Timely Words of Advice and Encouragement to Young Men and Women are Given in This Discourse by Rev.

Frank De Witt Talmage, advice and encouragement to young men and women who in these summer days are graduating from college are given in the discourse on the text Numbers vi., 24, "The Lord bless thee." It came from one of the large colleges of the east, and it read thus: "The president, trustees and faculty of Princeton university request the plea-sorbing interest.

That invitation attracted me because it was sent by one of my old Sunday school scholars. As I held the | and sobbed like a little child." be standing in the sacred room of the dear old Second Presbyterian church in Pittsburg. I could see this young man, then a little boy in short trousers, sitting at the feet of his teacher. I could hear the sweet young voices singing the old songs we always loved to sing. As I read between the lines of that invitation I soliloquized: "How time does slip away! My Sunday school scholar is now a grown man. Willie's name has been changed to William. He is no longer a child. Graduating from one of the greatest universities of the world, he is about ould hear the sweet young voices singing the old songs we always loved to sing. As I read between the lines of that invitation I soliloquized: "How time does slip away! My Sunday school scholar is now a gnown man. Willie's name has been changed to William. He is no longer a child. Graduating from an of the greatest Graduating from one of the greatest universities of the world, he is about to step forth to the battle of life a

them, to nerve them and to encourage them not only with faith in themselves,

A WORD OF CONGRATULATION.

Ing his scholaristic career no ambition; he may have gone through school and college merely because his rich parents compelled him to go; he may have spent most of his time in idleness and known in college as "cramming" with the aid of a tutor. But such a young Iman does not represent the great mass of college graduates. For most young men and women the acquiring of a higher education has been a struggle, an awful financial struggle. Most of the effligge graduates come from humble bomes, and the education of these homes, and the education of these ed.

of my parents' wardrobe. Lately I have been upbraiding father for wearing such shabby clothes. Last night I again asked hm to get a new suit. 'Why father,' I said,' you have not bought a new suit for three years and mother's dress is so old and has been made over so many times that the needle marks of the east, and it read thus: "The turned and looked at me. Tears came into his eyes as he said: 'Harry, I am into his eyes as he said: 'Harry, I into his eyes as he said: 'Harry, I am sorry you are ashamed of the way your mother and I dress, but my boy, I have sure of your company at the exercises to be held during commencement week." That was all the wording the square card had on it, yet those those the square card had one it. twenty-three words had for me an ab-poorly from choice. We are doing it for you and Charles. Why, Talmage, added my classmate, 'I felt so bad when I realized all that my father and mother were doing for me that I wept

A STRUGGLE FOR EDUCATION.

To show what a strugle a higher edu ration might mean, the president of Hampden-Sydney college once told this William. He is no longer a chitch Graduating from one of the greatest universities of the world, he is about to step forth to the battle of life a fully equipped recomit. He is about to take his position by my side in the ranks. We must hereafter look inpon each other as brothers."

Then as I still read that invitation my study room changed again. I seemed to be a thousand miles away! I was walking through the long corridors of memory. It seemed to me as though I had gone each to the time when I myself, gowned and capped, was marching with the sentor class to participate in the scenes attending my own graduation. The classmates who were then seated by my side have all scattered. Some are ministers, some leactricizes, some merchants and some solders. They are living in the north and the south the east and the west. Some are dead. That graduation scene was a sad time for many of us. College affections are very strong. We young men knew that we should never be to each other the same again. Then as I sat in the quietude of my study with the hopes and anxieties of my own graduation day passing in review before me, I said to myself, "I wonder if some of the young seople whom I know and love who are graduation the north would not like me to come and esit by their side and tell them what the commencement expectes." be to each other the same again.

Then as I sat in the quietude of my study with the hopes and anxieties of my own graduation day passing in review refore me. I said to myself. "I wonder if some of the young resplication of the roung ground of the young resplication of the roung ground and like me to come and some the commencement exercises truly mean in their lives. I wondered as I wondered as I was there holding that invitation in moy hand if I could not at this critical time of their lives say something to inspire them, to nerve them and to encourage maturely aged by overwork, who sat maturely aged by overwork, who sat there in her faded gown. As he threw flowers into her lap he said: "Mother, they are yours, I have done but little; and made this simple, carnest prayer:

"O God, help me to say something that may be helpful to the young people who are graduating this spring and about to buckle on the armor of life. O Christ, may I be able to bring my young friends nearer to thee, as thou shalt bless them. May this plea be answered in the noble lives of these young men and women, which shall be consecrated to thee, and thy service.

For Jesus' sake I ask it, Amen."

they are yours. I have done but little, you have done everything." Then, you have done everything."

I have done everything." Then, you have done everything."

I have done everything." Then, you have done everything."

HOW YOU CAN REPAY.

I congratulate the young men and So, as I see you young men and wo-women who are graduating from the men coming up to graduation day, I different higher institutions this June see other faces behind yours. I see different higher institutions this June because now the financial struggle those whose sacrifices have made this scene possible. I congratulate you that for you the hard financial struggle of Here and there a young man who receives a college diploma may be the son of a rich father. He may have had during his scholaristic career no ambition; behalf is also over; I congratulate you behalf is also over; I congratulate you have had during his scholaristic career no ambition; because now you can go forth in the strength of God to accomplish some-thing in this world by the power of spent most of his time in idleness and only worked enough to just slip through the different examinations by what is the rewards which the old folks, your homes, and the education of these young men and women represents intense sacrifice lasting through many years not only on their own part, but also on the part of their loved ones.

Let us study as an illustration the past life of that young man who this year is graduating at the head of his years by the prayers and the encouragement of godly parents. In this are class at Yale or Harvard or the University of Michigan or the University of Michigan or the University of Nebraska. In all probability he was born in a farm house. The family was comparatively poor. In raising enough comparatively poor. In raising enough money to send him to college his mother broke down her health; his sisters for years have taught school or worked in the factory to put him there; the father to put him there, dismissed the hired man who once helped upon the farm; the boy himself has had to ring the chapel bell, to work during the thot months of summer, to wait upon the college dining table, to tutor backward students, to work night and day in order to stay there. Few people realize what the struggle of getting a college education means.

so filled with colleges and high schools and institutes of technology and schools of all sorts that the young man who has no education or a sadly defective one is mightily handicapped in the race of life. All the different positions of influence will be naturally filled by those who hay ethe best training, just as those who graduated from West Point naturally rose to be the great military leaders of the civil war. Here and there we might find a great volunce general, like John A. Logan or Alfred Howe Terry or Nelson A. Miles; but, after all, such men were excepand there we might find a great volunteer general, like John A. Logan or Alfred Howe Terry or Nelson A Miles; but, after all, such mem were exceptions. Grant and Lee, Sherman and ongstreet, Jackson and Sheridan, Beauregard and Meade, Polk and Thomas, Johnston and Hooker, were all graduates of West Point. In this age of many schools and colleges I would be willing to sacrifice is that twenty year life insurance policy.

So the young student who works at his studies is sometimes willing to sacrifice is that twenty year life insurance policy.

So the young student who works at his studies is sometimes willing to sacrifice is that twenty year life insurance policy.

So the young student who works at his studies is sometimes willing to sacrifice is that twenty year life insurance policy. lege education means.

One day a classmate was looking very blue and depressed. I said to him: "What is the matter? Has anything gone wrong?" "Yes," he answered, "something has gone wrong, and awfully wrong. You know my father and mother did not dress very well. As I went around in the homes of the different boys and saw how well their parents dressed I began to be ashamed but, after all, such men were exceptions. Grant and Lee, Sherman and ongstreet, Jackson and Sheridan, Beauregard and Meade, Polk and Thomas, Johnston and Hooker, were all student works the farther graduation day, like death, seems to be far away at the edge of the horizon. The more the student works the farther graduation day, like death, seems to be far away at the edge of the horizon. The more the student works the farther graduation day, like death, seems to be far away at the edge of the horizon. The more the student works the farther graduation day, like death, seems to be far away at the edge of the horizon. The more the student works the farther graduation day, like death, seems to be care the day seems to recede. But, my young friends, from now on you shall see the direct returns from your daily labors.

An aged writer once figuratively decation than I would expect one of them cared, "The longest half of a man's earthly life is that in which he lives is heading toward certain shipwreck. The sharper the knife that is placed in the hand of a little child the easier it is for that child to do iself an injury. Aaron Burr was an intellectual giant, but Aaron Burr's wasted life was caused by a heart that was morally bedwarfed by sin. Thomas Paine had one of the greatest brains ever placed within the skull of a man; but Thomas Paine's heart was so discussed. nas Paine's heart was so diseased Thomas Paine's heart was so diseased by sin that he was a drunkard, a reprobate, and a practical outcast. Lord Byron "drank every cup of flame, drank early—deeply drank—drank drafts which might have quenched the throats of millions and then died of wretchedness," because his heart was morally diseased. It is absolutely necessary for every young man and wo cessary for every young man and wo-man in order to live a happy and suc-cessful life to have a truly developed cessful life to have a truly developed Christian heart, yoked to a truly developed intellectual brain.

Now, young people, while the university teachers have been developing your brain, in all probability the moral teachers, like your Christian father and mother and sisters and loved ones, have been developing your heart. By your training and your past religious life you know what is right and what is wrong. On the day when as a young man James Harper left the home of his birth in Newtown, L. I., his mother placed her hand upon his head and sald: "Jimmy, you are now about to placed her hand upon his head and said; "Jimmy, you are now about to go into the great, wide world to make a success or a failure. Remember, my boy, you go from a Christian home and do not disgrace it. If you disgrace this home, remember that on the great day of judgment before God I shall witness against you and tell God that you may howeful up right and great day of judgment before God I shall witness against you and tell God that you were brought up right and dedicated by our prayers to his service, and that you went to destruction of your own accord." You know just as much what you morally ought to do as James Harper knew what he morally ought to do.

So on this graduation day of June I congratulate you young people because you have had such competent teachers to develop your intellect, and I also congratulate you because you have had such competent teachers to develop your heart. You were rocked in a Christian cradle. You were started forth with Christian prayers. There has never been a day in all the time you have been away to college that your father did not make a morning prayer like this: "God bless and protect and guard our boy and girl at college. God make John a good man. God make Sarah a good woman. Your mother, kneeling by his side, would say: "Amen, amen! God bless my absent son and my absent daughter." nothing but Jesus only rather than have you know everything that worldly scholars might want you to learn if thereby you would neglect to know about my Christ."

DO NO DISHONOR.

To show how much a young man ought to appreciate the moral train-ng of his old home, as well as the ining of his old home, as well as the intellectual training which he receives at collect, the late J. Sterling Morton, who was once a member of Mr. Cleveland's cabinet, placed this epitaph upon the tombstone of his dead wife; "Here lies Caroline French, wife of J. Sterling Morton and mother of Joy. Paul, Clark and Mark Morton." Then the father took his four sons, to the grave of his dead wife and said. "Boys, your mother is buried here. If any one of you does anything dishonorable of anything of which she would be ashamed if she were alive, I will chisel ashamed if she were alive, I will chisel ashamed if she were alive, I will caused your name from her tombstone." And so, addressing you in the same spirit in which Secretary Morton spoke to his four sons, I now say to you. "Young men and young women, remember the teaching of your parents, who first gave the right direction to your heart and nature, and, as you would not dishonor them by ignoring their me it eaching, so I beg of you do not estually dishonor in disgrace you may mater, from whose walls you being graduated today."

Again egratulate you, young popple, becan hereafter you are about to have a inspiration of dafly, rewards. It is a hard task for a young man, to work for something that is to wards. It is a hard task for a young man to work for something that is to happen ten, twenty, thirty years hence, to work for something that is to take place so far away that it seems as though the fact will never happen, to work for something in the way that a young man pays his first life insurance premium. I suppose my personal experience in getting insured is that of almost every other young man. When I took out a twenty year tonting life insurance policy. I felt, as tine life insurance policy, I felt, as though I was paying for something which would happen at the end of eternity. I paid my first premium very grudgingly; I paid the second in the same way. At the third year I was almost ready to surrender the whole policy, but as the flying years began to go over my head as a flock of migrating birds I began to see that the twentieth year was not so far away. Now, the last investment I would be willing to sacrifice is that

But as we grow older the years seem to have seven leagued boots. They grow so fast that they almost seem to be born with gray hairs. To the man in active life January seems almost to in active life January seems almost to tread upon the heels of December, and spring and autumn seem to be twin sisters. My young friends, though you may hardly be out of your teens, yet in the sense in which I speak you have already lived half of your life. During that first half you have had a hard struggle to get an education. At times you were almost in despair. But in answer to your mother's and father's prayers, and also to your own, God always came to your rescue. You were ways came to your rescue. You were able to get through somehow. Here you are at graduation day. So, in the latter part of your life, if you trust God and do your best he will surely see you and do your best he will surely see you safely through. You are going to have troubles, and hard troubles. You are going to stumble over the hillocks of new made grayes. You are going to have injustices practiced upon you. But if you will place your hand in the Divine Father's hand He will never let you

A STORY OF HEROIC SACRIFICE guide. To illustrate this truth Dr. Newton, the noted English divine, used suffering. The scene was laid in the little German village of Ragenbach little German village of Ragenbach. One day a number of people were gathered in the large room of the village inn. As the party was merrymaking, suddenly a huge dog appeared at the open door, the only door which afforded egress from the room. The monster's eyes were bloodshot; his long red tongue was protruding from the mouth; his lips were covered with a mass of white foam. At a glance everyone saw that the dog was mad. Some of the blacksmith arose. His arms were a mass of knotted muscles. "Stand back, men" he cried. "There is need of only one man dying here. If necessary. I will be that man." So, while the village blacksmith leaped forward and clutched the mad dog by the throat and bore the struggling beast to the floor, the assembled people made their escape. The mad dog burried his teeth in the arms of the blacksmith, but he would not let go until all his friends rificing his only begotten Son for us. As the village blacksmith died in the chain which he had riveted to his own vary.

Now, my young friends, who are about to graduate this June day, I commit your earthly and heavenly life into the protecting care of your Divine Father. And as your days of learning are not closed, but have just commenced, as you go from college into the great school of life, I bid you perform your tasks well. If you will do this by the power of the Holy Spirit there shall come a day when you shall be participants in another graduation scene. Then you shall have a diploma taken from the Lamb's book of life. That diploma shall be written in the blood of Jesus Christ. That diploma shall allow you to graduate from an earthly preparatory school into the great university of heaven where higher lessons and nobler service await you and where you shall never cease to learn about the goodness of God and to sing the praises of Christ and His redeeming love.
