TERMS OF THE IRISH TRUCE

Dublin, July 8.—Eamon De Valera, the republican leader, issued a manifesto yesterday afternoon urging national unity during the peace negotiations "with unflinching determination to ensure that all that is still necessary." With this is coupled a warning against "undue confidence" in the result.

The manifesto reads: "Fellow citizens: During the period of the truce each individual soldier and citizen must regard himself as the custodian of the nation's honor. Your discretion must prove in the most convincing manner that this is a struggle of an organized nation.

"In the negotiations now initiated your leaders will do their utmost to secure a just termination of this struggle, but history and particularly our own history, and the character of the issue to be decided, are a warning against undue confidence.

"Unflinching determination to ensure that all that is still necessary, and fortitude such as you have shown in all your recent sufferings—these alone will lead to the peace you desire. Should force be resumed against our nation you must be ready and do your part once more to resist. Thus alone you will secure the final abandonment of force and the acceptance of justice and reason as the arbiter.

(Signed) "DE VALERA."

To Suspend Hostilities. Dublin, July 10.—A general order directing the suspension of hostilities during the peace negotiations, the order to be effective from noon July 11, was issued last evening by Richard Mulcahy, chief of staff of the "Irish Republican Army."

Truce terms were agreed to at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon at British military headquarters. General Sir Nevill Macready, military commander in chief of Ireland, Colonel Brand and A. W. Cope, under-secretary in the office of the chief secretary for Ireland, acted for the British Army and commanders Robert C. Barton and E. J. Duggan, represented the "Irish Republican Army."

According to the Irish Bulletin, organ of the Dail Eireann, it was agreed on behalf of the British Army: "Firstly, that there be no incoming troops of the Royal Irish Constabulary and auxiliaries and no shipments of munitions into Ireland and no movements for military purposes except in the maintenance of drafts.

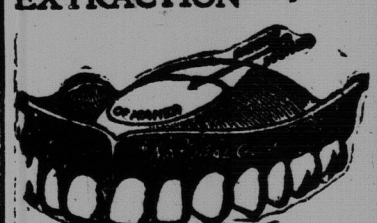

Secondly, that there be no provocative display of force, armed or unarmed.

Thirdly, that all provisions of the truce apply to the martial law area just as for the rest of Ireland.

Fourthly, that there be no pursuit of Irish officers and men or search for war material and military stores.

Fifthly, that there be no secret agents.
