MURKIN CASE

Two Members of the Chain Gang on the Stand, But Nothing Startling Was Brought Out -- Dr. Warwick's Evidence.

Thursday, May 4. The third session of the inquest into the death of William McArthur was begun before Coroner Herriman last night at 7.30.

The examination of Dr. William Warwick, who made the post mortem, was concluded. Edward Corbett and Stanley Moore, two of the members of the chain gang, also gave evidence and Samuel Clifford, turnkey in the jail, who on the stand and will conclude his evidence tonight, when the inquest resumes at 7.30.

Dr. Warwick first took the stand and the coroner read over to him the evidence of Dr. Christie. After hearing this, witness repeated his opinion that the cause of death was oedema of the lungs following acute inflammation of the kidneys.

Such a condition of the lungs as found could develop in two hours. To Mr. Mullin, witness said he thought the cause of the oedema in this case was the weakness of the heart's action.

This condition was often an accompaniment of acute nephritis or Bright's disease, which in turn might have been brought on by exposure to cold or wet. If he had a patient who was suffering from Bright's disease, Dr. Warwick said, he would not like to have him on such a diet as that furnished in the jail.

To County Secretary Kelley, he said that a meek diet in cases of inflammation of the kidneys was injurious, and in the case of a man suffering from Bright's disease it might bring on convulsions. Dr. Christie might have been quite correct when he said that McArthur was not suffering from oedema of the lungs at 11 o'clock the night before he died.

In re-examination by Mr. Mullin, witness said that there had been nothing in the autopsy which would lead him to believe that McArthur had died of Bright's disease. The fact that McArthur was not suffering from oedema of the lungs at 11 o'clock the night before he died, induced in alcoholic stimulants was one of the great causes of Bright's disease.

Edward Corbett and Stanley Moore, members of the chain gang, said they had seen McArthur at the rock candy mine on April 12. On that day he was ill and had to lie in the shanty all the time they were out.

Samuel Clifford said that so far as he could judge, McArthur was quite able to go out to work. He had come in on C. P. R. on the 5th and continued going out till the 12th, when he was escaped. After being recaptured he was put to work again on March 1, and was out every day between then and April 12. Witness said that he had seen McArthur at the rock candy mine on April 12. On that day he was ill and had to lie in the shanty all the time they were out.

This concluded the session and witness was instructed to bring the reports into court when the hearing resumes at 7.30 this evening.

COTTAGE AT DUCK COVE AGAIN BROKEN INTO

For the second time on Thursday, May 4, R. Jack's cottage at Duck Cove was broken into Tuesday night and articles of some value taken. The thieves used a light wagon to take away their booty and secured entrance to the cottage by breaking a glass in a door. A Victor gramophone and records was taken, as well as a mahogany cabinet, a heavily brass bound chest and a heavy safe.

Mr. Jack has offered a reward of $25 for information which will lead to the arrest of the guilty persons. Yesterday morning he had a consultation with County Secretary Kelley and suggested the advisability of placing a special assessment on the people at the cove for the purpose of assisting in paying for a policeman. The matter may come up at the meeting of the municipal council Tuesday next.

POKER GAME COST BANGOR MILLIONS

Bangor, May 2.--A Sunday afternoon poker game, played in a hay shed, caused the fire that swept Bangor, leveling almost 400 buildings, causing the loss of two lives, rendering thousands homeless, and entailing a money loss conservatively estimated at approximately $4,000,000.

A longshoreman today told the city authorities that the fire was caused by a number of ball cartridges which had been carelessly dropped a lighted match on the floor. The loose hay burst into flames, and in a moment the interior of the place was ablaze. The card players barely had time to dash out of the door.

Of the 250 families burned out, seventy-five are destitute. Most of the owners of the business blocks and homes that were burned are financially ruined, rebuild as soon as material can be obtained.

Bangor passed a quiet night last night. Although every man and boy who did patrol duty were each supplied with five rounds of ball ammunition, there was no shooting fire. There has not been a single case of looting since the fire, the police say.

Telephone service, as well as electric lighting, was restored to normal conditions on Friday. Street car service on one line was resumed. The work of clearing away the debris began in earnest and conferences were arranged for the discussion of plans for the rebuilding of the city. Early in the day squads of dynamite operators began the work of shaking down standing walls and overturning toppling chimneys.

LEACOCK VS. LEACOCK

(Evening Times.) Referring to Prof. Leacock's statement in St. John, that he had thought reciprocity dead and buried, and that it ought now to be buried so deep it would never rise again, the Montreal Witness reminds him that he has not always assumed this attitude. Four years ago, in his "Baldwin Lafontaine and Hincks," published in the Makers of Canada series, his language with regard to reciprocity was somewhat different from his rough heroes at St. John. He then said: "Anxious at the same time to stimulate trade with the United States in order to compensate the country for the loss of its commercial privileges with Great Britain, Leacock endeavored to bring about a system of reciprocal free trade in natural products between Canada and the republic. An act of the legislature accordingly declared all duties on this class of imports to be removed as soon as the congress of the United States should take similar action. Unfortunately the opposition of the American senate interposed a long delay, and it was not until five years later that an international treaty at last brought the system of reciprocity into effect."

Commenting on this the Witness says: "This is the responsible statement of the historical student. In 1849, Hincks made a standing offer of reciprocity in 1851 Lord Elgin succeeded in having it accepted. In 1867, Professor Leacock regarded that day of five years as 'unfortunate.' Plainly, then, only four years ago, Professor Leacock did not look upon reciprocal free trade in natural products between the two countries as the 'nasty head' of some unnamable monster. In 1907 we had the responsible economist who is it that in 1911 we have only the agitated partisan, who never to stamp down into the earth, never to rise again, a splendid policy of economic freedom so freely endorsed only a few years before?"
