there is a flower show, an exhibition of automobiles, motor boats, airplanes and other articles pertaining to sport.

"Belgium is anxiously awaiting the opening day of the games," says M. Hein, of the Belgian Olympic Committee today. "Belgium intends to offer a brilliant schedule of fêtes and festivities. A special committee called by the Comité des Fêtes d'Antwerp has been formed to devise means of amusement. Its most grandiose feature probably will be the aviation meet from July 17 to 31.

Stunts of every sort in airplanes, balloons and kites will be performed by such noted aviators as Nungesser and Goppens and pilots. On August 14, King Albert, with the Queen, the Crown Prince, and the members of the Cabinet will grace the ceremonies by their presence.

"We expect," continued M. Hein, "that the American teams will be the largest and the best equipped. Probably, too, they will win most of the field events though they are sure to meet their rivals in the Swedish. Few people realize what progress has been made in Sweden in athletic and gymnastic training. Swedish setting-up exercises are famous the world over and the Swedish athletes are certain to present some lively surprises.

"In a certain sense, you know, the Olympic games have already opened. The skating contests were held last April and were won by the Canadians with the United States and Sweden close behind. The new regulation just completed at Ostend have shown the yachting superiority of Norway. Her racists won twice as many points as those of England, Belgium, and Spain, her nearest rivals. This week there will be a sort of unofficial automobile race at Antwerp."

"Have many swimmers entered the lists as contestants in the games?" was asked. "Very few thus far," M. Hein replied. "In the swimming contest we shall have two Australian women stars and in tennis we expect Miss Longier and other French and American women contestants. In shooting there were several women champions among the entries from Finland, and in gymnastics there will be women entrants, German and Austrian women are barred, of course, like their brothers."

"How will the athletes be housed?" "That is a present difficulty," answered M. Hein. "We have commandeered the school buildings in Antwerp for the purpose. They will be transformed into dormitories, mess halls, training rooms, in a very satisfactory way, I think. Belgium will do her utmost to entertain her guests in a fitting manner. She realizes that there is world-wide interest in the games. While she cannot do as much as the present economic crisis, she will certainly do her best."

The stadium where the athletic games will be contested was built by an English firm on the site of an old rugby field. It was finished about a month ago at a cost of about 2,000,000 francs (normally $600,000). It is difficult to imagine why it should be such an artistic and fairy-like structure when it is set in the midst of such ugly surroundings. The towers of Hohen and Kiel, between which it lies, do not offer much to please the eye. They are equally working towns just outside the walls in Antwerp. After the Olympic games are over, the stadium will be used for the popularization of gymnastic exercises. Belgium wants to follow the lead of Sweden in this regard.
