UNIVERSITY RELATIONS

The fact that Calgary University has not yet had degree conferring powers bestowed upon it by the government has not in any way affected the relations between the local institution and the provincial university at Edmonton. In so far as these two seats of learning are related at all, there has been complete harmony. In fact there has been no cause for collision, and with the very little spare time for either body to indulge in bad feeling. The impression seems to have been given to the president of an Eastern university now visiting in the West, that friction prevails. This is misleading and consequently unfortunate, and will be deeply regretted by the promoters of the Calgary University whose efforts have always been confined to construction work quite independent of and apart from the interests of any other educational institution. The people behind the Calgary University have found the local field so wide and the demands so exacting that there has been no time for any thought of encroachment into any other territory. This city is developing so rapidly that this will probably be the condition of affairs for many years. It is to the credit of Calgary that an important seat of higher learning has been successfully established here, without the assistance of the province and without interference with any provincial institution already founded. Whatever success the future will bring Calgary University will be due to the constructive energy and enthusiasm of the citizens of Calgary and never to the sacrifice of any provincial interest. Calgary University has been established to fill a special need—and that need must be filled before everything. Whether the purpose can be best accomplished by identification with the provincial university, in a provincial scheme; or by a closer identification with the educational system of the city of Calgary, whereby that system may become complete and self-sufficient, remains to be seen. But in either case the interests of the provincial institution will remain intact and free from interference. Calgary's university is, first of all, a university for Calgary. It is necessary to our municipal well being and to our development. When the important task of administration to municipal welfare has been fully achieved, the needs and interests of the country at large will be so great that there will be plenty of room for two seats of learning without friction in this province. Calgary's university has been achieved by Calgary's citizens, and while it will not be subverted to an auxiliary position where its benefits and advantages to those citizens might be curtailed, it will continue to strive for harmony and for every form of co-operation by which its usefulness may be increased. The citizens of Calgary respect the province and provincial institutions. The southern university was established in full recognition of the position of this city in relation to the province as a large; and with the ideal of serving the whole province through a public which is an important component part. The realization of that ideal will not permit of friction; and the citizens of Calgary have already manifested a spirit too broad to tolerate it. Their success is evidence of this. No institution having its roots in a sentiment of rivalry, of petty jealousy, or of sectional spite, could have attained the success of this university. Calgary and the south country have vital need of this educational factor. The necessity is too great to allow sectional feeling to interfere with development. The insinuation of hostile relations can be truthfully repudiated by the supporters of Calgary's university, because no such feeling animates them. The sooner visiting educationalists can be disabused of this illusion the better it will be for both the institution of the province and of the city.

arguments advanced in its favor, and however unfortunate it may be that some people have been injured and that the action was taken at an opportune time so far as the Dominion movement is concerned, it is evident that the institution was inadequate and was not conducted in a thoroughly businesslike manner. The city had not effected a permanent improvement of conditions by establishing an employment agency in competition with those already in business and operated along similar lines. The minor difficulties arising out of this attempt have but emphasized the necessity for the adoption of other methods. The position of the laboring class in this province constitutes a vital problem, for which no solution has yet been offered. It is up to this city to find at least a local solution, beginning first of all, with the stringent regulation of private agencies. The suggestion to combine the municipal bureau with the Associated Charities, which was made by Commissioner Samis early in the year, does not appear to be feasible. The local application of Miss Wileman's policy has been in some vital respects, a failure. Her policy in theory appears to be a good one. But it is apparent that she made several serious errors in her attempt to adapt it to Calgary under conditions which were most discouraging. While Miss Wileman's ability as an organizer is unquestioned, and her persistence and enthusiasm are worthy of admiration, so much cannot be said of her executive ability in the tedious detail work connected with the uphill attempt to operate a competitive agency under the name of the city. This being recognized, the only logical thing to do, was to abandon the attempt. But the city should not stop at that and Miss Wileman may yet give valuable service to the community, in a more effective way than hitherto. And although her previous attempt has failed, there should be some satisfaction in the knowledge that her efforts have had tremendous educational value, and her fight for a labor bureau has at least aroused the public to the necessity for improvement of conditions. Because the first abortive attempt made under conditions of the most discouraging nature, has failed is no reason why the propaganda of Miss Wileman should be abandoned. On this experience another attempt may be based, more successful in proportion to the knowledge of local conditions acquired.

TWO MEN SENTENCED TO HANGING AT PRINCE ALBERT

Hungarian and Accomplish Are Found Guilty of Murder of a Dutch Friend

Prince Albert, Sask., May 7.—The court proceedings closed at eight o'clock last night in one of the most sensational murder trials that the crown and northwest police ever had to deal with, when Lewis Ratz, a Hungarian, was found guilty and sentenced to be hanged for the murder of Charles Brugencote, a Dutchman, on the night of February 11. On Friday of last week the jury returned a verdict against Emerle Kovovich, another Hungarian, of being accessory to the murder before the fact, and on his sentence of death was passed by Chief Justice Haultain, who is the presiding judge at the assizes. Lewis Ratz today was found guilty of the leading part in the murder. The men killed Brugencote at the lonely ruined shack where they lived by beating in his brains with a cudgel and afterwards cutting his throat as he drove along a trail into the open prairie, where they left his body. On account of the popular feeling over the case, C. E. Gregory, K. C., counsel retained for Ratz, challenged over 50 jurors peremptorily for cause, and no less than 83 jurors had to be summoned before the necessary twelve were obtained. Kovovich is sentenced to be hanged on July 18, and Ratz on July 28.

CUDDY APPROVES OF PROVINCIAL PRISON FARM SUGGESTION

Says One Large Farm Would Take Care of All the Habituals and Short Term Offenders in the Province, and Would be Self-Sustaining

GOVERNMENT TO BE ASKED TO ESTABLISH A FARM

Scene Was First Promoted by Ald. Wm. Ross, and Was Referred to Legislative Committee of Council, Which Considered Proposition

Chief of Police Cuddy is of the opinion that one large prison farm would be adequate to house all the habitual drunkards and short term prisoners in the province; and that such a jail farm would be self-sustaining, and might under good management show a good profit, which could be devoted to the support of the prisoners' families who might otherwise be a charge on the municipality. The chief of police thinks that Calgary has not yet reached the stage where it is advisable to undertake the establishment of such a farm. The legislative committee of the city council passed a resolution adopting the chief's recommendation. Will Approach Government

READY MADE FRUIT FARMS TO BE PLACED ON MARKET

Ready made fruit farms are now to be placed on the market by the natural resources department of the Canadian Pacific railway. Five of these are now being made ready, and will be completed by the fall, and will be sold to purchasers. They are situated in the best part of the fruit belt of British Columbia. The farms will be provided not only with the necessary buildings for the farm, but will also be well stocked with fruit trees, which will be ready to bear fruit at the time of taking over. This will bring up the total of ready made farms of the C. P. R. system to the total of 445, all of which it is hoped will be occupied at the end of this summer. Of these 184 are already occupied, 117 unoccupied, but many of them sold, and the remainder, 134, will be ready for occupation this summer.

WOMAN DECIDED TO GET INTO TROUBLE THAT SHE DECIDED TO LEAVE MY PLACE

She knew that Patton had gone to the police and although this might get the woman who was helping her into trouble, she slipped away quietly without telling anyone where she was going. As far as we know she was

ALONE WHEN SHE LEFT CALGARY, AND SHE CERTAINLY WAS WHEN SHE LEFT MY HOUSE

She came in the afternoon and rented the room after reading an advertisement in The Morning Albertan. About an hour later she moved her things here, and she stayed here all night, not leaving the house until after breakfast the next day, and having only the one caller during that time, a very neat appearing little woman, whose face I did not see because of the veil she wore. It was after this woman had gone away that Mrs. Patton moved again, and as she did not want anyone to get into any trouble, she did not say where she was going or anything else.

LOOKING FORWARD TO A RAINY DAY! RAINCOATS BEST BOUGHT NOW

Lots of rainy weather ahead, and then—'Where's my raincoat?' This news today is to remind Calgary men and boys that this store is showing the largest stock of raincoats in Alberta and offering the best values. And we don't make such claims, you may be sure, without knowing we have a most remarkable stock to back it up. No gentleman's wardrobe is complete without a raincoat—the handiest coat a man can have, rain or shine.

RUNAWAY WIFE SAFE IN MOSCOW
as leaving Turner station with a railroad man by the name of Gray, who went with me as far as Macleod, where he got into trouble with the railroad company over me, and was had up on the carpet and suspended. All this is false, as far as the man Gray is concerned, I do not know him and know nothing of him. I went alone when I left, and met no one at Turner station, making my whole trip entirely alone, paying my fare myself from Turner to Macleod, and buying a ticket to Moscow from there.

Will Earn Her Own Living
"Regarding the mysterious messages which my husband received over the telephone I know nothing. I cannot account for them at all, as I know no Mexicans, Spaniards or Italians in Calgary. As I consider my life in danger with my husband, I shall not return to him, but will try to earn my own living. I would much rather do this than live in Calgary fearing for my life and not knowing what time I might be killed."
Following the statement of Patton that he had called at a "dirty looking foreign boarding house" to see his wife, the proprietress of the house also objected to his defilement of her place. This woman is English, fairly well-to-do, and has a house that is up-to-date in every particular, situated on Twenty-first avenue west in one of the best residential districts of the city. She stated that the door was answered by a young Scotch girl when Patton called, and that the girl gave him what information she could, which was to the effect that while Mrs. Patton had been at the house and had supper and breakfast there, as well as spending the night there, she had paid her bill and departed without taking the family into her confidence other than to drop a hint that it was trouble with her husband that was causing her to leave him.

Sympathies With Mrs. Patton
The Scotch girl is also taking exception to being called a "dirty looking Italian woman who could hardly speak English," and as a result the sympathies of the people at this house are strongly with Mrs. Patton, who behaved as any other woman would have behaved, according to the inmates of the house, and who had no other visitors but a lady, who helped her away from her own home. "It was because she did not want
