NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE, Ap. 30. A violent attack was made to day by a party of anti-suffragettes on a shop and offices used as headquarters of the suffragettes here. Bricks were hurled through the windows, and all the desks in the place were broken open, while the suffragettes' literature and banners were destroyed.

WATERTOWN, April 30. The earthquake shock felt throughout Northern New York State and Lower Canada, on Monday, was the most severe in this region since the Champlain earthquake in 1663, according to George Chadwick, Professor of Geology at St. Lawrence University, who declared that the disturbance may possibly be a forerunner of a much more serious and disastrous shock. Monday's earthquake he believed to be due to an actual slipping of the earth's crust along the great crack, known as Logan's line, which extends from the St. Lawrence Valley to Alabama. There is no question, he said, that we are entering on a period of great seismicographic disturbance. As far as our records go, there have been no earthquakes here as severe as that of Monday night, for nearly three centuries.

NEW YORK, April 30. A Washington despatch says that Sir Cecil Arthur Spring-Rice, the new British Ambassador, made a formal call on the acting Secretary of State, John Bassett Moore. He rather startled precedents by calling at once, although his acquaintance with Professor Moore dates from the time he served in Washington as Secretary of the British Embassy.

Pleasing Presentation.

Yesterday afternoon, Mr. H. B. Chafe, who has accepted a position with the Fishermen's Union Trading Co., was presented with a handsome Gladstone travelling bag and accessories by the employees of Harvey & Co., with which firm Mr. Chafe was an official for several years. Mr. N. A. Outerbridge, in a neatly worded address, made the presentation. The recipient made a suitable reply. General promotions will follow with the Junior office hands caused by the retirement of Mr. Chafe, who will be replaced by Mr. H. Dewling, Messrs. Ring, Newman, Cornick, Wills, Bendall and Butt will be promoted in turn.

Dear Sir,—Please ship by next express, if possible, 3 doz. Mathieu's Syrup. It is the best Cough Mixture on the market. Yours truly, W. STERLING.

CHURCH POINT, July 31, '08. Blacking & Mercantile Co., Ltd., Amherst, N.S.

Dear Sir,—Nearly one year ago I had my first order of "Mathieu's Syrup" from you. It was not known in this country, and I gave samples to several families whom I knew would use it. After a few weeks I began to have a call for it, and have increased wonderfully since. I have not the least doubt but that it will soon be the best selling remedy for coughs, colds, etc., on the market. In my store here sales are good and our people ask for it. Several stores in this county now keep it in stock and report sales increasing. I have bought from you since August 18th, 1907, 4 Gross and have only three dozen on hand at this date, and which I am holding for retail trade in my store. Yours truly, LOUIS A. McLANSON.

Neolithic Surgery.

The appearance of the first chapter of a history of cerebral surgery by the eminent French surgeon, M. Lucas-Champonniere, recalls the very famous discovery of a prehistoric skull in a dolmen of Loseres in 1868—a skull that showed traces of having been opened by mechanical means and trepanned. The discovery was completed in 1873, when other skulls were found bearing the round bone excrescences where the skull had healed after trepanning. These discoveries were made at the time that the particular operation of trepanning had fallen into momentary disfavor. It was not until Ferrier's discoveries concerning the localization of brain functions and Lister's introduction of antiseptic surgery that trepanning rested on a firm scientific basis and found favor again. Nevertheless, it has been indisputable since those discoveries of the 'seventies that trepanning was practised, and with frequency, in the neolithic age. The method and the purpose of the operation, however, have been much disputed.

Trepanning With a Flint.

Various methods have been suggested as those of the neolithic surgeon. Each of them naturally depended upon the use of a sharpened flint, which does not naturally suggest itself as the best instrument for such an operation. M. Broca held that it was performed by persistently cutting round the skull in a circle with a flint. M. Champonniere has shown lately by experiment that by boring holes at regular intervals the section could be made in 35 minutes. Equally various have been the purposes suggested. Some have supposed that it was a part of some religious rite and performed after death. Mr. Champonniere is, however, convinced that the operation was performed during life, was often successful and was performed for medical purposes.—Westminster Gazette.

Startled The Monarch.

On the first consignment of sedition powders to the capital of Delhi, the monarch became deeply interested in the accounts of the refreshing draught. A box was brought to the King in full court, and the interpreter explained to His Majesty how it should be used. Into a goblet he put the contents of the twelve blue papers, and, having added water, the King drank it off. This was the alkali, and the royal countenance expressed no signs of satisfaction. It was then explained that in the combination of the two powders lay the luxury, and the twelve white powders were quickly dissolved and as eagerly swallowed by His Majesty.

With a wild shriek that will be remembered while Delhi is numbered among the kingdoms, the monarch rose, staggered, exploded, and, in his full agonies, screamed, "Hold me down!" then, rushing from the throne, fell prostrate on the floor. There he lay during the long continued effervescence of the compound, spurring like ten thousand pennynorth of Imperial pop, and believing himself the agonies of death—a melancholy and humiliating proof that kings are mortal.

Man Bottled Up 12 Days.

Boat Turned Turtle and He Was Sealed in Cabin.

One of the most extraordinary stories ever told of the sea is related by Captain Engelland, owner of the steel sailing-ship Brundt. He was at sea with three men on board, when a great gale came sweeping and tearing and screaming over the waves, and drove his vessel before it into the gathering blackness of night. The skipper stuck to the wheel all through the long hours of darkness, and the gale dying down to a snarling growl at 4 a.m., he relinquished his post and stepped down to his cabin for a change of clothes.

It was at this moment the real business of the day began. He had just got into dry underclothing, when the vessel quietly turned bottom upwards, and he found himself standing on the roof of the cabin, with the door over his head hermetically sealed by the ocean. Was ever a man in such straits before?

He climbed through the hold of the vessel, where he found raisins, condensed milk, prunes, rice, and, of course, a Teutonic sausage. Eating sparingly of this healthy fare, and hammering on the steel bottom of the boat to attract the attention of any ship that might happen to pass by, he spent 12 days in this strange manner before he was rescued. The wreck had to be towed to a mighty crane before a steel plate could be unloosed and the skipper be free to look once more on the blue sky.
