The Sick Man's Dream.

This beautiful piece of poetry was written by the late Judge Robert Raymond Reed, of Georgia, after ward Governor of Florida. It has never appeared in print before. The lady for whom it was peuned, now sendent of the later of resident of this city, has kindly permitted us to grit to the public through our columns. It is one those choice, yet unobtrubsive gems, struck outfrom rich mine of thought, that has only to see the light have its beauties appreciated.—Montgomery (Ala) Jou Methought that in a sacred wood I slumbered on a bank of flowers, Soothed by a streamlet's wandering flood, That gurgled through the whispering bowers And dreams did visit me-so bright. An Elysium only could beget them; They brought me such intense delight, I never, never can forget them.

It seemed that thou wert present there. Thine eyes with living lustre beaming; The star of morning decked thy hair, And all around its radiance streaming, Imparted to thy lip, thy cheek, The brightness of immortal glory. O, can we ne'er such visions seek,

But in some old romantic story.

And near thee hung a lyre of gold. Beneath a bow of shadowing roses-Roses, like those that Love infold, When from his toils the god reposes: And when thy fingers touched the strings, They yielded numbers rich and swelling, As when some spirit sweetly sings, At evening, from her viewless dwelling.

Yet changeful was that music's strain; It told of hope, and youth, and gladness Of pleasure's wreath, of true love's chain, And then of blighted joys and sadness; At last an answering voice there came, From a bright cloud that then descended And while it spoke a quivering flame Was with the fleecy whiteness blended.

I may not tell the words so kind By that same plaintive voice then spoken: For the dark night-storm's rudest wind Came o'er my dream, and it was broken. But, lady, tranquil be thy hours, not become rich at once-not as soon, per-to some lawyer, as she thouget her friend Stubbs was less correct than he might be I asked her to step into the parlor, and went myself to my breakfast and my wife, whose advice I always asked upon such points. We had known Mrs. Styles many years; her husband was a great land owner in a goodly town of the western country. and with a disinterested love that deserved some better aim, ever pressed it on his helpmate, as the first rule of life, to get all she could, and keep all she got. He died, and Mrs. Styles became more and more fond of wealth, and sensible of the admirable advice which her husband had given

I stated the facts to my wife, and waited

"Well, William," said she, after drinking a cup of coffee upon my story, "I fear the old lady has some money-getting claim in view; you know she has of late given all her affections to getting more wealth. I would therefore recommend her to the most honest and conscientious lawyer in town. She relies on your judgment, use it not for her seeming but real good."

I counted my legal acquaintances over, before I hit upon the one answering to the terms " honest and conscientious," in the sense which I knew Eilen had used them; at length I found him, and taking my hat, walked with the widow to his office.

We found Mr. Sawyer at his desk; he rose and gave us chairs, and awaited Mrs. Styles' statement. But before I go on, on this point let me say a few words of this under his left arm close to his heart-this her errand. honest lawyer in the broadest, highest sense

Mr. Sawyer thought it was not only proper to refuse acting for those whose claims he thought dishonest, but he counted it also a duty and a privilege, nay, a mark of Christian character, to try to persuade them to forget such claims. He sought time and practice as a means where-by to exert moral indusers. and needy from the strong and cruel, but by to exert moral influence over the comnot his client only, but his God and his At the last visit his bill was presented, and country, and he looked upon him who, for strongly protested as enormously high. gain, would prosecute a suit which he thought unfair, as a traitor to his country you told me, and I have only followed your and his religion, in act, whatever he might advice." be in intention. And now we shall let Mrs. Styles state her business. ### The Considerate Doctor.

A poor girl who had just recovered from a fit of sickness, gathered up her scanty earnings, and went to the doctor's office to settle her bill. Just at the door, the lawyer of the place passed into the office before her on a similar errand.

"Well, doctor," said he, "I believe I am indebted to you, and I should like to know how much.'

"Yes," said the doctor, " I attended upon you about a week, and what should you charge me for a week's services, or what do you realize, on an average, for a week's services?"

"Oh," said the lawyer, " perhaps seventyfive dollars." "Very well, then, as my time and profession are as valuable as yours, your bill is seventy-five dollars." The poor girl's heart sank within her, for should her bill be snything like that, how could she ever pay? The lawyer paid his WHITE LACE CURTAINS, bill and passed out, when the doctor turned phenomenon - this man with his head to the young woman, and kindly inquired

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS. WHY ARE WE SICK?

It has been the lot of the human race to be weighed down by disease and suffering HOLLOWAY'S PILLIS are specially adapted to the relief of the WAKK, the NERVOLS the DELICATE, and the INFIRM, of all climes, agrees exes and constitution. Professor Holloway personally superintends the manufacture of his medicines, and offers them to a free and enlightened people, as the best remedy the world ever saw for the removal of disease.

These Pills Purify the Blood. These famous Pills are expressly combined to operate on the stomach, the liver, the kidneys, the lungs, the skin and the bowels, correcting any derangement in their functions, purifying the blood, the very fountain of life, and hus curing disease in all its forms. Dyspepsia and Liver Complaints.

Wearly half the human race have takan these Pills. I has been proved in all parts of the world, that nothing has been found equal to them in cases of disorders of the liver, dyspepsia and stomach complaints generally. They soon give a healthy tone to those organs, however much deranged, and when all other means have fatied. General Debility.—Ill Health. Many of the most despotic Governments have opener ther Cu-tom Houses to the introduction of these Pil that they may become the medicine of the masses. Lear ed Colleges admit that this medicine is the best remed ever known for persons of desicate health, or where the ystem has been impaired, as its invigorating propertie ever fail to afford relief. Female Complaints. No Female, young or old, should be without this ceibrated medicine. It corrects and regulates the monthly courses at all periods, acting in many cases like a chara, It is also the best and saltest medicine that can be given to children of all ages, and for any complaint; consequently no family should be without it.

These celebrated Pills are wonderfully efficacious in the following complaints.
