

ODA, MILITARY SPENDING, AND POLITICAL CONDITIONALITY:

Non-governmental perspectives from the South

January 10, 1997

Mr. Steve Lee
Director

Contents

Canadian Centre for Foreign Policy Development
175 Sussex Drive
K1A 0G2

1. Preface:

- a) Covering Letter
- b) Guidelines for Papers

2. Introduction:

Towards “the least diversion for armaments of the world’s human and economic resources”: Southern NGO voices on military spending and conditionality

Ernie Regehr

3. Linking of development assistance to the promotion of reductions in military spending in Southern Africa: a non-governmental perspective

Gavin Cawthra

4. Implications of linking development assistance with military expenditure in South Asia

Ghayur Alam

5. Implications of linking development assistance to reductions in military spending

Alejandro Bendaña

6. Linking development and military spending cuts: perspectives from the Horn of Africa

Josephine Ajema Odera

7. Does tit-for-tat work for disarmament?

Carlos Alberto Afonso