The place was crowded with citihundreds of miles to attend the proceedings. There were men present from Norway House and from Bad Hope murdered Fred Smith or not was not commented upon by the members of the jury. After hearing the evidence of seven witnesses, including the prisoner himself and the wife of the man who was killed, ar open verdict was returned in which it was declared that Smith came to his death from loss of blood caused by a wound received from a shot gur in the hands of Bill Hope. Hope came to town in company with a provincial detective as a witness. After the return of the verdict he was placed on the charge of murder.
