JOHN CAMERON, President and Mng. Dir.
God's in His heaven, All's right with the world.
—Browning.

Perhaps the Conservative members of the School Board are waiting to hear the result of the bye-elections.

Today will decide whether the Dominion Government will be successful in its villainous attempt to steal three constituencies.

Mr. Foster is the only Opposition leader who has had courage to enter the bye-election ring. And he seems to be merely sparring for wind.

It costs New York $80,000 to clear away the snow from the city streets after every big storm. In London we keep the snow to sleigh on.

A cable dispatch says that Canada's generosity on India's behalf will be repaid a hundredfold by the advertisement it affords the Dominion. It is certainly more blessed to give than to receive.

The Toronto World suggests that all debtors be liberated from their obligations as a gracious token of the Queen's jubilee year. Does the World mean to include delinquent subscribers in the list of the liberated ones?

When President-elect McKinley wanted a Minister of Agriculture he promptly turned to a Canadian. He has chosen Mr. J. F. Wilson, an Iowa farmer, who received his early training in the good old county of Oxford, Ont. We produce the best of everything here—whether men, cattle, horses, grain, fruit, or timber.

The New York School of Journalism has collapsed. This result was expected. The newspaper man cannot be manufactured in a "school." The best newspaper makers are the men who begin at the foot of the ladder, like Horace Greeley, George Brown, and James Gordon Bennett, and work their way up in the stern school of experience.

Says the Ottawa Free Press: "Mr.
Justice Robertson comes to the conclusion that perjury of a rather marked character has been committed in the London election trial. The readers of the contradictory evidence have already come to the same conclusion.
But there is quite enough truth to unseat the man, and the sooner it is done the sooner the Liberal will be elected."

An Unwarranted Attack.
The Toronto News pitches into Mr.
Blue, Director of the Ontario Bureau of Mines, and insinuates that he knows nothing about mining. Our contemporary does a worthy public servant an injustice. Mr. Blue has never yet undertaken a duty which he has not mastered. He made the statistical bureau a thorough success, and he has probably done more by his investigations and well-written reports to popularize mining in Canada than any other man.

Some have objected that Mr. Blue is a man of caution, who believes in being right before he goes ahead. Is not that a safe rule, even in mining?

The Director of the Mining Bureau belongs to the school of Sir Oliver Mowat, whose wise policy has accomplished so much for the Province of Ontario. Along the lines laid down by that veteran statesman, Premier Hardy has promised to proceed, and in carrying out the most enlightened policy with regard to mining that statesmanship can devise the new Premier will have the cordial co-operation of the director.

It does not follow that because certain plungers do not like the mining policy of a country, it is not in the public interest.

They Kick.

The London Free Press professes alarm at the bill of costs in the London election trial. If the friends of our contemporary had owned up like men at the start, and had prevailed upon Mr. Beattie to give up the seat to which he was not fairly elected, it would have saved the party the humiliation of the attic exposures and attendant illegalities, and a good many thousand dollars at the same time.
Hugh John Macdonald in Winnipeg, Mr. Henry in Brant, and Mr. McGillivray in North Ontario, exhibited much greater wisdom when they stepped down and out in face of less formidable indictments.

Mr. Beattie has not been well advised. He cannot hold a seat to which he has not been honestly elected.

Gladstone Prophecies.

Mr. Gladstone still retains, in the retirement of his old age, that wonderful gift of moving eloquence which has been so large a factor in making of him the foremost man of the century. Three weeks ago it became his duty to acknowledge the presentation to Mrs. Gladstone, on the occasion of her 85th birthday, of a portrait of the Armenian Patriarch, and also the un-telling of a window in Hawarden Church to commemorate the victims of the recent massacres in Armenia.
Upon the face of the question, he said, it appeared as if the British people had been stirred at the heart of the heart of one man. Though a great factor in every public question and a great moral force in the world, yet the direction of the world's affairs is not in their hands. They have not been able to act towards Turkey as they would desire to act in conjunction with the six powers of Europe. But Mr. Gladstone is not at all cast down as to the final issue. "I must own to you," he said, "that although I have passed, long passed, the time of life for sanguine dreams, yet there remains in me, with regard to this Armenian question, an unextinguishable hope. Yea, and I would almost venture to say, from the extremities of apparent defeat I draw the suggestion of consolation for the future. These inquiries have been too great, too vast, too profound.
They have been too terrible an exhibition of the rage which in the providence of God is sometimes permitted to the powers of evil in the affairs of this world to be ever effaced from the record of the past, a record of the past which will be fruitful in the future. That weight of disgrace which I have said a hundred times—I never attempt to partition it; I cherish the hope that the Government of my own country will prove not to be chargeable with a main share of it; I firmly cherish that hope; I might almost say that I believe they will not—that weight of disgrace, which as I have been obliged to say a hundred times, now lies upon the shoulders of the six powers of Europe, representing its chief moral force, the chief physical force in the world, as I think too great to be borne. The human conscience and the human understanding will revolt against it."

The Best Only Wanted.

The total quantity of apples received at Liverpool from this continent this season, up to Dec. 26, was 1,169,961 barrels, against 296,628 last year. This plentiful supply accounts for the low prices. But the poor quality of many of the shipments also had something to do with the slump that took place.
Great Britain has the world to choose from, and she will not pay good prices except for the best, no matter what the product is.

Good Words for Canada.

Mrs. A. M. Oliver, a lady who formerly resided in Galt, Ont., who now lives in Richmond, England, and who continues a reader of The Advertiser, sends us another interesting letter on a subject which ought to be followed up with action. Here is the communication:
"Richmond, England, Jan. 2, 1897.
"I told you before that I always speak a good word for Canada when I get the chance. As I have read in The Advertiser and other Canadian papers, it is remarkable what ignorance prevails, except, of course, among those who have been there—and this with people calling themselves educated. One truth so difficult to impress upon people is the vastness of the country. I will argue long that I must be mistaken, until I make them get out a map; then, of course, the controversy ends, and they are very much astonished."
"I was asked not long ago by a very superior gentleman if Canada had any literature at all. This set me thinking as to whether anything could be done to make that literature better known. One English poet said:
"I found the poems in the field, And only wrote them down."
Anyone who has given the matter consideration must see that Canada is full of beautiful poems and stories of field and forest, stream, mountain and lake, and home, waiting for those who are able to write them down.

No doubt you have seen that Wm.
Stead, editor of the Review of Reviews, has been publishing several series of penny works, in order to induce the young people to read them instead of the pernicious literature they are so fond of. Amongst his "Penny Poets" he issued recently "Some Australian Poems." So I went to his office to ask if he would publish some Canadian poems. I did not see him; he was too busy; but I had a talk with his wife, and she, and I left a message for Mr. Stead. Whether anything will come of it I cannot say.
Can you, sir, suggest any way of making Canadian literature better known? Perhaps Mr. Stead will write to Canada.
A. M. OLIVER."

If Mr. Stead finds it desirable to issue a popular edition of the "Australian Poets," it should be easy to convince him of the propriety of giving to the English-speaking public a volume of the better class of verse by Canadian writers. Canada can supply abundance of material to choose from. We have not only verse-makers writing in the English language, but we have a representative French-Canadian poet in Mr. Fréchet, who has been honored not only in his native land, but in foreign countries. So have Roberts, Bliss, Carman, and others of our poets. If Mr. Stead falls in with the view of our contemporary, he would receive much aid from a volume recently published by Mr. J.
E. Wetherald, giving selections from the later Canadian poets, which is certainly an admirable collection.

ed at the Canadian Pacific Salt Works at Watford. Pumping operations will Isaac Martin, who recently sold his farm about one mile east of Elgin for $9,000, has bought the farm of Mr.

George Stiller, between Galt and Hawkesville, for $6,000.

Stratford Herald: James McCafferty, who has been suffering for some time from the results of swallowing a bone, is reported to be very low. His recovery is in doubt.

Miss Eva Koyle, Ayrmer, who had the misfortune to break a needle off in her leg a week ago, is having a hard time to get the needle out. The needle is so firmly fixed that it is feared blood poisoning will set in.

J. D. Ross, who is charged with trying to swindle some Essex people out of their cash by a patent house-numbering scheme, was arrested at Watford, and will be taken to Essex to stand his trial.

Arthur Fletcher Galt, aged 15 years, son of Wm. Galt, St. Thomas, died on Monday night of typhoid fever. It is just a week since the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Galt, Edith Mary, died of the same disease.

Stratford has to have a free library.
After considerable discussion, the city council has decided to take over the public library, and will furnish quarters for it in the city hall building.
Besides giving free quarters, the city will make a grant of $600 a year.

Miss Mabel Traile, a Windsor school teacher, had an encounter with a refractory pupil a day or two ago in one of the city schools, and was knocked down stairs. She has not yet been able to resume her duties. The youth, whose name is Gordon Scott, will probably be suspended.

The St. Thomas City Council has refused to consider the petition from 800 ratepayers asking that the number of taverns be reduced. They referred the petitioners to the police commissioners, who have similar powers. The council also refused to pass a resolution to redistribute the wards of the city.

The dispute between the Chatham City Council and the Fire Underwriters' Association is about at an end. The association offered to advance the classification of the city as soon as some additional alarm boxes and a new hook and ladder truck are provided, and this the city has decided to do.

Messrs. Nightingale and Berry, of Brantford, have just been awarded, by the Grand Trunk Railway, a contract to supply that company with ice during the winter of 1897, and to fill the company's icehouses at the tunnel, Sarnia, Point Edward and Stratford. The contract demands a supply of 12,000 tons.

The Ayrmer Methodist Church, which has been undergoing extensive repairs, is now completely finished, and is one of the finest as well as the most commodious churches in this county.
The statement of expenditures, including repairs of shed, and new barn at the parsonage, amounts to $5,244.
The church reopens Feb. 7.

Fire visited Watford Wednesday morning, and James Beatty's restaurant on the south side is in ruins. The residence of A. Gordon was endangered, but thanks to the efforts of the firemen, it escaped with a scorching in some places. The burned building was the property of Isaac Arnold, and was uninsured. Mr. Beatty carried a small insurance on his stock.

The county judge of Kent, on Tuesday ordered the discharge of Anthony Labadie, arrested on a capias on an affidavit that he was preparing to leave the country to defeat Thos.
Leach, who was indicted for $5, 000 for alienation and the seduction of his wife. It was submitted that the affections of the woman, who was not living with her husband, could not be alienated.

F. S. Evans, general manager of the Dominion Typographic Company, has purchased his new office in the east of the Corlies Labor Bill becoming a law, he would immediately insist that all his employees live in Windsor, or else give up their positions. Many of them own their homes in Detroit. To move across the river would mean a considerable loss to them, and they have accordingly gotten up a petition, which will be sent to Washington, protesting against the passing of the bill.

Mrs. Louisa Barnes, aged 86, mo-and John E. Barnes, of Exeter, is dead. Mrs. Barnes had retired in fairly good health Saturday night, and Sunday morning, when a member of the family went to awaken her, it was found she had passed quietly and peacefully away in her sleep.

She was one of the oldest residents of Harwich, and was noted for the kindness of her nature. She leaves, besides her two sons, five daughters, Mrs. Shaw and Miss Barnes, who re-to petition the Government to revoke the seining privileges now granted at Mitchell's Bay and the River Thames, with a view to preserve the bass in these waters. The gathering was a rather stormy one. Nothing of importance was done, and after a good deal of discussion the fishermen ad-day at Painscourt. Mr. W. B. Wells will forward the resolutions recently

A CHATHAM HERO.

John Wrightman, Age 14, Saves a Boy
From Drowning.

Chatham, Ont., Feb. 4.—John Wrightman, a young lad of 14, is a fitting candidate for the medal of the Royal Humane Society. Monday night Herbert Baker, second son of the pastor of the Park Street Methodist Church, was one of a crowd of skaters enjoying the ice on the Thames River. There were spots from which ice had broken away, and a supply of upon which only thin ice had again formed. While gliding over one of these places young Baker went through. His companions fled in terror, leaving the luckless lad struggling in the icy water. His accident was noted by Wrightman, who, a quarter of a mile away, was playing at hockey. He darted at once to the rescue, sliding towards the dangerous spot on hands and knees, and reaching out his hockey stick, told the drowning lad to grab it and hang on. Then he exerted all his strength and succeeded in pulling Baker out, and landing him on safe ice, not an instant too soon. Wrightman then coolly skated off, without waiting to be thanked, even.
