Fr. Nangle Tells of Oct. 11-12th

Extract From Letter to a Friend Here Shows How Terra Nova's Sons Avenged July 1st—Capt. Wes March Has a Hand to Hand Encounter With a German—Fr. Nangle Says "Men More Men Are Needed"

Rev. Father Thomas Nangle, who has been at the front for several months past, in writing to a friend here gives the appended graphic description of doings among our brave lads and their gallantry, with some particulars of the deaths of Capt. Donnelly and O'Brien and Lieut. Ebsary and Norris:—

"By this time you will no doubt have heard of the Newfoundland Regiment's part in the great advance of October 11th and 12th, when Norris, Ebsary, Donnelly and O'Brien made the supreme sacrifice. It looks doubtful for Cecil Chitt as well, and I fear the worst. Sunday last (Oct. 22nd) I got in touch with some of our boys and learned the first particulars. Yesterday my Regiment were marching all day, but at the end after a mug-up, I started off on my own, and found Fr. Hogg—who as you know is the Nfld. Chaplain—and John Edens. I stayed with them all night and next morning got to the main camp, where I was very kindly looked after by the boys. Had lunch with Wes. March, Leo Murphy and Max Johnson. I saw some of your friends including Summers, who is looking very fit. Poor Steve Norris's going was very sad indeed. When you remember what friends he and I were at school and afterwards, you will realize what a shock it was to me. The day before the advance our lads were in the trenches when the Boches started to bombard our lines. Every-one thought they would follow up with an attack. It was so violent. Steve's company got it pretty heavy. He left his platoon at 11 a.m. to make his report and get his further orders from Capt. Donnelly, who was in charge that morning. That was the last seen of him. As he was going along the trench the Germans started an unusually heavy bombardment and the whole trench was blown in. No one knows if he was hit or buried under the tons of debris that were thrown up by their fire, as up to the present his body has not been found. It looks as if a number of our brave lads who were in that section went with him. The next day when the bombardment ceased, shortly after 2 o'clock, the boys went over the parapet as cheerful as larks despite their experience the previous day. Donnelly was hit just as he had reached the German trenches. His last words were "The trench is ours, boys." He was hit in the back of the head with a shrapnel bullet, and died almost instantly. Sam Ebsary was practically riddled with bullets about the lower regions, and did not live very long. He died as he had lived—cheerful and brave to the end. O'Brien was also on the German parapet when he was hit in the stomach. The piece did not enter, but he was in a poor condition physically, though he lingered a week. And that was the end of four of the finest and bravest men I have ever known. Our boys killed Germans by the hundred to avenge their deaths. They also took over a hundred prisoners that afternoon, which Wes. March put digging trenches for our lads. In their attack they certainly had their revenge for the officers and men they lost. March distinguished himself in a hand to hand encounter with a German. Wes. made a lounge at him and tripped and fell. The Boche took to his heels and ran, although he had his rifle and bayonet in his hands. March jumped up and ran after him and as he gained ground the Hun began to shriek. Wes. got him at a bend when the German turned on him, but Wes. proved his worth, and as a result there there is one man less in the Kaiser's army to-day. Our boys certainly had their revenge for July 1st, but now there are many gaps to be filled in the ranks, which must be filled promptly if the Nfld. Regiment is to retain its place as a unit in the most famous Division of the whole British Army. I hope recruiting is going on apace at home. It is only when one is out here that the seriousness and enormity of our purpose can be realized. If we are to drive the Hun back we must have "Men and More Men," and it is the bounden duty of every eligible young man to take up arms and help to win. Our losses have been great, and at any time are likely to be greater, and the Regiment must have the reserves in readiness. It has paid its price in blood on Gallipoli and in France, and it will not do now to have the Regiment absorbed and ultimately forgotten."

At the Recruiting parade to-night, the Nfld. Highlanders' Pipes will attend and the speaker will be Lieut. Hicks.

30 More Enlist Last Night

Recruiting Rally Last Night Was Marked by Great Enthusiasm—Lieut. Lumsden Gives Stirring Address as Does Mr. L. E. Emerson—Calls all Who Can to Come Forward and Fill the Gaps in Nfld. Regiment

The big recruiting meeting held last night brought another great throng of citizens to Water Street despite the wind storm raging, and there was great enthusiasm evident. After assembling at the recruiting station opposite the Court House the Naval Reservists and Volunteers lined up and headed by the fine band of the Catholic Cadet Corps playing airs marched to the Seaman's Institute, thence west to the foot of Waldegrave Street and returning halted in Baird's Cove, at which the multitude had conveyed. The first to address the gathering was Lieut. Stan Lumsden, a veteran of many actions, who has been through most of the fighting in France with the Canadians, who had been transferred to Ours and was seriously wounded. His appeal was a spirited one and his description of the brave work of our lads at the front was graphically told.

The next speaker was Mr. L. E. Emerson, B.L., who in an interesting and eloquent address reviewed the whole war situation. He described the brutal German tactics, their disregard for solemn international pacts, their barbarities practiced in defenceless non-combatants in occupied territories and their ruthless prosecution of hostilities. He gave unstinted praise to the brave men of the Army and Navy and concluded by exhorting all eligible young men to rally to the colours and form a solid phalanx of brave Newfoundlanders to teach the arrogant enemy that "the flag that's braved a thousand years the battle and the breeze" cannot be attached with impunity.

When the meeting concluded the following volunteered for the Army and two for the Navy. For the Army. W. McGinn, F. Byrne, J. Morrissey, Ed. Morrissey, H. Hanlon, J. Kearney, P. J. Tobin, W. Ashman, A. N. Burgess, Hy Gardner, Geo. Lush, J. Keough, T. Dooley, J.-Croke, J. Ryan, H. Kearsey, A. Bulley, H. Molloy, F. English, E. Fleming, R. King, R. Pechford, J. Keane, S. Taylor, M. M. Power, W. Dowden, J. Connell, J. Walsh, P. Dunphy, all from St. John's; and H. Scott of Mannuels.

LAI D TO REST.

The funeral of the late Dr. Thos. Harrahan took place at 9.30 Thursday morning from his late residence Henry Street. The cortege went down Victoria St., through Water St., to the Cathedral where Requiem Mass was celebrated by Rev. J. J. Walker, the full choir being present. The funeral was one of the largest held in Harbor Grace for many years, showing the esteem in which deceased was held by all classes in this community. Amongst those who attended were Rev. Canon Noel, Rev. Mr. Heggitt of St. Paul's, Rev. Mr. Coffin, Presbyterian Pastor; Rev. Mr. Holmes was out of town but a letter was received regretting the absence of the Rev. Gentleman. As the funeral passed down Water St. the blinds were dropped in all the stores out of respect to one of their most conspicuous citizens of the town. A man who was always ready to help church and state. A significant fact proving the great love and estimation at which deceased was held may be mentioned by scores of old comrades could be seen weeping over the loss of a sincere friend and benefactor. Being a prominent member of K. of C. Dalton Council, representing those present from outlying places as well as many true friends of the deceased. After Mass the procession lined up anew and wended its way to the cemetery, on the Carbonare Road, when near the gateway to the left beneath the shades of a new growth of firs lie the mortal remains of a good man to await the call on Resurrection Day. May his soul rest in peace. H. R. Grace, Nov. 10, 1916.

SPECIAL MEETING FIREMEN'S UNION. Over 50 members of the Firemen's Union attended a special meeting of the organization held last night. It was stated that since the strike began a number of the younger members had volunteered for the service of the Empire, and others engaged in avocations other than stoking, while some had gone firing in various ships and several were unemployed. To the latter the Union voted $5.00 per week until they secure work. Members will also be permitted to engage with ship owners in a way which will not interfere with their status as unionists.

Newfoundlander Gets Military Cross

Mrs. Lewis, of York Street, a couple of days ago had an interesting letter from her son, Private Ralph Lewis, from "Somewhere in France." Ralph shortly after the outbreak of the war enlisted in the famous Canadian Fighting 25th. at Sydney and was through all the sanguinary actions which that famous aggregation of fighting men went through and escaped without injury. He gives his brother the splendid news that something over a month ago he was awarded the Military Cross for bravery in action, showing that our boys no matter where they are as good as the best and are fearless and intrepid. Ralph is well known to many here. He is the youngest son of the late Wm. Lewis, pilot, and his brother John is with the First Nfld. Regiment, having enlisted at Ayr after coming off a transport plying between Indian ports and Marseilles, France, in which he was engaged as an engineer. Another brother, for years a resident of South Africa, went through the Boer war, serving with distinction in that campaign. To his widowed mother and sisters, Mrs. John Moore and Miss Grace Lewis of the Central Telephone Station, as well as the young hero himself the Mail and Advocate offers its sincere congratulations.

Barr, has arrived after a run of 21 days at Gibraltar. She has been ordered on to Patras, Greece. People by the Sagona say they never saw game so plentiful on Labrador as this fall. Partridge and rabbits are numerous and the former sell there at 10 cents a pair and partridge 20 cents per brace. We are glad to hear that Rev. Dr. Jones, Rector of St. Thomas's Parish, who has been ill of late and confined to his room, is considerably improved. It is expected that he will soon be able to resume his duties.

Girl Burned To Death

A most frightful death befell little Flossie Morris, the latter part of last week. The unfortunate girl was living with her sister, Mrs. J. C. O'Rourke. On Thursday night while lighting a lamp her clothing ignited and in an instant she was wrapped in flames. Her sister who had just gone up stairs to put one of the children to bed heard the screams and rushed to her assistance; the girl frantic with her plight ran out of doors and for the well, John O'Brien who happened to be passing at the time also hastened to the child's rescue; and with considerable effort succeeded in getting the burning clothing from her body, but not before the flesh in many places had been burnt to the bone. Dr. Fisher was immediately summoned and everything possible was done to alleviate the suffering. Very little hopes, however, were entertained from the beginning for the child's recovery, and Friday night about twenty-four hours after the accident, she expired.

Several reports have got about as to how the accident occurred. So far as we can gather, however, the girl had just trimmed the lamp and lighted it; with one hand she kept a little child who was in the room with her from the lamp while with the other reached for the chimney. In so doing it is thought she passed her arm over the flame which ignited the sleeve of her blouse. She pulled her arm down by her side to extinguish the fire when her dress caught in flames.

Blenda Florence Rose Morris was born at St. John's, on October 12, 1902, and was therefore just passed fourteen years of age. She was the youngest child of Mr. Thomas Morris, by his first wife.—Western Star. This is the accident to which the Mail and Advocate referred recently. The victim is a daughter of Mr. Thomas Morris of Cabot Street.
