Dear Uncle Willie,-

The ordinary words of thanks seem trite and insignificant when it comes to expressing our appreciation of your Christmas gift to Granny and me, but nevertheless I do thank you very very much for it. It comes at a time, too, when it is needed probably more than it ever has been, both in itself and for the way it has eased our minds. In spite of the fact that Mr. Duncan has been so kind and generous I have not wanted to ask him for the money, and your gift has just perfectly bridged the gap.
