The closing feeling abroad was firm in British, but easier in French and continental markets. The cash demand was trifling. The market looks strained. Foreign element seem to be not only unwilling to follow our advance by additional purchases, but are probably unloading their previous purchases. We doubt if the outside but clement who have bought on the recent advance can stand up under this load. Corn was a shade higher at the opening on the strength in wheat, but the effect of this soon evaporated, and the market yielded gradually with but little or no reactionary force. We think the bulls are not inclined to follow the market much further on the long side. Provisions were easier. Hogs run fair and 15c to 20c lower.
