She took from her bosom the St. Nicholas ribbon. "I give it to thee again. At the first time I loved thee; now, my husband, ten thousand times more I love thee! As I went through the papers I found it. So much it said to me of thy true love! So sweetly for thee it pleaded! All that it asks for thee I give. All that thou hast done wrong to me it forgives!"

full of papers and of Hyde's personal treasures. Among them was a ring that his father had given him; his mother's last letter; a lock of his son's hair; her own first letter—the shy, anxious note that she wrote to Mrs.

She looked sadly at these things, and thought how valueless all had become to him that hour. Then she began to arrange the papers according to their size, and a small, sealed parcel slipped from among them. She lifted it and saw a rhyme in her husband's

"Oh, my love! my love! this thy gift I hold More than fame or treasure, more than life or gold."

a few months, for it was in a kind of bluish-tinted paper which Hyde bought in Lynn one day during the past winter. She turned it over and over in her hand, and the temptation to see the love-token inside became greater every moment. This was a thing her husband had never designed any human eye but his own to see. Whatever revelation there was in it, much doubt and despair, she felt that impulse to rely on chance for a decision which all have experienced in matters of grave moment, apparently beyond natural elucidation.

If in it there is no word of her, no message before in such a proper mood, and I may as well tell you, while you are to her, or from her, if her name is not there nor the letters of her name—then I will go to my own. A new love, one not a year old, I can put aside. I will ure past belief of the same kind. In forgive everyone but my Lady Suffact. Dick, I am married, and have two

She gave a sharp cry as it fell upon the desk, and then she lifted and kiss-ed it, and held it to her breast, as she rocked herself to and fro in a passionate transport of triumphant love. Again and again she fed her eyes upon it. She recalled the night she wore it first, and the touch of her mother's fingers as she fastened it at her throat. She recalled her father's happy smile of proud admiration for her—the afternoon, next, when she had stood with Joanna at the foot of the garden and seen her lover wearing it on his breast. She remembered what had heard about the challenge, and the desperate fight, and the intention of Semple's servant to remove the token from her senseless lover's breast, and her father's noble inter-ference. The bit of fateful ribbon had had a strange history; yet she had forgotten it. It was her husband who had carefully sealed it away among the things most precious to his heart and house. It still kept much of its original splendid color; but it was stained down all its length with blood. AWAITING A VERDICT, Business Across the Border Influenced by the Election Campaign. New York, Oct. 17 .- R. G. Dun & Co.'s Review says: The one commercial change which more than any other insures better business in the near future is the excess of merchandise exports over imports. In September exports were $85,093,594, and imports only $50,825,705, and the excess of exports was $34,-272,889, in payment for which net imports of gold were $34,249,183. Last year the excess of merchandise imports was $6,765,257 in September, and net exports of gold $16,506,558. In the four principal classes exports increased $20,641,134-more than half in cotton. In two weeks of October the exports from New York have increased 30.6 per cent, against 31.2 in September, while imports have decreased 24 per cent, against 35.2 in September. The heavy movement of grain is the corner stone. Failures for the week have been 328 in the United States again 263 last year, and 0 in Canada, against 46 last year. Bradstreet's report says: While the volume of general trade has not increased materially, new conditions are favorable to an early improvement.

Bradsteet's Review says: Business throughout the Province of Ontario is of moderate volume, but is satisfactory, as prices are generally firm, and those for wheat higher. Only an average business has been done at Quebec City, lack of activity in the shoe industry having been felt more than in some other lines. The Halifax fish market has improved, and the output of coal from Cape Breton, Nova Scotia, mines is larger than in 1895. Crop reports from Newfoundland are satisfactory, and the price of fish at St. John, N. B., has advanced. Bank clearings at Winnipeg, Hamilton, Toronto, Montreal and Halifax amoun to $21,093,000 this week, which is slightsmaller than last week and slightly larger than in the corresponding week of last year. There are 30 business failures reported from the Canadian Dominion this week, against 37 last week, 37 in the week one year ago, 39 two years ago, and 34 three years ago.
