

LACK OF DEMAND SLOWS GRAIN FLOW

MONTREAL PORT OFFICIAL DENIES SHIP SHORTAGE

Admits Diversion of Vessels to Coal Trade Has Indirect Effect

MONTREAL, Aug. 24.—Interviewed here yesterday in regard to the movement of grain out of Montreal, T. Trihey, secretary and treasurer of the Montreal Harbor Commission, reiterated his statement made on August 12, that there is no shortage of ocean grain tonnage and that the only reason why grain is not moving outward as rapidly as in previous years is that there is no demand for it on the other side of the Atlantic.

"If the European countries were buying grain they would send their vessels to Montreal to transport it," he added. Mr. Trihey, however, admitted that diversion of a number of grain-carrying vessels to the coal trade during the strike in Britain might have had an indirect effect on the number of vessels touching the port of Montreal, but maintained the real reason why grain is not moving is that there is no demand for it overseas.

Forty-one lake boats are in the harbor today waiting to unload their cargo, but due to lack of space in the elevators this work must necessarily go ahead slowly.

Mr. Trihey's statement was in reply to a Bank of Montreal business summary, which said that through shortage of ocean tonnage here elevators were at a recent date filled to capacity, while 45 lake boats were waiting to unload an additional 3,699,000 bushels.
