

Hudson's Bay—continued.

I.

Imports by the company. See Company.

Indian, narrative of one brought to England of the countries southward of the Fort York, or the company's settlements, 228 a, 243.

Indians, trade to York Fort; character, 215 b, 219 b, et passim.—their manner of estimating the length of their journey to the company's settlements, 216 a.—in what manner the company trade with them, 216 b, 218 a.—come down the rivers in the winter on the ice, ib.—subsist on dried flesh reduced to a powder, 217 a.—and on fish, 221 a, 226 b.—have no fixed place of abode, but are continually wandering, 218 b.—manner of living; remain in a place no longer than game is to be found; how they track their way, 247 a.—smear their bodies with oil and grease; advantages derived from that habit, ib.—great esteem they have for brandy, 220 a.—their roving habits incompatible with the arts of tillage, 220 b, 221 a.—distance some supposed to come, 223 a.—blacken their faces with lead-ore, 227 b.—indolence, 230 b.—effects that might be produced on them by an increased trade and greater intercourse, 233 b.—many particulars of their manners and mode of life, 243 to 248.

— those in the neighbourhood of Oninipique Lake go naked in the summer, and stain their bodies, 245 a.

— funeral ceremonies, 277 a.—impatience to be at war, 277 b.

— several seen wanting a joint of the little finger, 247 b.

Iron, or tin-ore, supposed to exist in the country, 216 b.

L.

Lead-ore, supposed to exist in the country, 225 a.—some ore assayed, 225 b, 226 a, 227 b.—specimen, 231 b.

Lynx, 246 b.

M.

Marten-skins, an article of trade, 216 a, 222 b.—those and fox's the most valuable, 225 a.

Messengers sent to the Indians; carry with them a pipe of tobacco, 276 a.

Minerals supposed to exist in the country, 216 a b, 222 b, 225 a, 226 a b, 227 b.—the discovery of them discouraged by the company's agents, 225 b.

Moose-skins, 230 a.

N.

North-west Passage, adventurers in the discovery discouraged by the company's agents, 228 b, 250, 284, 285 a.—observations by the voyagers, 229 a.—opinion in favour of it, 229 b.—against it, 230 b.—opening the Hudson's Bay trade, would render the discovery more practicable, 233 a, 334 a.—company's instructions respecting the prosecution of discoveries northward, 254, 255, 258, 259, 260.

Project for discovering entered into by several persons; fit out two ships for that purpose; petition the privy council to be incorporated as a company for discovering the north-west passage, 284, 285.

O.

Oil might be procured, 216 b, 219 a, 221 b, 222 b, 224 b.

Orders and instructions sent to the chiefs at the company's factories, 266 to 271, 282.

P.

Partridges numerous, 222 a, 229 a.

Pelts, an article of trade, 216 a, 217 b.

Pipe of tobacco, greatly esteemed by the Indians; carried by messengers sent to the Indians as credentials, 276 a, 277 b.—used as a symbol of authority, 278 a.

Poets, a nation of Indians known by that name, 220 b, 227 b, 275 a, 276, 277 a, 278 a.

Prince of Wales' fort, its strength, 215 b.

Provisions obtained chiefly by killing geese, fowl, and deer, 217 a.—all bread brought from England, 219 b.—allowances of provisions to the company's servants, 222 a, 224 b.—venison, 229 a.

R.

Raccoon-skins, an article of trade, 230 a.

Rivers, easy of navigation; not many nor great falls, 216 b, 222 a, 223 b.—what boats can sail up Albany river, 218 b.—rapidity, 222 a.—how navigated, 223 b.

S.

Seals found in Hudson's Bay; oil may be made from them, 216 b.

Settlers, but few European; no encouragement given to them, 216 a.—more might be induced to settle, 217 b.—benefit that would result therefrom, 221 a.

Squirrel-skins of little value, 230 b.

Sturgeons, 244 b.

T.

Timber found in the country, 216 b to 219 a, 221 a b, 245 b.

Trade of Hudson's Bay to be considered, 215 a.—nature of carried on with the natives, 216 a, 217 b, 220 a, 225 a.—conjecture of the likelihood of additional articles being brought into trade, 216 b.—how carried on, 216 b, 217 b, 230 a.—articles bartered with the Indians, 218 a.—an open trade recommended, 219 a, 227 a.—discouraged by unfair dealing with the natives, 220 a.—might be increased by a liberal behaviour towards them, ib. 225 a.—and having some distant stations, 221 a, 223 a, 225 b, 227 a, 229 b.—companies considered necessary, and why, 221 b.—impediments opposed by the agents of the company to adventurers in making discoveries, 224 a.—description of the trade, 230 a b, 231 a.—opening the trade would not increase it, 231 b.

An open trade would be beneficial, and why; the increase of the African, after the extinction of the Guinea Company, instanced, 231 b.—opinion how such trade could be conducted, and of its advantages over a corporate trade, 232 a b.—would induce discoveries, 233 a.—forts not necessary for its protection.—African trade instanced, 234 a.

The high price set on the company's goods for exchange, a discouragement to the Indians, 246 a, 247 b.

Standard of trade at the Company's factories, 257.

Representations from the Company's factors on the improvement of trade, and their instructions thereon, 271 to 273.

Difficulty of trading with the northern Indians, from the danger they are exposed to in the winter on returning, 272.

See Company.

Trees incline towards the south, and their branches on that side stronger, 247 a.

Turpentine produced, 221 a.

W.

Whalebone might be procured, 219 a, 222 b, 224 b, 225 a.

Whals found near Hudson's Bay, 216 b, 229 b.

Workmen, difficulty of procuring, 216 a.

Y.

York-fort, its state, 215 b.

Hume, Alexander, Esq.

Presents the Report on the Hat Manufacture; dated 11 February 1752 - - - page 371.