

Volunteer workers at Lady Donnor's Hospital Supply Depot, Manchester, England, making large trench shoes for the arriving British wounded.

An ex-soldier who, having been discharged from the army, still helps his country by assisting on the land. He is shown leading a bullock team attached to a plow, which is attended by a soldier on leave.

Serjt. Dalton, Serjt. Middleton, Serjt. Taylor, all of the 3rd Canadian Reserve, West Sandling, England.

Serjt. Jos. Crudden, 134th Battalion, and Serjt. Wm. Crudden of the same battalion, photographed in England at their parents' home.

A photograph sent anonymously with this inscription: "Your son might be among them. Pick him out." Can you?

Pte. Frank Wilson, 3rd Canadian Pioneers, in France.

Lance-Corp. Russell Willes, Mechanical Transport, B. L. F., in France.

Bombing section, 8th Battalion, in France. Sent by Pte. F. L. Maxwell.

F. Phillips.

Working in the hospital, 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. shift.

Pte. Ellidge and Corporal Ivy of the 2nd C.M.P.

5th Platoon of the 123rd Battalion, on board a train.

HOTEL

FOR

56-58 W.

58 King St. East

PROBS

HUN

FREN

Russ

ENEMY

FIERCE

ON A

French Rep...

With End...

to C

FOE GA

Crown Prin...

First Tr...

form

Paris. The...

ing in Eng...

The battle...

observers r...

The German...

chiefly ag...

thority, an...

with great...

with admi...

with admi...

with admi...

with admi...