

The David Lam Centre also offers the following related programs and activities that are of interest:

The Pacific Region Forum on Business and Management Communication draws upon academic, business and government resources to provide an ongoing arena for reporting, analyzing, discussing and debating of old and new communications strategies between businesses and their Asia Pacific environments. Invited speakers discuss the compatibility between East and West business structure, social relationships and cultural values. FORUM REPORTS are edited and published by the Centre.

The Cross-cultural Management and Communication Certificate Program, offered in co-operation with the SFU's Faculty of Business Administration and Continuing Studies, offers a distinctive combination of professional development courses in language, culture, international business, and cross-cultural communication.
