SCOTT'S EMULSION

WOODROW WILSON DEAD

Former President Passed Away Sunday Morning.

Whole World Is Mourning Death of Man Who Took Such an Active Part in World War Politics—"I Am a Broken Piece of Machinery—I Am Ready to Go," He Said.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—Woodrow Wilson, twenty-eighth President of the United States, from 1913 to 1921, died Sunday.

With the whole world watching at his bedside as for the last three days, the distinguished American, recognized as one of the great men of his country and his time, came peacefully to his end at 11.15 o'clock yesterday morning.

Mr. Wilson's life ebbed away in the sleep into which he sank Saturday. The last sentence he uttered was on Friday, when he said, addressing his physician, "I am a broken piece of machinery, Grayson. When the machine is broken—I am ready to go."

The last word he uttered was "Edith," the name of Mrs. Wilson. Saturday afternoon, when she had left the bedside temporarily. When she returned and clasped his hand, Mr. Wilson sank into the state of unconsciousness that continued till the end. A few minutes before he died he opened his eyes, gazed at Mrs. Wilson and others at his bedside, but spoke no word, and then went to sleep for the last time.

President Coolidge, after calling at the S street house, in company with Mrs. Coolidge, issued a proclamation of thirty days' official mourning for the death of Mr. Wilson, during which period the flags on all United States Government buildings throughout the world will be flown at half-mast, and official entertaining will be suspended.

In this proclamation President Coolidge paid Mr. Wilson one of the highest tributes he ever received.

"As President of the United States," said Mr. Coolidge, "he was moved by an earnest desire to promote the best interests of the country as he conceived them. His acts were prompted by high motives, and his sincerity of purpose cannot be questioned. He led the nation through the terrific struggle of the World War with a lofty idealism which never failed him. He gave utterance to the aspiration of humanity with an eloquence which held the attention of all the earth, and made the United States a new and enlarged influence in the destiny of mankind."

President Coolidge orders that military and naval honors be rendered on the day of the funeral. Informally, the President also suggested to the Wilson family that the funeral ceremony be made a state funeral held in the Capital, with full official honors accorded, just as in the case of the funeral of a president dying in office. A suggestion that Mr. Wilson be buried in Arlington National Cemetery is under consideration. No decision had been reached by the family to-day as to the acceptance of the suggestion made by President Coolidge.

Born in Staunton, Virginia, December 28, 1856, of Scottish-Irish parentage, christened Thomas Woodrow Wilson, the future president was known as "Tommy" until he graduated from Princeton in 1879, and was thereafter known only as Woodrow Wilson. His father, the Rev. Joseph Ruggles Wilson, a prominent Presbyterian minister, moved to Augusta, Georgia, when Woodrow was two years old. Later the family went to Columbia, South Carolina, and there young Wilson, at the age of seventeen, entered Davidson College, leaving soon to go to Princeton. Upon graduating, he studied law in the University of Virginia, and in 1882 began the practice of law in Atlanta, Georgia.

He was married on June 27, 1885, to Ellen Axson, daughter of a Presbyterian minister of Savannah, Georgia. Mrs. Wilson died on August 6, 1914. Mr. Wilson afterwards married Mrs. Ethel Bolling Galt, of Washington.

Before entering politics in 1910 he had been professor of history and political economy at Bryn Mawr and at Wesleyan University, and later professor of jurisprudence and political economy at Princeton, where, subsequently, he was made head of that institution. Meanwhile, Prof. Wilson had gained high reputation as a writer. Some of his works, with the date of their production, were as follows: "The State—Elements of Historical and Practical Politics" (1885); "Division and Reunion" (1896); "A History of the American People" (1902); "Constitutional Government in the United States" (1908); "Free Life" (1913); "The New Freedom" (1913); "When a Man Comes to Himself" (1915); "On Being Human" (1916); "An Old Master and Other Political Essays" and "Mere Literature and Other Essays" were among his earlier writings. His state papers, notes to belligerent Governments and addresses to Congress, would fill many volumes.

Canada Wires Consolation. OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 4.—Premier Mackenzie King sent the following message of consolation to Mrs. Woodrow Wilson:

"My colleagues in the Government of Canada join with me in extending to you an expression of very sincere sympathy in your bereavement. We feel that the citizens of our country would desire us similarly to express to the citizens of the United States our sense of the loss the Republic has sustained in the death of one whose name is inseparably associated with the world's freedom."

TORONTO, Feb. 4.—Sir William Mulock will act as Lieutenant-Governor during the absence of the latter on a Mediterranean tour.
