

view in declining
 to accede to the principle of a definitive arbitration;
 although the methods of Mrs Hayes were certainly rather suggestive of
 than of the proverbial
 "cutting off one's nose to spite one's face".
 On the other hand it would have been almost a disastrous blow to the cause of industrial conciliation had the

My dear King:
 Just a line to congratulate you
 upon the success
 of your efforts in settling the strike
 with appreciation
 the position of the Co
 from this point of

W. L. Mackenzie King Papers

Volume 13