THE DOOR NOT CLOSED.

"If the Conservative party should be returned to power, without repudiating any contract the government would have the right if the whole people so declare at the polls to appropriate the undertaking of the Grand Trunk Pacific, and build the line as the people's line from the Atlantic to the Pacific.—Applause.

"That, then, is the issue. The door is not closed. I believe the people will decide in their own interest. I don't ask them to decide anything unfair or unjust, because vested rights must be observed and the sanctity of contracts must be respected. But the door is not closed. And once more I declare to you it is for the people to say whether we shall have in Canada a government-owned railway or a railway-owned government."—Applause.—R. L. Borden at Windsor, Ont.

KUROPAT'S PROGRAM.

It is announced that Kuropatkin has decided to quit running away, to face about, and to make the Japs run, until he reaches and relieves Port Arthur. From Kuropatkin's standpoint it is the proper thing to do. The Japs have been hunting the tiger. It is now the tiger's turn to do the hunting. But can Kuropatkin carry out his program?

When his army had the advantage of fortifications and the choice of the battle ground, the Japs were too many for him. He claims that he now has more men than Oyama. But the Japs will have the advantage of being on the defensive, and one man with a modern rifle, behind earthenworks, ought to be good for ten men in the attacking force, and that the Japs will stay to the last man is simply shown by the history of the war. Of course there is the question of strategy to be taken into account; but we do not think that the story of the war, so far as it has gone, tends to show that the Japs are inferior to the Russians in the matter of strategy.

We do not think that Kuropatkin will be able to carry out his intentions.

THE NEW PARLIAMENT.

Two hundred and fourteen members composed the Parliament which has just been dissolved. The tenth Parliament of Canada will be elected on November 3rd, will have the same number of members, but the constituencies which they will represent will be different in many cases. The changes have been brought about by the redistribution bill passed during the session of 1903, and known as the Representation Act. The unit of representation in Canada being based upon the ratio which the population Quebec bears to its permanent representation to 65 members, it follows that there are no changes in the constituencies in that province; but Nova Scotia having lost two seats by the redistribution will have 18 members instead of 20 in the last Parliament. Prince Edward Island will have four members instead of five and New Brunswick 13 seats instead of 14. The greatest loss of numbers is suffered by the Province of Ontario, whose representation has been cut down from 92 to 86. Some historical names have been dropped in the process of reduction and reconstruction. Cardwell and Bothwell have both been wiped out, Niagara will no longer appear as a part constituency, while East Bruce, North Hastings and East Durham also disappear. New constituencies in Ontario are Thunder Bay and Rainy River, Parry Sound and North Toronto. Ten additional constituencies have been created in Manitoba and the west. Dauphin, Portage la Prairie and Souris are the names of new made constituencies in Manitoba, although the province only gains two members by the redistribution. Six members have been added to the Northwest Territories which will have ten members in the new Parliament. It will take old hands in the Commons some time to get accustomed to allude to new comers from the prairies as "the honorable members" for Calgary, Edmonton, Humboldt, Mackenzie, Qu'Appelle and Strathcona. Comox-Atlin and New Westminster are the two additional constituencies in British Columbia which heretofore has had but six representatives in the Commons.

SATCHEL OF THE SATELLITE

Give H. S. C. a chance and he'll right your wrongs.

How Jim Stratton's eyes will bulge when he hears they're paying $250 a vote up here.

It's too darn bad that those posters were out before Sir Wilfrid made his Hamilton speech.

Now Sir Wilfrid ought to consult the local Grits before he makes any more speeches.

In justice to Cap. Sullivan, it is becoming to explain that he did not edit the Banner yesterday.

At $250 per, Lorne Hale's $40,000 election will look like the contents of a kid's pocket after he has been to the circus.

They do say that as soon as George Stephens has memorized Burke's Farewell to his Bristol Constituency he will resign.

The light on Cross St. in front of the Brick Pavement Grocery was lighted last night. This is so unusual an occurrence that it is worthy of note.

It's a great deal easier to lose a job than to get one, and I expect to see two hog cholera "experts" out of work pretty soon.

The local "Liberal" organette has opened the campaign. What it hopes to gain by personal abuse probably the organette itself knows.

Take a little advice, Bannery, old boy. It's argument, not abuse, that the intelligent people of this grand and fertile old county of Kent want.

And the Liberal organette has at last discovered that there was a meeting at Pain Court last Saturday night. The paper is apparently bracing up.

When the Banner characterizes the protest of a Kent farmer against the slaughter of his hogs as "an appeal of an ignoramus" the Stephens organ is going too far.

By the way, don't forget to register. We may need you, but then again we may not, after the returns from Dover Centre come in. Better register anyway.

They say it's a race between the city of Chatham and Dover Twp. which will give Herbert Clements the largest majority. And then look out for Harwich Twp.

I could see the chests of Fred Stone, N. H. Stevens, Hugh Malcolmson and other stalwart Liberals heave with pride as they eagerly perused the mutterings of the local Grit political organette last evening.

Metaphors if I received a registered letter inviting me to attend a meeting where charges were to be made against me, and I were perfectly innocent, I wouldn't have "other business."

A leading Liberal, and it wasn't my friend, Irish Jack, either, remarked to me yesterday,—"Darn those Tories, they've gone and spread the idea that we're paying $250 a vote and we won't be able to touch this election short of a million dollars."

Those good cigar smokers who sit around the Hotel Garner are not popular with the farmers. You should have seen the way the meeting at Pain Court received the mention of their names.

On those big Grit posters may be seen the battle cry of the local Liberals. It is "Prosperity, Purity and Adequate Protection." Now, Sir Wilfrid doesn't know what "adequate protection" means, vide his Hamilton speech. I have already made arrangements for a cinematograph photo of President Fred Stone and Secretary R. J. Gardner explaining to the Liberal Leader what adequate protection means.

DRESDEN

Oct. 12.—The management of the Grand have secured a good attraction for to-night and to-morrow night in the series of modern moving pictures, which will be presented by one of the foremost companies of the kind travelling in Canada. "Living Canada" and pictures from the Russo-Japanese war are two of the features of the program.

Wm. Daniels has accepted a position with R. Aikin.

F. A. McKim was a Chatham visitor Monday.

The family of Daniel Belle has moved to Chatham, where Mr. Belle has been working since April. L. A. Kimmery has disposed of his stock of dry goods, furnishings and shoes to Mr. E. N. Smith, who was burned out by the big Main street fire. Stock-taking commenced yesterday and Mr. Smith will be ready for business either Friday or Saturday of this week. He intends putting in a grocery department and conducting a first class general business. Doubtless he will meet with the success he deserves in his new venture.

A. W. Grant, of Windsor, was in town yesterday and to-day in the interests of the Great West Life Insurance Co.

Mr. Page, the local electrician, left on Monday for Brantford. On his return he will be accompanied by his bride, one of Brantford's young ladies, the ceremony being set for to-day.

The rooms above Mr. A. V. Penfound's store will be occupied by Mr. Penfound and Mrs. Page on their arrival in town.

ON THE SAFETY OF OVER EATING

The Rule of Choosing the Lesser of Two Evils Applies to the Way You Eat.

I want to know how a man is to know when he has had enough? The Pagan Fathers, I believe, had a quaint saying to the effect that you should always rise from the table feeling as if you could eat some more.

But the question is, how much more?

Just when to stop? That's the point.

The rule is wrong, because it's no rule at all.

It is inexact and unscientific. It is likely to lead to the dangerous habit of eating too little.

And eating too little—or digesting too little, which amounts to the same thing—is the cause of nine-tenths of the diseases from which humanity suffers to-day.

What is disease?

It is simply uneven balance between waste and repair.

Some organs lack strength to carry on the special work for which it was created.

Where shall it find the strength it lacks?

Ten thousand times, NO! Better die than become a hopeless drug fiend.

No, in food.

"But," you say, "I eat a plenty of good food every day!"

True, dear friend, but you don't digest it.

And food, undigested, is mere poison.

So, to make food do you good, you must take Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

The great thing about Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is, that their action does not depend upon stimulative druggery.

They contain no ingredients to "pick-you up," "tone up your nervous system" or furnish whip energy, by calling out your vital reserve force.

They create new strength, force and energy—out of your food.

If taken starving, they will do you no good at all.

So, eat to live, and live to eat, with Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

The cause of our present civilization is exhaustion.

And exhaustion, whether of brain, nerves, physical strength, or vital force, is caused by starvation.

Of two evils, it is better to over-eat (and prevent indigestion with Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets), than to rise from the table, not having eaten enough to repair the exhaustion of your vital forces.

For exhaustion or starvation leads to the most varied forms of sickness or disease, brought on by inability of the weakened vitality to counteract the disease—poisons and microbes.

Whereas the well-fed and well-nourished person, without ever feeling the worse for it, can expose himself to dangers, the mere thought of which would drive the weak, starving dyspeptic into a panic fit.

Good food, well digested, is the great secret of a healthful existence here on earth.

So eat heartily, every day, of the best food you can get, and regulate the working of your digestive machinery with Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

As a result, you will be astonished to find how much stronger and better you feel, how much more and better work you can do, how much more pleasure you will get out of life, and how your old enemy, that chronic trouble which has fastened upon your weak spot, wherever it is, will up and away, and ever after leave you in peace, health and comfort.

There is more truth than poetry in all this.

Mose men look forward to the day when they can exist without the daily routine of work.

There are two grand parts in Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night," which is to be presented here soon: That Miss Marie Wanwright is to play the most difficult of the two—that of Viola, the page—is all the assurance the theatre-loving public requires of its skillful presentation. The role of Olivia, the love-smitten countess, is in equal safe keeping, and the whole cast is of a character that will be sure to provide a delightful evening's entertainment.

A great percentage of theatre patrons now-a-days prefer attractions, which do not require mental labor in the following of a plot, but whose sole object is to drive away care and provoke laughter. Heavy plays, especially of the so-called higher order, are all right in their way, but the experience of successful managers shows that comedies and farces comedies hold the public away. "Town Topics," one of the last named class, has always been a winning favorite, and it has run a great race, so to speak, throughout the country.

Different characters and scenes in a boarding house furnish abundant fun-making, all of which is clean and pungent. In fact, it may be said, without exaggeration, that the piece bubbles over with spicy things, witty and laughable sayings, tuneful songs, unique dances and picturesque groupings. Go prepared to laugh when "Town Topics" is here, on Saturday.
