CANADIANS RE-CAPTURED GUNS AFTER BRITISH DASH!

talion Lost Twenty-Three of its seemed to meit away. Thirty-One Officers.

London, April 29 .- The story of how the Tenth and Sixteenth Western Battalions in a midnight charge, reook four Canadian guns which had fallen into the hands of the Germans and captured prisoners, was told in London to-day by some of the wound-

Captain G. E. McCuaig, of Montreal, adjutant of the Thirtieth Battalion, Fifth Royal Highlanders, who was wounded on Thursday and is now in a West End nursing home, said:

"The first thing we saw, about half nast four on Thursday afternoon were clouds of poisonous gas hovering over the trenches held by French troops on our left. At the same time there was a heavy roar of artillery at the French front. Half an hour later the French were retiring through the vilage of St. Julien. These troops were ostly Algerians. The Germans adanced about half a mile and started entrench themselves about nine

"At midnight the two western battalions the Tenth and Sixteenth, formed up in the rear, received orders to charge. For more than two hundred vards they were exposed to a heavy rifle and several machine guns but they kept right on until they reached the German trenches. Here the westerners re-took the guns and also captured some prisoners, who surrendered when about to be bayonetted." Capt. McCuaig, while at headquarters was wounded by shrapnel but his injuries are not serious.

Lieutenent G. M. Ainslee, of the Sixteenth Battalion, who was wounded in the charge described by Captain McCuaig, said he was in Ypres when the shelling started on the afternoon of the 22nd and on returning found his battalion ready to go forward.

Lieut -Col Buell of Brockville Ont., is in the hospital at South Kensington, suffering from shrapnel which almost shattered his shoulder blade where a bullet is still embedded He is making fair progress towards recovery. Colonel Buell was wounded on Friday, while leading a reserve battalion of Canadians into action to cover the exposed flank of the two Canadian battalions who were in the trenches. Colonel Buell to-day in describing the scene, said the noise was ear-splitting, with the German artillery showing remarkable precision, pounding not only the Canadian front, but also enfilading.

In order to minimize the losses Colonel Buell advanced his battalion by short rushes. His men, he said be haved like regular troops whose steadiness could not be excelled by veterans. There was no faltering among them when they were ordered ment almost immediate casualties.

The British Foreign Office has issued a statement regarding the shooting and fatal wounding of Henry Hadley, a British subject, who had a misunderstanding with the conductor o a train by which he was travelling from Berlin toward England on Aug 3rd, 1914, his murderer being a German officer named Nicolay, who had been called on by the conductor. Mr Page, the United States Ambassador at the request of the British Govern ment, conducted an investigation in which he was assisted by the American Ambassador to Germany, Mr Gerard. Mr. Page made his report and was asked by the British Government o facilitate through proper diplomatic to advance, though all knew that this channels the strongest possible protest against the action of the army officer who committed, according to

(From the New York Tribune.)

There has been a great deal of grumbling in England at the slowness of recruiting and the failure of munitions and supplies of all kinds. Much of this has doubtless been taken too eriously. As for recruiting, it has at east kept pace with equipment, and the cry for conscription may safely be attributed to party motives. Munitions have not been produced rapidly enough to equal the demand, but nothing like the demand has ever been known beore. It must be remembered, too, as Mr. Lloyd George points out that

Great Britain has been supplying her Allies, yet in spite of this curcumstance there is at present a considerable reserve. Nearly three months ago a French observer remarked in "Le Temps" that, contrary to the popular opinion. Great Britain had worked miracles in the way of organization, and expressed the belief that no country in the world could possibly have done more. He was perfectly satisfied as a result of his own investigation that conscription would never be necessary, and his judgment was entirely in accord with that of Mr. Lloyd George to-day, that the creation of so great an army in so short a time was
