THE MILLION DOLLAR COMMISSION GREAT SURPRISE TO ALLISON

Courtenay had written to Col. Carnegie last week, warning him not to sign any contract for fuses until Col. Carnegie had communicated with him. Col. Allison had asserted that there was a great deal of talk about Dowler Forbes & Co. being mixed up with Sir Courtenay Bennett and others. The implication left with the court was that Sir Courtenay's intervention had not been entirely for the benefit of the nation. When the commission resumed this afternoon Mr. Hellmuth asked the commissioners whether they thought it would be advisable to go into further details concerning Sir Courtenay Bennett's relation to the fuse contracts. Mr. Johnston and Mr. Carvell both urged that the trial should be pursued, and evidence should be got if necessary from Sir Courtenay Bennett.

"What do you know about Sir Courtenay Bennett?" asked Mr. Hellmuth of Col. Allison. "He was interested in Dowler Forbes & Co. and wanted delay," answered Col. Allison. "Do you have any specific knowledge about it?"

"Only general," replied Col. Allison. "Later on, under cross-examination by Mr. Johnston, Colonel Allison said that he did not know the good or bad of Sir Courtenay Bennett and other diplomats backing up the Dowler Forbes Co. and pulling wires. That was the reason, Colonel Allison, that he had written to this company, stating that he would have nothing to do in the way of obtaining business for them on a commission basis. It is in all that has yet been brought out about this phase of the inquiry."

Mr. Johnston noted that in all about $500,000 had been disposed of without any trial, and that it was in all that Allison could show. There were no detailed accounts, and no specific arrangements, although this huge sum had been disposed of.

Bank Interest Suspended. Coming to Colonel Allison's explanation of the commission on the Edwards Valve Company contract, Mr. Johnston noted that Colonel Allison's explanation as to the extra four cents being added to the health of the armies, he says, was "the sick rate has been seriously low. There has been no consistent epidemic, and enteric fever, the base of armies in the past, has almost entirely disappeared, owing to the preventive measures energetically carried out."

"The despatches closes with a tribute to Field Marshal Viscount French who, says General Haig, 'starting the war with our small expeditionary force, faced an enemy far superior in numbers and fully prepared for this great campaign.'"

"During the long and anxious time needed for the improvisation of the comparatively large force now serving in this country," continued General Haig, "he overcame all difficulties and before laying down his responsibilities he had the satisfaction of seeing the balance of advantage swing steadily in our favor. Those who served under him appreciate the greatness of his achievements."

Attempt on Minister's Life. Berlin, May 29, by wireless to Sayville.—An unsuccessful attempt to assassinate the Austro-Hungarian minister to Persia is reported in a Constantinople despatch to the Overseas News Agency today. "Djemal Bey" continues the despatch, "who has been for some time in the service of Russia, wore the uniform of a Cossack when he attempted the assassination. An attempt to arrest Djemal Bey, made by a Persian soldier, was frustrated by a Russian officer. The Persian government has instituted an investigation into the affair."
