The Deminion Royal Commission estimates Canada's total stand of commercial timber at 500 to 600 billion feet. This would not last the U. S. A more than 15 years, if the latter is allowed a free hand in cutting it. It should be the uncompromising policy of the Federal Government, and of the government of every province possessing timber wealth, to see that the commercial exploiters of no other country are allowed a free hand in removing timber from Canada.

Young Canadians with a taste for sea life, and a desire to do their duty to their country, will find an attractive opportunity to gratify their taste and their desire, by joining the Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Reserve
