

Ice

When Winter scourged the meadow and the hill
And in the withered leafage worked his will,
The water shrank, and shuddered, and stood still,—
Then built himself a magic house of glass,
Iris'd with memories of flowers and grass,
Wherein to sit and watch the fury pass.