THE TRAIT

(Our Dumb Animals.)
They leap in the dusk of the beautiful stream
That flows in the forest way;
They dart in the eddy and shine in the shallows.
They flash like a beam of day.
They bound where the fall is pouring its foam
And rushing on to the gloom;
Oh, they go like a shaft from a quivering craft
Down, down where the waters broil.
They've caught the silver of birches that stand
Lifting roofs of green;
They've caught the fall, through the leafy wall,
Of the sunshine's royal sheen.
And music soles as the wild wind throbs
In the pines so dark and high;
Oh, there in the pool that curls and croons
As the calling sea, it hies;
Oh, there they flash, and leap and splash
On, on through the sunlit years,
Leads, Chris Manchester.

GENERAL FRENCH

General French has described the Ross rifle as a weapon of unsurpassed range and power. For several years the Conservative press and political speakers of that party have devoted much time and energy to denunciation of this rifle, and have been scenting scandals in connection with its manufacture. They have not been able to secure the condemnation of the weapon, and now General French gives it the seal of his endorsement. Sooner or later the Conservative critics of the government and its policies are found out, and the country learns that they have been wasting time in ill-founded attacks.

General French, in his address to the officers of the Montreal Garrison on Saturday, made some observations that will doubtless be taken to heart by officers and men of the militia throughout Canada. His watchword is efficiency, and that means discipline, alertness and hard work. A greater knowledge of the art of war is needed, General French tells us, and this is a matter for the officers. Greater skill in movement is needed, and that is a matter for the men. The government, as General French points out, has done a great deal for the building up of a strong militia in the country, against the protests of the "peace-at-any-price" advocates, and the responsibility for efficiency of the forces as constituted rests upon the officers and men. The general's visit will doubtless have a very stimulating effect upon the service generally.

THE DEMON OF SPEED

Mr. Glen H. Curtis went from Albany to New York yesterday in an aeroplane that was a heavier-than-air machine. The distance of 137 miles was covered in two hours and thirty-two minutes. On Saturday, at Indianapolis, a racing automobile covered 200 miles in two hours and a little over forty-six minutes. Thus long distance speed records were made both for aerial and auto travel. The aviators are making rapid progress in devising and constructing machines for long distance journeys. Within a few years the "air line" will be comparatively safe, although there are problems to be solved before passenger machines can be successfully operated between given points. With regard to the automobile the attainment of a higher rate of speed than has been reached is merely a matter of pride with builders, since there is already too much danger. Two men were killed and one fatally injured by the wreck of a speeding auto in Pennsylvania yesterday. On Saturday one man was killed and several injured by a collision between an auto and a trolley car in Brighton, Mass., and at Indianapolis in the speed tests one man had a leg broken and another was badly bruised. Minor accidents causing injury to passengers in autos are of daily occurrence, and are due to reckless riding. Hence there is no benefit to be derived from speedier machines. In the air, if safety can be assured, the way is clear for the highest speed, but even by that route prudent persons will prefer a more leisurely survey of the panorama below them. It is not worth while to sacrifice so many valuable lives to the demon of speed.

PLAIN SPEAKING

Rev. W. R. Robinson, in the address of which a summary report is published in this issue, challenges parents in particular and the citizens in general to mend their ways in their treatment of the children, whose duty it is to suppress such as Mr. Robinson describes, where they bear and cigarettes, and even smile in a superior fashion mark that this is merely sensation, but the boys are drinking beer and smoking cigarettes, and some of them getting drunk, and the fact is notorious. Hence there is need of greater vigilance and more of law enforcement. But the speaker did not by any means regard this as the only course to be pursued. He relentlessly pursue the man or woman who sells cigarettes to the boy, or who introduces liquor, but he so go after the parents. Six little boys in the police station at a mother or father in a story. Then there is a story. Then there is a story. Then there is a story.

MAN WHO SLEW WIFE AND PRIEST TALKS OF HIS DEED

St. Paul, Minn., May 29.—P. J. Gibbons, a commercial man, who last night shot and killed his wife in their home in St. Paul and later shot Father E. J. Walsh, the young pastor of St. Augustine Catholic church, talked freely of his deed today at the Ramsey county jail in St. Paul where he is confined.

"It's a peculiar world, looking at it from any angle," he said. "I've viewed it several ways and don't know much about it yet. I had a wife who didn't care for me but liked the companionship of others. She had children who were my children; the mother of eight children. She couldn't have cared for them nor for me either. I knew her treachery for more than a year but said nothing. She suspected I knew. We lived that way until today, for me a hell on earth; for her, I don't know, and she can't tell. It is all over now, and I am at peace with myself. Let follow what may."

"When Father Walsh came to South St. Paul I was jubilant. He appeared such a nice fellow that I went to him and volunteered to give what support was in my power. He thanked me and we became friends. Then followed a game of treachery and deceit, a game that I was not in, yet deeply interested in."

"I had invited Father Walsh to my home and introduced him to my wife and family. I first grew suspicious a year ago. My wife received a new silk dress by express. The package came to my office. I don't remember where. When I asked her who gave it to her she told me the women of a church society, because of active interest she had taken in their work, but her explanation did not satisfy me."

"The visit of Father Walsh were becoming too frequent to please me. He appeared at my home afternoons when I was in my office and spent hours in the company of Mrs. Gibbons. Sometimes my children were present but more often not. I said nothing to a wife, never mentioned that I thought anything of the frequent visits. I had planned my little game, which worked so successfully."

"Of the scores of South St. Paul residents who discussed the tragedy last night, not one could be found who breathed a word against Mrs. Gibbons' character. 'She was a model wife and mother, a good devoted woman,' was the substance of what none who knew had to say."

NEW YORK EXPERTS ON MARKET SITUATION

New York, May 28.—All the unfavorable factors that could be dragged into consideration were taken advantage of this week, and in the speculative market many gliding disasters which had no actual cause. Notwithstanding this the business and financial world base the prospects of good business upon the outcome of the crop, and the confidence necessary to do business it is inferred will be generated as soon as Congress adjourns.

The big wheat market is reaching the level of a large crop, and the certainty of Congress' adjournment—constitute the hopeful side.
