Meintyre & Wardwell say: Speculation in the stock market to-day was largely a repetition of that obtained resterday. This was true, both in regard or character of the trading and the fluctuations. The market started off weak, because of some local selling on its weak eleming yesterday and lack of outside support, but the early fractional losses were quickly recovered on renewed support from the pools in Atchison preferred, St. Paul, L.B.Q. and the Standard Oil people, and a resumption of the aggressive maniputation in Third-avenue Railroad stock. After reading the rearfully bad detailed report in the papers which the receiver of the pioperty had filed with the court vesterday, almost everyone was prepared to see a log break in the stock and the general insilination was to sell the stock short on the opening of the market. On this it tooke to 69, but the stock was soon taken in hand and bought and bid up in the same aggressive manner as yesterday to the property, the wovement could only be attributed to an advoit concerted movement against the large short interest. The sharp advance in the stock, together with apparent Standard Oil buying in Burlington, Sugar, St. Paul and People's Gast turned the rest of the market from a state of weakness into strength, and the whole list moved up. There was no heav outside business, and London sold 20,000 shares on balance, and there was no heave alter continued rather stringent, although the call money rate did not get above 5 per cent.
