WORD FOR THE CANOE.

The Toronto Telegram has the imboat to a graceful cance as a means of enjoyment in the matter aquatic sport. It goes further to condemn the cance for "emptying homes and filling graves every summer." and ends up with a eulogy for the "steady-going" rowboat. The Gait Reporter evidently agrees with this line of talk, and re-produces the omment. As far as canoe fatalities are concerned, the victims are gen erally people who should never have entered either a rowboat or a canoe management, the cance is looked upon as a safe craft and by all means the most conducive to real enjoyment. The amateur who undertakes to handle a cance, without first receiving instructions as to the proper way of managing it, would be taking no greater risk than the person who stepped into a rowboat under similar conditions. The canoe should not be condemned on account of the blunders of people who have been overlooked by the managers of insane asylums. In view of the evident anxiety and nervousness felt by the prosaic and unromantic editors of the Telegram and Reporter, w would suggest for their persona benefit that an old-fashioned, flatbottomed sand scow is considered even safer than a rowboat.

The Stratford City Council is holding three minute sessions, while the Council in Chatham is sticking it out for three hours. Of course the affairs of the Maple City are of considerable more importance than those of its classic rival, but we doubt if there is that much difference.

Kaid Sir Harry Maclean, the remarkable soldier of fortune who has just been liberated by the Moorish rebels, is one of the Macleans of Lochbuie, and is 57 years of age. He entered the Warwickshire regiment about thirty years since. When he was stationed at Gibraltar he crossed over to Tangier, and so impressed the Sultan that shortly it was announced that he had been appointed military, instructor to the Morocan army. For thirty years he has been settled in that unrestful kingdom. He is a man of small stature, much resource, and great courage, who has adopted the manners, costume, and customs of the Moors, but has remained British in his interests and Scottish at heart. It is charabteristic that he introduced the hermines into Morocco, even just been liberated by the Moorish It is characteristic that he introduced the bagpipes into Morocco, evened the bagpipes into Morocco, eventually forming a pipers' corps.
