

A New Novel by Mrs. Humphry Ward

Here is an Event in Fiction, a great story—an addition to the Aristocracy of Novels. All of Mrs. Ward's women pale before the white fire of the spirit of Diana Mallory. Young, gracious, sweet-hearted, she is brought with brutal suddenness into cruel knowledge affecting her dead young mother.

The Testing of Diana Mallory

Just before the blow strikes, Diana Mallory is betrothed to the man she loves. Therefore to him comes the highest possible privilege—to guard and shelter in time of trouble the woman he loves. And the man—but that's the story. The original paintings by W. Hatherell, R. I., make great illustrations.

HARPER & BROTHERS

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

Hallowe'en Novelties.

A crepe paper Hallowe'en has a fragile sound, but it is perfectly practicable, and nothing could be prettier than the reality. Few people realize how many things are made of crepe paper and how tough and durable crepe paper as now manufactured is. A visit to a shop dealing in these articles is a revelation. Dresses, muffs, parasols, hats, vegetables, fruit and flowers, butterflies and birds, tablecloths, napkins, doilies—these are a few of the things made out of crepe paper. A crepe paper pumpkin and sunflower supper can be made very pretty. Over the cotton silence cloth, the crepe paper "cloth," with a design of yellow sunflowers. Use napkins with a sunflower and pumpkin border and draw them thru rings to match. The doilies must have the same border and should be used to cover the bread plates, cake plates, etc. The green and yellow Japanese ware is more in harmony with a sunflower and pumpkin supper than any other. Cute little "sunflower fairies" make effective place cards, perched upon the rim of each wine glass. The nuts and bonbons can be served in crepe paper sunflowers, which come fixed on little stands, with receptacles for the goodies hidden in the brown centres of the blossoms. Put the olives in green and yellow striped gourds and the celery in big yellow cucumber shells. The fruit can be arranged in a large crepe paper pumpkin.

The small sized pumpkin cases make dainty dishes in which to serve ices, and for the salad there are the individual half cucumber, half carrot or green tomato cases. The candles should be deep yellow, and the very newest thing in shades—a picturesque trifle of black emery paper, with opaque yellow new moons, stars and sunflowers scattered over the four sides—is most appropriate for Hallowe'en.

For the centrepiece of the table use an immense sunflower. The "stem" is a piece of yellow ribbon, each charm having attached to it a yellow ribbon which runs to one of the plates ending there in a dainty yellow pumpkin blossom. These crepe paper flowers must be seen to be appreciated; so delf have the makers become that it is difficult to tell the paper flowers from the real ones. Sometimes perfume is added to the cotton centres of the flowers, to make the illusion perfect.

There are crepe paper decorations without end for a pumpkin and sunflower luncheon. For instance, there are pumpkin vines with blossoms and little pumpkins on them, which can be fastened above the table and along the walls. A big crepe paper pumpkin into which an electric bulb has been dropped, makes an effective lantern, depending from the vines above the table. The little pumpkins can be utilized for lights, too. If desired, and very pretty they look, shining with a deep yellow glow among the vines. For the rest of the decorations large standard sunflowers can be grouped against the walls, have boards covered with paper pumpkins and with holes bored in them and insert the stems of the sunflowers in these. Cornstalks with yellow tassels and pipe ears are handsome, too, and may be arranged in the same way as the sunflowers.

Something quite new is the lattice screen in green, with crepe paper pumpkin vines trained all over it. Some of the screens have three and even four folds, and can be made very large. There are green window boxes, too, filled with yellow hollyhocks, which at a little distance would deceive a gardener.

Popular favors for Hallowe'en entertainments are the little "siren horns" with tiny pumpkins on the whistle end. Children love these horns, especially if they are filled with confetti. A bit of paper over the tip of the horn holds the confetti in its place until it is desired to liberate the shower. Other favors are the brown and yellow sunbonnets, one of which might be hung on the chair of each feminine guest. On the back of the chairs in which the men or boys are to sit hang cones, to which brown and yellow night motifs might be fastened.

Below is a supper menu appropriate for a Hallowe'en or any other harvest time festival:

Supper—Hot chicken bouillon, whipped cream, chicken salad, olive sandwiches, fruit salad, cheese sandwiches, mushroom duck and hot biscuit; coffee cakes, toasty-turkey cake, fancy cakes, coffee, bonbons.

Indian Girls Saved.

OTTAWA, Oct. 28.—The first time for the first time at the Great Petach in the northwest, no Indian girls were sold as slaves. On previous occasions they were bought and sold like cattle. The W. M. S. of the Methodist church have asked the attorney-general to enforce the law relating to polygamy with special reference to the Chinese. One woman, a fourth wife, was bought for $350. She was 19 years of age, her purchaser $3. An officer, Whong Kong, signs papers allowing Chinamen to represent themselves as parents or guardians and showing these papers bring these girls into a civilized Christian country often to be sold again. These facts are known to the police.

The complaint sent to the authorities was kindly received. In Toronto a crusade has been carried on against postal card sellers. Many arrests have been made, warnings given and fines imposed. SUFFRAGETTES TO JAIL WILL NOT PAY BIG FINES Women Chained Themselves to Iron Grill in Gallery and Their Padded Chains Had to Be Filed.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—All the suffragettes, with the exception of two, who were arrested last night during the disorders in and around the house of commons, were this morning arraigned in court and fined $35 each. They refused to pay and were consequently sentenced each to one month's imprisonment. Of the two exceptions one was a girl under 21 years of age and the other a woman who secured an adjournment to lodge a charge of assault against the constable who arrested her.

The length to which suffragettes will go to obtain an object and to strike home their cause before the nation, was illustrated in the house of commons when it was discovered that in the midst of consideration of a bill, that two women had chained themselves to the iron grill in the gallery. Their chains had to be filed and portions of the grill cut away before they could be detached. The house was considering the Licensing Bill, when a suffragette from the gallery shrieked and thrust thru the grill a placard which were printed the precise demands of the suffragettes. Mr. Remnant, speaking from the gallery, attempted to continue when a man threw down a bundle of papers and cried, "I am K. Kerr, and I object to injustice to women."

Attendants made a scuffle in ejecting this disturber. Over the sounds of this incident rose greater disorder in the gallery. One of the two suffragettes had chained herself to the grill and were shrieking out: "We demand votes for women." Extensive riotousness followed, their seats to watch the gallery. An attempt to pull the women away for a while, and a run was made away and then the grill were cut. Helen Fox, the suffragette, were led away, their chains filed outside, and they, and I object to injustice to women, were arrested, as their acts were not illegal.

At the same time the police made a scuffle into a bunch of suffragettes that started a harrange before a crowd in front of the equestrian statue outside and arrested 13.

NEARLY WENT TO JAIL.

After imposing sentence, Magistrate Allows Case to Go to Jury.

Claude Downswell was fined $10 and costs for a breach of the peace when he pleaded guilty to sending in a postcard to the mails to Mrs. A. H. Hollingsworth and her daughter of Haslemere, Surrey. The prosecution followed the complaint of Mrs. Hollingsworth to the Washington authorities who complained to the Canadian post-office authorities.

HARRISON-STREET RINK.

Editor World: A matter that came up before the board of control the other day illustrates the restrictive weight of the legal machinery holding progress back in this country. The householders upon Harrison-street had protested against the erection of a rink close to their dwellings. They were told the "fire limits" stood in their way. The rink was up and was burned to the ground under conditions that came within the nearest sort of residents' safety. The terrified reconstruction of the rink, and Mayor Oliver told Mr. Cronin in their behalf that the city could not, if it would, get the rink out of the way. His worship made the remark that this is the way the city is tied down by the people up in the park. And so it is thru the whole game. The federal government at Ottawa is estopped by imperial authority from allowing Canada to assume an equality beside the United States in regard to oriental immigration. Federal legislation in turn ties up provincial legislation in exercises a sort of sub-servility to the whims of municipal expansion. The city architect of Toronto as a consequence confesses his inability to give householders relief from what is a menace to their lives. The Canadian people have been schooled to slavish respect for regulation and red tape all the way from Downing-street to the advancing too rapidly for "fire limits" that appear to have become fossilized in the absurd keeping of provincial authority, and the city architect of when he talks about artificial limits as a barrier to protection against districts.

Public Amusements

Robert Ganthony's entertainment to-night and to-morrow night at Massey Hall will serve to introduce to the Toronto public a most versatile artist and comedian. His program includes a musical sketch, Japanese grotesques, transformation, caricature and laughable mimetic sketch, "The Weathered Concert." Mr. Ganthony is assisted by a charming English actress from the Court Theatre in Miss Hazel Stanmore, and thus he varies the program effectively by two sketches, "The Meeting," which represents two lovers meeting after nine years and comparing notes, and a domestic incident, which is the reverse, "All Brown's Fault," in which a belated husband arriving home in the wee sma' hours receives a reprimand.

Mr. Ganthony will also be assisted by two excellent Toronto artists in Rhynad Jamieson, baritone, and Miss Belyea, contralto, with Miss Mary Morley, pianiste. Master Fred Blakey, the boy soprano, with the very clear bell-like voice, will also take part in a most attractive entertainment. Mr. Ganthony's evening is quite different from the usual one-man entertainment in its wide variety.

All doubts have been expelled from the minds of the patrons of comic opera regarding the ability of the Imperial Opera Company to stage the more difficult operas of the older school without sacrificing the excellence which has made the home company famous. The Imperials, since the beginning of the season, have presented representative offerings of the various schools of musical attractions, running the gamut from the lightest form of musical comedy to comic operas, which might be termed classical, and yet thru all has been visible a uniformity in elegance of production and rendition.

The offering this week "The Wedding Day," an opera, thoroughly musical and humorous, has been the fore-runner of others of even a higher standard and will be followed to-morrow afternoon with a grand revival of "The Chimes of Normandy."

Miss Elsie Janis and Company at the Excelsior Rink.
