Yet it is to be remembered that the militiamen of St. John, those sworn to defend their country, are never seen on parade except when marching to church. The one occasion annually on which private citizens are privileged to look upon the only warlike institution of our provincial life, is when those associated with it are being given instruction as to the best method of preventing war.

Young Man is Found Kneeling Lifeless Gives Aid to Wounded Cyclist and Conveys

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., June 19—
Kneeling beside the lifeless body of the bride he marcied eight days ago, Albert S. Munro was found dead this afternoon under circumstances that point to a mysterious double poisoning. On a dresser in the bed chamber, where the bodies were found, was a box partly filled with chocolates. This has given rise to the theory that the deaths resulted from poison. Several drugs and liquids also were found, but the discovery has thrown no light on

Analysis will be made of liquids found in the house, including chlorate of potash, which Mrs. Munro had used as a gargle for sore throat. She had made similar use of a small quantity of whiskey, contained in a bottle, and of whiskey, contained in a bottle, and this is being analyzed. Autopsies will be made tomorrow morning. ## ANTIQUES STOLEN

I.ONDON, June 19—The French police have appealed to the Scotland Yard authorities for assistance in respect to the daring theft from the public museum in Gueret, south France, of a nun ber of valuable antiues, which it is feared, may already have found their way to London—one of the world's chief markets for the disposal of genuine antiques.

As a result, all the principal dealers in the West End have been informed of the theft and furnished with a de-pal works of art stolen. These include the following:

DEATH OF SERVANT

FLANDREAU, S. D., June 19—Mrs.
Emma Kaufmann, accused of fatally beating Agnes Polreis, a domestic, three years ago, was today found guilty of battery and sentenced to serve fifty days in jail besides paying a fine of $100. The fine was paid promptly.

Charges of extreme cruelty were made against Mrs. Kaufmann, who was the wife of a wealthy Sloux Falls brewer, soon after the girl died, in June, 1906. Other servants of the woman told stories of harsh treatment, declaring the sixteen-year-old girl had been severely beaten on many occasions and that ashes and turpentine had been rubbed into her wounds at Mrs. Kaufmann's orders. On other occasions, they said, a red hot poker had been used and the Polreis girl then drenched with lye and scalling water.

On the strength of these charges the deaths resulted from poison. Several drugs and liquids also were found, but the discovery has thrown no light on the mystery.

One theory which has been much discussed tonight, in advance of an autopsy and chemical analysis, is that Mrs. Munro died from heart failure and that the shock killed her husband.

There was nothing to inficate violence. Mr. Munro and his bride were in their night clothes and the gas was burning brightly, indicating that they had been overcome when about to retire. The tragedy occurred in the home of Mr. Munro's uncle, George W. Vernes, captair of Pennsylvania Railroad detectives.

Captain Vernes and his wife left home yesterday, leaving the young couple to take care of the house. When Mr. Munro failed to report at Captain Vernes' office, where he was employed, today the house was broken open.

On the strength of these charges the body was exhumed, and, following an examination, Mrs. Kaufmann was arrested and accused of murder.
She was brought to trial in June of the following year, and offered the defence that the girl was subject to attacks of vertige. Mrs. Kaufmann This took more than an hour's time, but the King and Queen remained un-til the end, and comforted the sufferer with kindly words when he regained

NEW YORK, June 20.—President Reyes, of Colombia, was not a passen-ger on the Prinz Sigismund, of the Hamburg-American line's Atlas ser-vice when she arrived vesterday, as vice when she arrived vesterday, as was indicated in a despatch from Bogota. According to reports brought by the liner, Colombia is practically in a state of revolution, and President Reyes after dodging from one place to another in an effort to reach a place of safety was so overjoyed at his warm welcome to the ancient town of Santa Marta, that he decided to remain there until the next steamship.

ntil the next steamship. until the next steamship.

Significance attaches to the reports brought by the Prinz Sigismund owing to the fact that the acting President, General Jorge Holguin, had issued a decree abolishing the Colombian information bureaus abroad. Because of the great distances from Bogota to the towns on the seaboard and the difficulty of communication it seems that the news that President Bayes had not the news that President Reyes had not

Prinz Sigismund, Santa Marta was in a state of great excitement during the railway runs to Savanilla, where boats touch, and whence it is easier to get away than from the land-locked bay of Cartagena. Here the President found sentiment just as strong against him, so without stopping to pacify his enemies he took passage on the first vessel to Santa Marta, intending thence to board a steamship for New York, his object being, the rumor says, to lay his case before President Taft, in the hope of intervention.
