

OAC STUDENT MAY BE POSSIBLE SUICIDE

Toronto, Ont (CUP)—Police have ruled out murder and suggested suicide as possible motive for the death of a University graduate, whose body was found late Friday near the Ontario Agricultural College.

The skeleton of the man identified as John Kilpatrick, 35, was discovered in the densely wooded bush on private property bordering on the outskirts of the OAC Campus.

Kilpatrick was in third year Bacteriology at OAC.

Ontario Provincial Police in Guelph said last night that the body was found fully clothed. There were no signs of beating or other foul play.

The last time Kilpatrick was found alive was walking out of an examination at the college. At the time students described him as "a bit depressed."

Constable Heighton said last night in view of Kilpatrick's past psychiatric troubles, it seemed reasonable he might have taken his own life. "But," he added, "because of the badly decomposed state of the body, it will take some time before we can actually label it suicide."

The constable pointed out that the body was probably not noticed last winter because of the heavy blanket of snow that covered the area.

During the last war Kilpatrick served in the Canadian Navy. He was discharged in 1956 to undergo treatment in the Psychological ward of the Ontario Veteran's Hospital.

Mr. Kilpatrick, a graduate of U. of T. Physical Education, was married during the war. His wife and two children now live in Minto Lake, Ontario.

Deutschland Über Alles

The Dalhousie German Society was founded several years ago to promote the study of German culture, history and language. This year the Association has made a good start towards its goal by planning a tentative program which includes a language "workshop" for conversational German, a play by a German author, a "Schillerabend" to commemorate the 200th anniversary of the birth of Friedrich Schiller, and various social events for the members.

At the next meeting of the Society to be held Wednesday, 8:30 p.m., Oct. 21, at 270 South Street, the program will be formally discussed and all final decision made. Other items on the agenda include financial affairs, and the election of certain officers.

The German Society always welcomes new members, whether they be students, faculty members, or citizens of Halifax. An invitation is extended to all interested persons who would like to participate in our activities.

30 Freshmen Bursting

Bursting at its seams, Room 234 rocked to the clamour of about 30 eager Freshmen on Tuesday. Stu MacKinnon, Freshman Representative on the Council presided. Following election of a strong slate of officers, Jim Hurley, last year's president voiced various words of wisdom.

Remembering the sad plight of the Freshmen last year, Hurley suggested a class party. According to Sophomore Jim, too many suave upperclassmen are present during initiation week. A class party would be, if attended, the solution to the problem. The Freshettes belong to the Freshman class!

Large number of Frosh endured the rigours of initiation. Their unquenched spirit should be adequate to stamp out the apathy of the elite.

Officers elected were: Jim Cowan, President; Dick Thompson, Vice-president; Heather Hebb, Secretary-Treasurer; and David Seaman, Publicity Chairman.

Anglicans Arise

In keeping with the aim of Canterbury, the Anglican Church Organization on the Campus, Anglican students at Dalhousie, along with student nurses, meet regularly on Sunday evenings to learn the faith, history and practice of the Anglican Communion. These meetings, held at 8:30 p.m. in the Hall of All Saints' Cathedral, will center around the Sacraments of the Church during the fall term.

as well. If he does, it may not be such a good sign—you may remind him of someone who took the course in '15 and failed both the final and the supp. All in all, it is better not to expect too much. Don't feel hurt if the prof forgets your name. It might be wise to remember this. He may ask you to remind him someday.

We can beat the Name Game. Just relax. If you're forgotten and really want to know—be honest and admit it. If the other guy has forgotten you as well, don't feel depressed, rejected, or unAmerican. After all, it's a healthy sign, sort of. It shows your first former meeting was tranquil, un-neurotic, unstrained with implication-fraught events, strained summit meetings, and deluged with masses of VIPs to remember from Kerr to Kruschev, there's something refreshing and peaceful about the forgettable.

game, they deserve credit for arousing their charges to almost a fever pitch — something which has been purported to be next to impossible on this 'apathy-ridden' campus."

Just note the tone of pride in those three examples.

The University of Manitoba has long been regarded by themselves and others as the most apathetic campus in the world.

Yes sir, The Manitoban refuses to even mention the word, so for granted do they take their superiority.

But they are concerned with the price of some of the best remedies for apathetic indigestion.

In a recent editorial they attack Premier Duff Roblin's imposition of the fifteen cent glass of beer thusly:

"The Aggies (agricultural students in the West) should stop playing with their grain (and there is a heavy wheat surplus) to form the Retail Outlet Brewers for Low Income Naturalists (ROBLIN.) Then, under proper testing and supervision, beer could be had on campus at a few cents a glass."

And does anyone in the house remember the five-cent glass?
